FOR THE RECORD…

● Abdul Hamid Al-Sarraj, head of military intelligence and Minister of Interior of the United Arab Republic (Syria+Egypt in 1958) under the presidency of Gamal Abdel Nasser, said in 1969: "Hitler is doing fine in Argentina. He will spend the rest of his life and he will die in Argentina. The Americans don't want him, the English don't want him. The Russians backed off. And the Israelis were ordered by the Americans to not interfere. As far as Syria is concerned and possibly the Arab Nation (Al Ouma Al-Arabiya), the Germans are extremely important because we share same attitude toward the Jews, who are the source of all the troubles in the world. We welcomed many German officers, some worked for the army and our military intelligence, some went to Egypt to work for the Egyptian army and Al Mukhabarat (Intelligence Office).
Others went to Argentina to be at the service of Hitler…"

● Egyptian Air Force General Isam Al-Din Al Khalil said in 1974: "Egypt harbored hundreds of Nazis, especially scientists and high-ranking officers, who later joined the Egyptian military war machine. President Gamal Abdel Nasser was able to talk to Adolf Hitler who was -then- living in Argentina, and a secret Egyptian military delegation met with Hitler in Argentina.
In addition, a secret unit was created in Cairo to coordinate direct communications between the Egyptian Mukhabarat (Intelligence) and highly efficient Nazi officers and Nazi scientists who fled to Brazil and to Argentina."

● Letter of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat to Adolf Hitler in Argentina: Here is something to sink your teeth in: "Even Anwar Sadat, a man deemed by many in the West to be a moderate Arab leader, as a young man wrote the following words to the leader of the Third Reich, (whom he assumed was still alive and in hiding after the war):
My dear Hitler,
I congratulate you from the bottom of my heart. Even if you appear to have been defeated, in reality you are the victor. You succeeded in creating dissensions between Churchill, the old man, and his allies, the Sons of Satan. Germany will win because her existence is necessary to preserve the world balance.

Germany will be reborn in spite of the Western and Eastern powers. There will be no peace unless Germany once again becomes what she was ."

●Bariloche residents' accounts.
Bariloche's residents quite often would say, "Of course, Hitler lived here but we did not know where exactly. It was a secret. We know Hitler and his wife did not live in the center of Bariloche, this would be very obvious, we were told that they lived in the Inalco estate. And we were told that a large German compound surrounded Hitler's house, and a small port located nearby the compound was used as a Nazi naval base. Others added, "We saw German officers in civilian clothes almost everywhere, in cafes, in hotels, in streets, in shops. They spoke German.
They did not speak Spanish. We knew Erich Priebke, and people like him, he was polite and very gentle; he had a large house in Pantagonia…"

Others have said, "We saw lots of German cars heading toward areas located outside the center of the town.
We knew Nazis had meetings in those areas from people who catered food to them…this lasted until 1965.
After 1965, we did not see any more activities or German cars, and we began to wonder why.
Some heard that Hitler left Bariloche to Chile, and others said that he died, really we did not know what was going on…"
Owners of taverns in downtown Bariloche told us that their parents said to them that "Many German officers came to Bariloche. Some did not hide their identity, but many did; they used different names, of course false German names or Spanish names.
They were polite, and they spent money. They never said a word about Hitler, and when we asked them if it was true what we have heard about Adolf Hitler, meaning that he escaped from Germany and now he lives somewhere on a large hacienda outside Bariloche…they would smile and say it is not true, but we could feel that they were hiding something… almost all of us heard that Hitler and Eva Braun lived somewhere here but nobody knew where…we were told that the secret police of Peron protected them, and we should not mention the names of Adolf Hitler and his wife…"

● A US naval intelligence report, dated 18 July 1945, written by the American Naval Attaché in Buenos Aires who informed Washington that there was reason to believe that a German submarine, the U-530 had landed Adolf Hitler and Eva Braun in the south of Argentina before the U-Boat surrendered to the Argentinian authorities at Mar del Plata.
Excerpt from the report: "The assistant chief of the department of investigations informed the federal police that a submarine was going to surrender some time before the actual surrender took place. Eva Braun and Adolf Hitler were landed in the south of Argentina."

● From a CIA document, dated 7-14-1945: "Hitler was landed in Argentina approximately June 20, that his face was disfigured and that Argentine army major Leon Bengoaallamas of army will escort Hitler to secret hiding place in Chago Territory…"

● From the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) report on "Hitler Hideout", dated 9-21-45. File 105-410. Title: Report on Hitler Hideout. It reads: "Hitler and his party when they landed from two submarines in Argentina approximately two and one-half weeks after the fall of Berlin."

● From the FBI Office Memorandum. Date: August 14, 1945. It reads: "Certain sources placed Adolf Hitler in hiding in Argentina."

● Operation Joshua: The Israelis tried three times to Kidnap Adolf Hitler but remained in vain.
"Operation Joshua" was the code name of the first kidnapping attempt. And the code name of the Israeli officer in charge was "Merodach".

● Bishop Alois Hudal: The personal files of Bishop Alois Hudal, Rector of the Collegio Teutonico Seminary of Santa Maria dell'Anima in Rome, contained references to Nazis who visited Adolf Hitler in Argentina, and German scientists who flew to Antarctica.

● Field Marshal Gred von Rundstedt said publicly, "Suicide is against his (Hitler) nature…never will I believe he (Hitler) put an end to his own life… It was not in accordance with his character..."

● Dwight D. Eisenhower said in 1952, “We have been unable to unearth one bit of tangible evidence of Hitler's death.
Many people believe that Hitler escaped from Berlin."

● Lt. Gen. Bedell Smith , Chief of Staff to Eisenhower, and former Director of the CIA said in October 12, 1945 “No human being can say conclusively that Hitler is dead.”

● Judge Michael Musmano, presiding judge at the Einsatzgruppen Trial in United States military court in Nuremberg said in November 1946, “Hitler’s body was never found.”
And in 1948, he said, “We had no evidence which indicated that Hitler died in his bunker or anywhere…”

● Colonel W. J. Heimlich, US Intelligence former Chief in Berlin said in 1945, "There was no evidence beyond that of hearsay to support the theory of Hitler's suicide."

● Thomas J. Dodd, chief of the U.S. trial counsel at Nuremberg said in 1945, “No one can say Hitler is dead."

● General Zhukov (Zukof) said in 1945, “We have found no corpse that could be Hitler's.
Hitler might have escaped...I am absolutely, positively sure Hitler escaped from Berlin...”
On June 9, 1945, Marshal Zhukov gave an official statement to the press, in which she stated that the Russians were unable to identify Hitler.
On June 10, 1945, the Russian newspaper “Pravda” published an article which contained a statement by Marshal Zhukov which clearly indicated that nothing for sure could be said about Hitler’s fate and disappearance.

● Nikita Khrushchov (Khrushchev) said:
“Yes…sure…Stalin did not believe Adolf Hitler committed suicide. There are two ways to read history’s books. Either you believe the version of the victorious, or you wait until they are dead, and you give a space for the losers.
Then you will see the two faces of events. In the case of the suicide of Hitler, the whole truth was never told.

England and the United States came up with their own version which does not unfortunately reveal the truth. It would not be difficult for any person who has a common sense, and especially for forensic scientists to realize that we have never obtained affirmative evidence that Adolf Hitler was dead.
I can't say for sure where Adolf Hitler is.
But I am certain he did not shoot himself in his bunker."

●Stalin on May 26, 1945, told Harry Hopkins, the United States envoy in Moscow, "It is my opinion that Hitler is not dead. He is alive and hiding somewhere. I wish your government will understand and accept this…"
On July 17, 1945 at the Postdam Conference, Stalin told James B. Byrnes, the American Secretary of State, "Hitler is alive, probably in Spain or Argentina." Such statement could be found in President Truman's Library archives.

●Russian General Boltin in 1965, told Eric Kirby, correspondent of Der Spiegel that the Kremlin had no proof –whatsoever– that Hitler has committed suicide.

●TIME magazine:
From TIME magazine, May 14, 1945: "Soviet soldiers dug deep into the rubble of the Reich Chancellery for Hitler's corpse. They did not find it…"

●The New York Times:
From the New York Times, June 9, 1945: "Marshall Zhukov: We found no corpse that could be Hitler's…"

●The Chicago Sun Times.
On July 17, 1945, the Chicago Sun Times reported that Adolf Hitler was still alive and living on a ranch in Argentina. In 1945, three FBI documents and one memo suggested that Adolf Hitler was living on a ranch in the foothills of the Andes Mountains in Argentina (Bariloche).
Well, let's see what the residents of Bariloche and the neighbors of Hitler's ranch had to say about this.

●From ABC News, November 18, 1987:
Ambrosio Vicente Farias, 85, recalls driving visitors to the hotel (Eden Hotel) during the Eichhorn era. "They all spoke German up there. I couldn't understand anything," he said. "They say Hitler himself visited once incognito." At the hotel there are two faded sepia group photographs taken on the front steps. In both pictures, taken from different angles, one of the 60 or so faces is blurred beyond recognition. The shadow of small moustache is just discernible. "

●Catalina Gamero's account:
Catalina Gamero who worked as a cook and a chamber-maid at Eden Hotel owned by Hitler's supporters, Walter Eichhorn and Ida Eichhorn of La Falda, just outside Cordoba, said that in 1949 the Eichhorns told her that an important guest would soon arrive to the Hotel and he does not want to eat in the dining room, so she has to take his meals upstairs to his bedroom. As soon as Catalina Gamero saw the face of the prominent guest, she recognized him right away because she had seen his photographs before at the home of the Eichhorns, and that man was Adolf Hitler.
Gamero added that Adolf Hitler stayed in touch with Ida Eichhorn until she died in 1964. Gamero continued, at that time Hitler was living in Mendoza in Argentina.

● Leon Degrelle. In 1945-1946, Belgian Colonel Leon Degrelle, former commander of the Waffen-SS in Belgium said, "Hitler is alive… and the Third Reich is not dead…"

Otto Abetz. Just after the war ended, Otto Abetz, Germany's wartime ambassador to France, said "Hitler is certainly not dead."

● Admiral Doenitz. In 1943, Admiral Doenitz said: "The German U-boat fleet is proud to have made an earthly paradise, an impregnable fortress for the Fuhrer, somewhere in the world." In 1944, Admiral Doenitz in addressing naval cadets in Kiel said, "The German Navy has still a great role to play in the future.
The German Navy knows all hiding places for the Navy to take the Fuhrer to, should the need arise."

● Otto Guensche. On November 15, 1958, Otto Guensche said to his American military interrogators, "I did not see the dead body of the Fuehrer." In another instance, he said, "I did not see the Fuehrer dead."

●Admiral Doenitz: In 1943, Admiral Doenitz said: “The German U-boat fleet is proud to have made an earthly paradise, an impregnable fortress for the Fuhrer, somewhere in the world.”
In 1944, Admiral Doenitz in addressing naval cadets in Kiel said, “The German Navy has still a great role to play in the future. The German Navy knows all hiding places for the Navy to take the Fuhrer to, should the need arise.”

● Leni Riefenstahl. In an interview with Leni Riefenstahl, she told me, “Hitler escaped to Argentina.”

●El Tiempo, Colombia, 20th June 1948: “Hitler had escaped by submarine to South America.”

●Los Angeles Times, April 27, 1945: “Nazis Flying to Spanish Island.”

●Dr. Winfried Otto Schumann:
In the early sixties, Dr. Winfried Otto Schumann, Professor at the Munich Technical University, told Hanna Reitsch that Adolf Hitler escaped on a supersonic-anti gravity “Vril” he built himself using a mind-bending “Metal-Alloy Technology” unknown to scientists.
This craft was called “RFC-2”.

●Peter Erich Baumgart
Excerpts from the St. Petersburg Times, December 19, 1947: “Capt. Peter Baumgart, former German air force pilot, told a district court Wednesday that he flew Adolph Hitler to Denmark shortly before the fall of Berlin…the flier claimed that Hitler was accompanied on the flight by German Gen. Roemer and his wife and a woman who he believed was Eva Braun. Baumgart said the party boarded an airplane at Hohenzollerndamm April 28, 1945, and that he landed them in Denmark about 40 miles from the Either river. Upon landing, the flier said, Hitler gave him a check for 20,000 marks drawn on a Berlin bank.
Baumgart said he immediately was ordered to fly back to Berlin. After that, he said he did not know about Hitler and his party, but he said he thought they had boarded a submarine…”

● SS officer Lt. Friedrich von Argelotty-Mackensen: Excerpts from von Argelotty-Mackensen’s interrogations by U.S military intelligence on March 15, 1948.
-Interrogator: Who had command of the plane?
-von Argelotty-Mackensen:…I only know that in one of the planes in which Hitler was, that this plane was being flown or piloted by a certain Capt. Baumgart.
-Interrogator: How many were there in the plane-how many motors were there in the plane in which you were riding?
-von Argelotty-Mackensen:…Somebody put a knapsack under my head and then Hitler was standing there…I remember very well that he shook hands with me.
He didn’t say anything, and I didn’t say anything. The others didn’t say anything. It was complete calmness…
-Interrogator: And what did he do after…?
-von Argelotty-Mackensen: Then he entered the plane.”

● Albert Duhinger. German pilot Albert Duhinger said, “The fuhrer survived…and he is well… he flew safely from Norway to Spain…” Duhinger made it to Buenos Aires and continued to fly passengers’ airplanes.

● Lt. Colonel Walter Horten:
In 1946, Lt. Colonel Walter Horten said clear and loud: “I never doubted the escape of Hitler…Borman planned it well, and Admiral Doenitz knew exactly what to do…”

INTRODUCTION

American war correspondents are shown the place where Adolf Hitler's alleged burned body was buried and found by the Red Army, right behind the Chancellery in Berlin. But Hitler’s body was never found.

Undeniable facts.

- a-Hitler did not commit suicide.
- b-Hitler escaped from the Bunker.
- c-Hitler spent his final days in Argentina.
- d-Hitler made a deal with the United States after World War Two in Argentina.
- e-Nazism is still active and kicking.
- f-Some of the most frightening weapons systems at the disposal of the United States of America are German in origin.

Duped!

Many of those who have stated that Adolf Hitler committed suicide in his bunker on April 30, 1945 were duped by Martin Bormann, Josef Goebbels, and Hitler’s double.

Many of Hitler's staff who remained with him in the bunker and a few of the German generals who visited him before the alleged suicide, honestly believed that Hitler de facto shot himself, despite the fact that they knew very well how Hitler looked like, having lived with him in the bunker for a considerable period of time before the alleged suicide, and saw him and interacted with him on a daily basis, in various capacities, ranging from secretaries to bodyguards including his personal secretaries.
However, it is extremely hard to believe that they did not recognize Hitler's double.
Perhaps they have recognized Hitler's double, but being extremely loyal to their fuehrer, kept their mouth shut or lied to cover up the escape of their master.
Or they were threatened by the remaining underground Nazi authority and SS fanatics and thugs who indeed did not relinquish their control over a very large portion of the German population in general, and over those who worked closely with Hitler, in particular.
But what we know for sure is this:
1-Germans who were interrogated by the Allies after WWII were instructed or ordered by some military interrogators (Russians and Americans as well) to say whatever the interrogators wanted them to say.
2-All governments' documents and exhibits pertaining to the veracity of Hitler's suicide were false.
There is no doubt in my mind that Hitler did not commit suicide in his bunker, and the escape of Hitler was pre-planned in 1943 by Martin Bormann et al.
It is up to you to discern between facts and myths, between the bleeding truth and cover-up of any kind.
Read this book with an open mind. It was said, "Your mind is like a parachute, and it only works when it is open."

*** *** ***

The Adolf Hitler's suicide story was first told by few Nazis who remained in Hitler's bunker until his alleged suicide. Those Nazis claimed to be the witnesses of the events that occurred inside the bunker right before it was captured by the Russians (The Red Amy).
In other words, they are the first and only Nazis who saw with their own eyes "everything", including what has happened to Adolf Hitler and Eva Braun in the bunker.

Many of those witnesses were not accessible to Major Roper who investigated the alleged suicide of Adolf Hitler (These witnesses are the essential ones); he could not interview the essential witnesses because they were in Russian custody, such as:

- Gestapo Chief, General Mueller,
- SS Obergruppenfuhrer Johann Rattenhuber,

- SS Obersturmbannfuhrer Harry Mengershausen,
- SS Sturmbannfuhrer Otto Gunsche.

Nota Bene: Years after the end of the war, we learned that the most vital and important testimonies and accounts about Adolf Hitler's alleged suicide were given by General Mueller, General Rattenhuber, Harry Mengershausen (Member of Adolf Hitler's personal guard), and Gunsche to their Russian interrogators between 13 May and 20 May 1945, and Major Roper in charge of investigating the suicide of Adolf Hitler had no access to the Russian interrogations files and dossiers.
In addition, none of the assumed major players in the cover-up such as Dr. Goebbels, Martin Bormann, General Krebs, General Wilhelm Emanuel Burgdorf, Lt. Colonel Franz Schadle, and Ewald Lindloff, were interviewed by Major Roper because they did not survive the war.

On Adolf Hitler's Bariloche; his final days in Argentina.
1-Adolf Hitler escaped to Argentina. Hitler's escape was planned by Martin Bormann and the inner circle of Hitler.
The Germans worshiped Hitler. And they wanted at any cost to cover up his escape and mislead us as much as they could. And remember what General Patton once said, "The bastards, SOB lied to us all the time!"
None of the Allies -at that time- knew anything about the pre-planned escape of Hitler and Eva Braun. However, as the historical records and eye-witnesses' reports revealed, the Allies and leaders of a few countries were/are fully convinced that Adolf Hitler did NOT commit suicide in his bunker.
2-Adolf Hitler died in Bariloche, Argentina in September 1965, and not in 1962 as widely reported and/or suggested by some distinguished authors.

2-Numerous Nazi leaders visited Hitler in Argentina from 1948 till 1965. Their names are revealed in a special section of the book.
3-American scientists did meet with Hitler in Argentina on two occasions.
4-A deal was signed or agreed upon between the United States government and Adolf Hitler, after World War Two in Argentina.
5-Powerful groups and people (Businessmen and officials from Germany, Great Britain and the United States) protected Hitler from 1945 to 1965.

I--Hitler did not commit suicide in the bunker

Creating a scenario which fits the story of the suicide of Hitler.

To prove that Hitler escaped from Berlin to Argentina, we must prove that the facts upon which the Allies based their conviction that Hitler killed himself in the bunker are bogus, as simple as that.

Essentially and basically, the Allies found in the report of the British Major Hugh Trevor-Roper who was asked by the United Kingdom to investigate the suicide of Hitler, what they needed to convince the world that Hitler committed suicide in his bunker. In fact, the UK ordered Trevor-Roper to come up with a report which denies the allegation of Stalin that Hitler has escaped, and that he is still alive, possibly in Argentina. Simply put, Trevor-Roper was not asked to investigate but to create…to create a scenario which fits the story of the suicide of Hitler.

Here are the facts:

Late in 1945, Hugh Trevor-Roper was appointed by the British Intelligence in Germany to fully investigate the death (Alleged suicide) of Adolf Hitler and the conflicting evidence surrounding his suicide and final days, and the Russians' claims about Hitler's escape.

The report/findings of Trevor-Roper were published in March 1947 in a book under the title "The Last Days of Hitler."

Based upon the book and the shaky conclusions/findings of Trevor-Roper, the media and the general public concluded that de facto Adolf Hitler has committed suicide, despite the fact that the dead body of Adolf Hitler was never found.

When Major Hugh Trevor-Roper arrived to the bunker:

1-The dead body of Hitler was nowhere to be found.

2-No fingerprints of Hitler were taken or found.

3-The leaked water from the upper level of the bunker covered a major part of the bunker, including Hitler's personal room.

4-Russian soldiers have already looted the place.

5-Female Russian soldiers went through what was left from Eva Braun's clothes; they stole her bras and perfumes bottles, ripped off two of her handbags and contaminated the whole area.

6-The supposedly blood of Hitler on the sofa was contaminated since both American and Russian soldiers touched the blood-stained area of the sofa, and two Russian soldiers sat exactly where allegedly Hitler sat and shot himself and were mimicking Hitler and trying to act like a Fuehrer.
7-The stained blood area was spoiled by Russian military boots.
8-Even one Russian soldier spit on the blood-stained spot. An eyewitness said that one Russian soldier urinated over Hitler's sofa.
9-In the earliest stage of Trevor-Roper's investigation, the generators were already destroyed, the electricity in the bunker was cut off and all the wires and electrical outlets were damaged, so Hugh Trevor-Roper had to investigate under the candlelight and flashlights.
10-Many items in Adolf Hitler's personal room were moved around, some thrown on the floor, others smashed, and many stolen.

Grosso modo, no meticulous forensic investigation was ever conducted by the Russians, the Americans and/or by Major Hugh Trevor-Roper.
And most certainly, Hugh Trevor-Roper's investigation was neither scientific nor professional. Despite his status in the espionage and intelligence community, he was not a seasoned forensic investigator.
Perhaps an alert interrogator, but definitely not an expert in forensic investigations. According to an article published in The Washington Post," Margaret Thatcher herself once made fun of Hugh Trevor-Roper.
After she asked him in public when she could expect his next book, he said he actually had one "on the stocks." She replied, "On the stocks? On the stocks? A fat lot of good that is! In the shops, that is where we need it!" (Statement taken from an article by Mr. Michael O'Donnell, "How a historian who reveled in destroying the reputations of others ruined his own." –From The Washington Post, January 2012.
Grosso modo, Major Hugh Trevor-Roper's report is a farce!

The problem (or problems) with Major Hugh Trevor-Roper's report

Major Hugh Trevor-Roper was never sincere, honest and objective; he was "hired" by the British not to investigate the death (Alleged suicide) of Adolf Hitler and the conflicting evidence surrounding his suicide and final days, as it seemed on the surface, but rather to confirm beyond the shadow of a doubt that de facto Adolf Hitler committed suicide in the bunker, thus saving the “face of the United Kingdom and the United States”, and removing any possible embarrassment caused to the British and to the Americans, and even to go an extra mile to discredit the claims of Stalin.

The Adolf Hitler’s suicide story was first told by few Nazis who remained in Hitler’s bunker until his alleged suicide.
Those Nazis claimed to be the witnesses of the events that occurred inside the bunker right before it was captured by the Russians (The Red Amy).
In other words, they are the first and only Nazis who saw with their own eyes “everything”, including what has happened to Adolf Hitler and Eva Braun in the bunker.
Many of those witnesses were not accessible to Major Trevor-Roper (These witnesses are the essential ones); he could not interview the essential witnesses because they were in Russian custody, such as:

- Gestapo Chief, General Mueller,
- SS Obergruppenfuhrer Johann Rattenhuber,

- SS Obersturmbannfuhrer Harry Mengershausen,
- SS Sturmbannfuhrer Otto Gunsche.

Nota Bene: Years after the end of the war, we learned that the most vital and important testimonies and accounts about Adolf Hitler’s alleged suicide were given by General Mueller, General Rattenhuber, Harry Mengershausen (Member of Adolf Hitler’s personal guard), and Gunsche to their Russian interrogators between 13 May and 20 May 1945, and Hugh Trevor-Roper had no access to the Russian interrogations files and dossiers.

In addition, none of the assumed major players in the cover-up such as Dr. Goebbels, Martin Bormann, General Krebs, General Wilhelm Emanuel Burgdorf, Lt. Colonel Franz Schadle, and Ewald Lindloff, were interviewed by Major Roper because they did not survive the war.
Thus, Roper’s interviews with Else Krueger, Gerda Christian, and Erich Kempka and the information he obtained from those interviews are neither complete nor authoritative, because these three witnesses, practically and basically knew nothing about what went on inside Hitler’s room. In addition, Major Trevor-Roper did not have full access to the British and American separate military interrogations of SS Hauptscharfuhrer Erich Mansfeld, and SS Unterfuhrer Hermann Karnau.

Even though, the British and American interrogations of Erich Kempka, Heinz Linge and Reichsjugendleiter Artur Axmann were of a major importance, and quite revealing and informative, these three witnesses were pressured from the beginning by their interrogators to admit that Hitler committed suicide.

From the testimony/statement of Erich Kempka

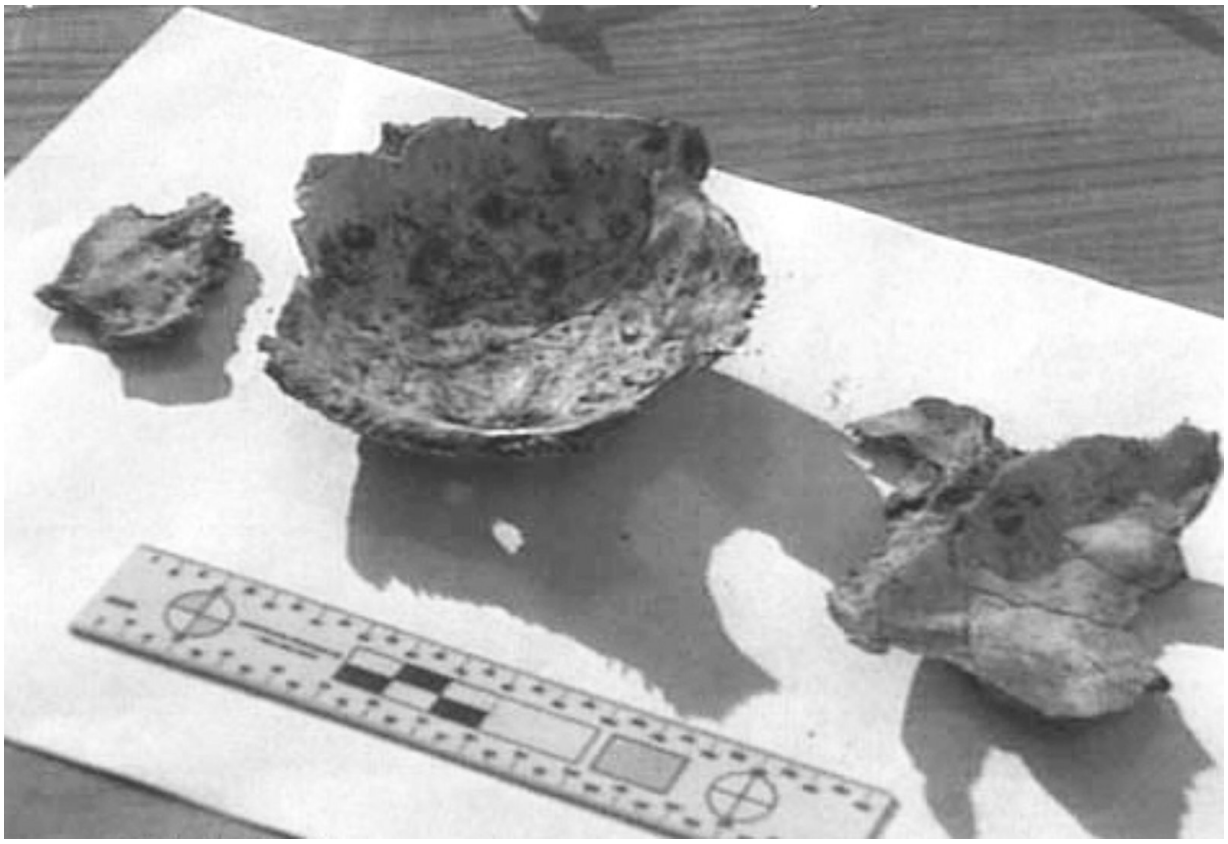

Kempka: “I told them (The interrogators) exactly what they wanted me to say…I told the Americans everything, exactly as things happened. They said fine, but you were in the bunker when Hitler shot himself. I said no, I wasn’t there.
They said yes you were inside the bunker. And I replied no I was not in the bunker.
Then a man in a civilian suit who was standing at the rear end of the room approached me and said with a cynical smile on his face, why don’t you make it easy on yourself and say you were in the bunker, this could help your situation a lot.
I did not fully understand what he meant.
Then the interrogator with a poker’s face said, just say that Hitler shot himself, and you will be OK. Do you want to be prosecuted?
Do you know what would happen to you, don’t you?
I felt the pressure. I knew then that I have to cooperate even if I have to lie.
And I said to him, yes, I was in the bunker. Then he added, and you heard the shot, right? I replied yes.
And he added, and you entered the room immediately and saw Hitler dead, correct? I said yes, correct. The man in civilian clothes said to me, “Bormann was not in the room of Adolf Hitler when you discovered the body of Hitler, right? Without thinking I replied yes.
The interrogator added, “Bormann was already dead…we know, we found his dead body near a bridge. He was shot in the head, shoulders and legs. You will say that! Wouldn’t you?” Yes, I will say that, what else you want to me say, I asked him.
He replied, “That would be sufficient.”
It was obvious to me that that some sort of a cover-up was in the making, but I had to cooperate; my life was on the line.”

For the record:
1-Major Hugh Trevor-Roper never conducted a forensic investigation to confirm the suicide of Adolf Hitler and to determine the cause of death of Hitler and Eva Braun, simply because the bodies of Hilter and Eva Braun were never found. Major Hugh Trevor-Roper had no physical evidence!

2-Major Trevor-Roper's report was based upon statements from Nazis who were extremely loyal to Adolf Hitler, and who took part in the cover-up of the suicide and escape of Hitler.
3-The statements of those Nazi and so-called witnesses of the suicide of Hitler were filled with contradictions and discrepancies.
4-Major Hugh Trevor-Roper put a strong emphasis on testimonies and accounts of witnesses and occupants of the bunker, rotating specifically around what went on inside the room of Hitler, the "crime scene"!
None of them was inside Hitler's room when he allegedly shot himself. Consequently, none of them could have known what de facto went on inside Hitler's room at the time of the shooting.
5-Major Hugh Trevor-Roper interviewed the wrong "so-called" witnesses of Hitler's suicide, because all of them stated publicly that they were neither inside Hitler's room nor near the room at the time of the shooting. For instance, he interviewed Gerda Christian, Hitler's secretary about the suicide of Hitler, who made it clear to him that she was neither inside the room nor nearby the room.
Borman's secretary, Else Krueger said the very same thing.
In fact, both secretaries testified that they heard about Hitler's suicide from other occupants of the bunker, and Hilter's aides such as Otto Guensche and Heinz Linge.
6-Major Hugh Trevor-Roper never tried –or possibly never wanted– to discern, to verify and to explain events' lack of veracity, events' correct time-occurrences, events' wrong time-occurrences, and the testimony/statement of Erich Kempka, especially striking contradictions in testimonies by witnesses he interrogated.

False Forensic Evidence

The remaining fragments from the skull of Adolf Hitler, according to the Russians.

Death of Hitler based upon a skull with a bullet hole in it.
Fragments from the skull of Hitler?

Really? Impossible!
This skull belongs to a young Russian woman, according to recent DNA analysis.
The Russians claimed that what you see above are the remaining fragments from the skull of Adolf Hitler.
They kept these remains for almost 60 years in a card box, in their state archives.

The alleged skull of Adolf Hitler, according to the Russians.

It is ironic and puzzling, for Stalin kept on claiming ad infinitum that Hitler has escaped from Germany.

How an intelligent person could possibly explain the Russian multiple versions and the denial of Stalin. Is it the skull of Hitler as claimed by the KGB and NKVD, or it is not, since Stalin have said so many times that Hitler has escaped from the bunker, either to Spain or to Argentina?

The Russians can’t have it both ways!!

The Russians never ever produced or released photos of the alleged dead and burned bodies of Adolf Hitler and Eva Braun!

So, where is the proof that Hitler committed suicide?

None whatsoever!

History or legend has it that Adolf Hitler committed suicide by gunshot on Monday, April 30, 1945 in his führerbunker in Berlin. A small fragment from his skull with a bullet hole in it, which was kept in the Russian KGB and NKBD secret archives, seemed enough to convince many military historians that de facto, Hitler shot himself.

For years, everybody believed that Hitler was 6 foot under.

But, recent DNA meticulous study of the alleged skull revealed that it couldn't be Hitler's skull, simply because it belonged to a young Russian woman!!

From the Guardian and the Observer:
The Guardian and the Observer stated (A Headline): "Tests on skull fragment cast doubt on Adolf Hitler suicide story. Bone with bullet hole found by Russians in 1946 came from an unknown woman, not the German leader."

The Guardian added, "Some historians expressed doubt that the Führer had shot himself, speculating that accounts of Hitler's death had been embellished to present his suicide in a suitably heroic light.
But a fragment of skull, complete with bullet hole, which was taken from the bunker by the Russians and displayed in Moscow in 2000, appeared to settle the argument.
American researchers claim to have demonstrated that the skull fragment, secretly preserved for decades by Soviet intelligence, belonged to a Russian woman under 40, whose identity is unknown.
DNA analyses performed on the bone, now held by the Russian State Archive in Moscow, have been processed at the genetics lab of the University of Connecticut.
The results, broadcast in the US by a History Channel documentary, Hitler's Escape , astonished scientists." According to Connecticut archaeologist and bone specialist Nick Bellantoni, it was clear from the outset that something was amiss.
The bone seemed very thin; male bone tends to be more robust," he said. "And the sutures where the skull plates come together seemed to correspond to someone under 40."

Excerpts from the Associated Press by Pat Eaton-Robb.
Headline: Scientists: Skull piece that Russian officials say came from Hitler's body actually from woman.
A piece of skull with a bullet hole through it that Russian officials claimed belonged to Adolf Hitler actually came from a woman, scientists at the University of Connecticut concluded.

Connecticut archaeologist Nick Bellantoni was asked to examine the skull and blood samples for a History Channel documentary on Hitler's death that aired this month.

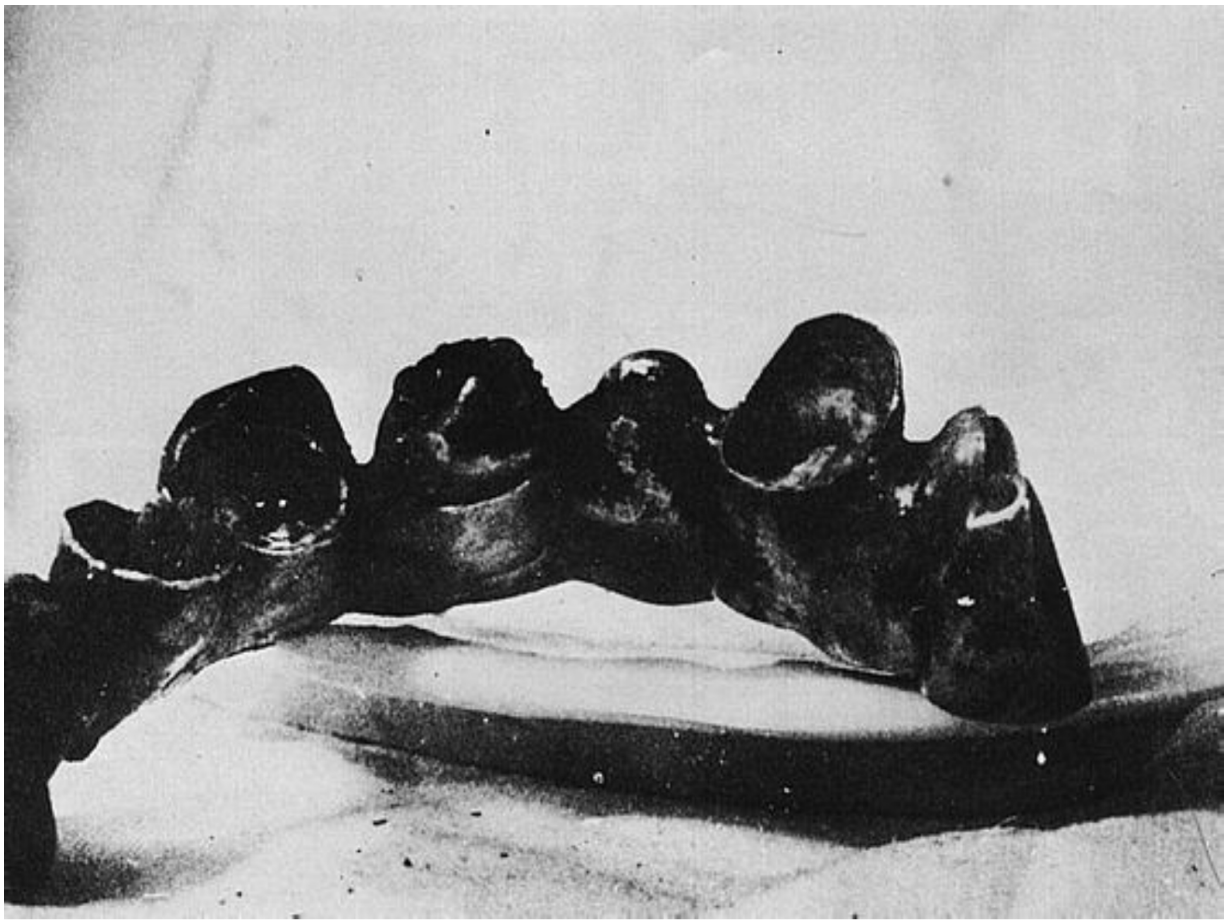

Bellantoni said his initial forensic exam of the skull fragment showed it didn't match what he knew of Hitler's biology. “The bone was very small and thin, and normally male bones are much more robust in our species,” Bellantoni said Tuesday. “I thought it probably came from a woman or a younger man.” Bellantoni then took several pinhead-size pieces of the skull fragment and swabs of the blood stains back to the university for analysis.

Linda Strausbaugh, a professor of molecular and cell biology, got help from two former students who work in the New York City medical examiner's office. The former students, Craig O'Connor and Heather Nelson, are experts in working with challenging DNA samples and were able to extract enough DNA from the bone pieces to do a forensic study, Strausbaugh said.

She said they determined that the DNA came from a 20-to 40-year-old woman. The skull fragment could have come from Braun, but to know that, the lab would need samples of her DNA, she said. Also, the DNA samples were very degraded, making identification unlikely, Strausbaugh said.

Witnesses never reported Braun being shot in the head, Bellantoni said, and she is thought to have died of cyanide poisoning. “This person, with a bullet hole coming out the back of the head, would have been shot in the face, in the mouth or underneath the chin,” he said. “It would have been hard for them to miss that.”

Hitler’s Corpse False Teeth.

Part from Adolf Hitler's upper teeth in 1945, as produced to the world by the Russians . Hitler's false teeth were hidden in the secret files of the NKVD and KGB for decades. Finally, in 1992, the Russians released the files on Hitler's teeth and were made accessible to scientists and historians.

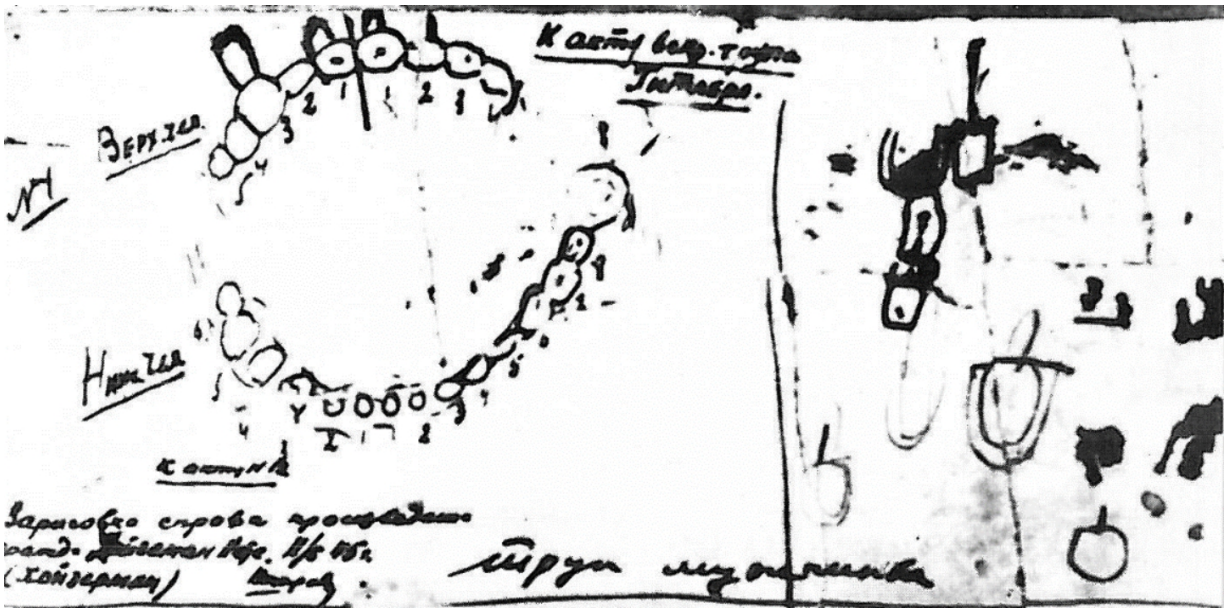

General Muller on Hitler's teeth and creation of false dental records.

Muller stated, "Goebbels had already decided what to do with the doubles, after the escape of Hitler. I did not approve. But he was in charge. Yes, I did talk to Hitler in the Chancellery's garden about the fate of his double, he laughed and said, this would confuse Stalin…It was not my idea to eliminate the doubles. Dr. Goebbels insisted that all the doubles must die including those we did not use.

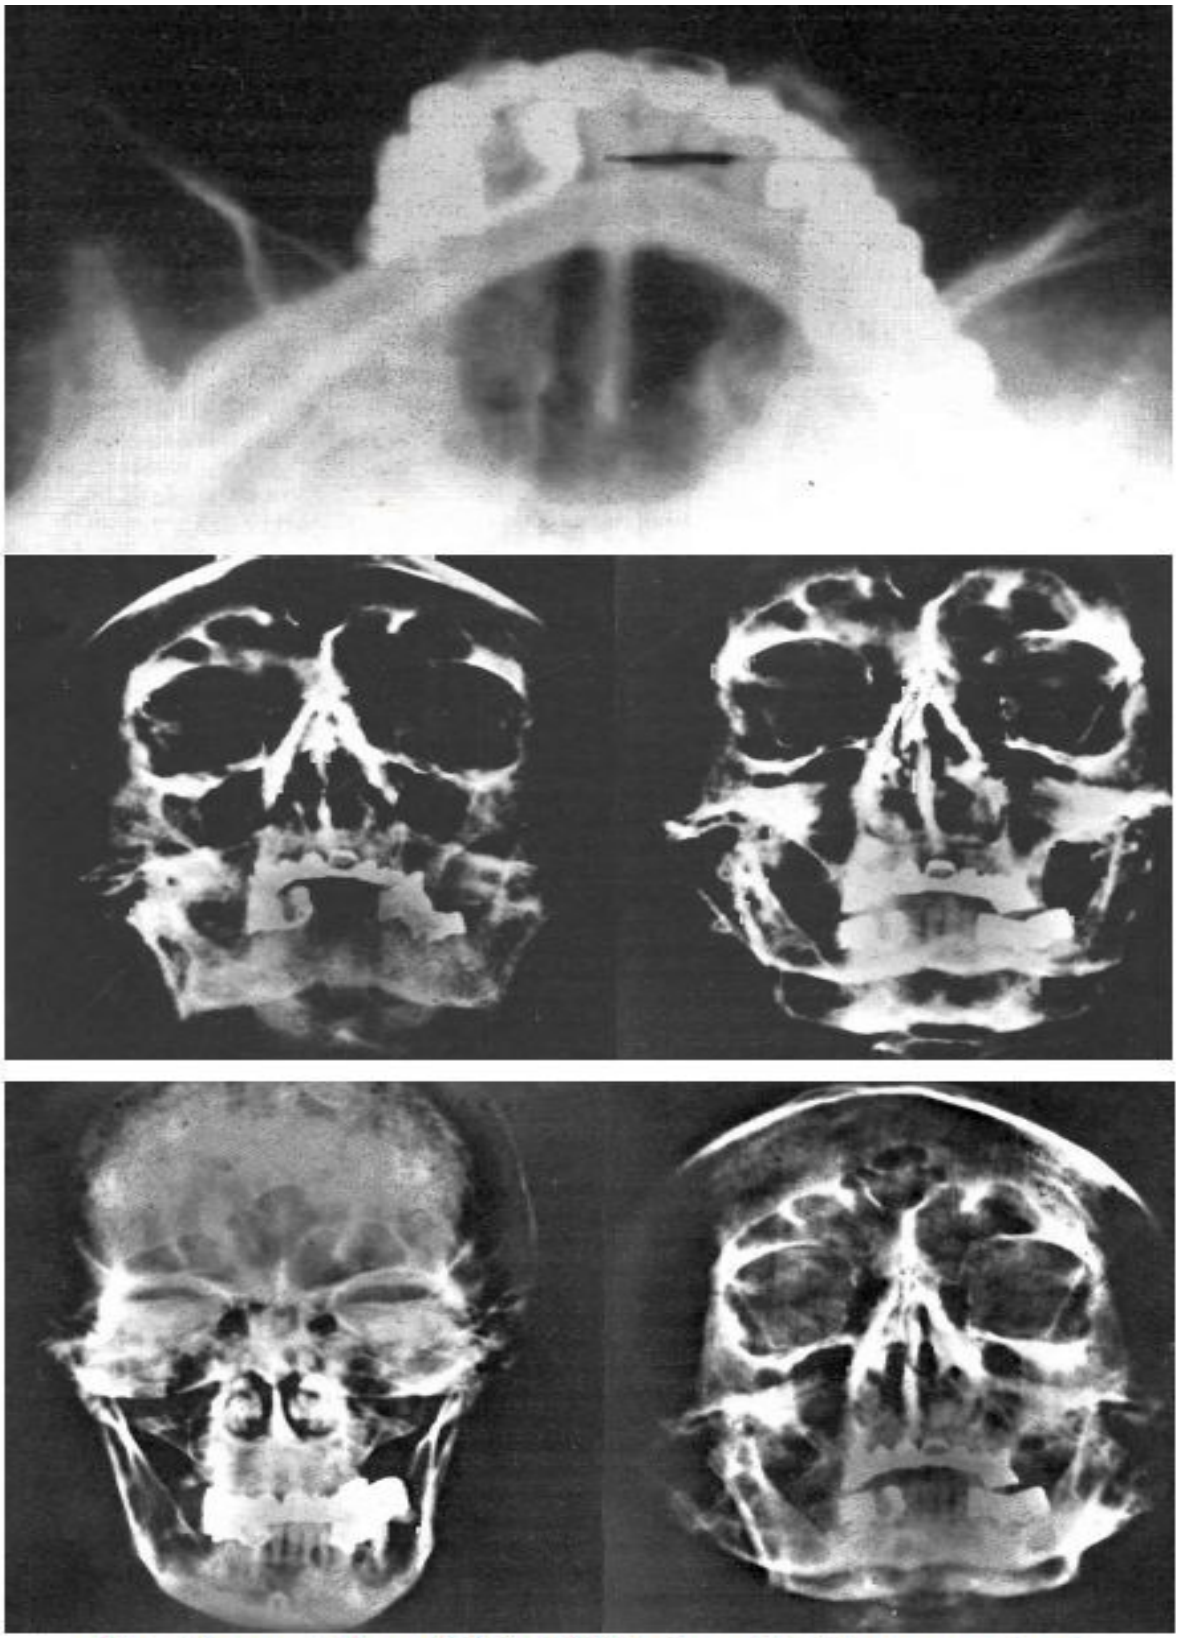

Bormann approved. Goebbels was concerned with two things, the faces and the teeth of the doubles.

He wanted everything to be perfect and remove any suspicions from the heads of the Russians.

He knew the Russians will try to identify the dead bodies from dental records, so he decided to fake dental records, replace some records with other records he could obtain from SS military clinics…even break their spines, exactly where the spine of Hitler was broken when he was injured in World War One.”

Dr. Heusermann’s sketch of Adolf Hitler’s teeth, on May 11, 1945.

Five X-ray plates of Adolf Hitler found in the records of Dr. Morell, Hitler's personal physician.

Upon an order from the Americans, Dr. Hugo Blaschke, Hitler's dentist prepared descriptions and diagrams of the dental condition of Adolf Hitler, which included teeth that were present, restored, decayed, extracted, replaced, and lost, including all porcelain fillings, as well as diagrammatic profile of the teeth from the buccal and the labial aspects of both the upper and lower jaws. He did, but he wrote his notes from memory.

See on the next page: Copy of page 1 summarizing the notes written by Dr. Hugo Blaschke on Hitler's teeth. From the files of the United States Forces European Theater. Military Intelligence Service Center, APO 757.

The Russians got the burned body of a person they first assumed was the charred body of Adolf Hitler, even though the NKVD initial military investigators and Stalin knew very well that Hitler had escaped from his bunker.
Despite this charade and lack of any forensic evidence, the Russians tried to find “something”, by examining the teeth of the burned body. They hoped against all odds that the teeth could or would identify the body of Hitler.
But they were facing a major problem. They did not have any pertinent dental record (s).
Besides, they were unable to find Dr. Hugo Blaschke. So, what they did was the following, in a chronological order:

What the Russians did:
●a-They removed the lower jaw and what was left from the bridge.
●b-They began to look for Adolf Hitler’s dentist, whom they discovered was Dr. Hugo Blaschke, but could not interrogate him, for he was already in the Americans’ custody. (He was captured in Salzburg on May 28, 1945).
●c-They raided on Dr. Blaschke’s clinic, hoping to find Hitler’s dental records , and again, no records were found, simply because Adolf Hitler, from his first visit to his dentist, issued an order to confiscate all his medical and dental records and to keep them in his personal files at the Chancellery.
Destroying Hitler’s personal papers and files is a historical fact; SS Captain Schwaegermann burned the room/study of Adolf Hitler in his bunker and destroyed Hitler’s files according to Hitler’s bunker technician Hentschel, and upon a direct order from SS General Mohnke.
Julius Schaub, Hitler’s adjutant and chief aide was ordered by Adolf Hitler to burn all his personal papers and personal belongings from the bunker and the Reichskanzlei.
As to hiding or destroying medical records, this was a “standard practice”, a Hitler’s typical habit to remove his medical records and pertinent documents from all the clinics and hospitals he visited. This is a fact which was later documented by General Mueller.

ANNEX I

TREATMENTS OF HITLER

Source: BLASCHKE, Dr Hugo Johannes Position: Brig Gen in Waffen SS, Hitler's dentist

(NOTE: The following is a translation of notes written for this report by BLASCHKE, giving Hitler's abridged case history as a dental patient in the years 1934 to 1945.)

"In the beginning of the year 1934 I was, at the instance of the then (Prussian) Prime Minister GOERING, called to the Reich Chancellery. I was told that Adolf Hitler had a toothache. Upon examination I found a swelling of the gingiva of the left lower jaw, extending from the left central incisor to the left cuspid. The lower left lateral incisor had at its distal end a cavity which extended as far as the pulp cavity. The pulp was dead and the tooth sensitive to pressure. All lower incisors, especially the ones on the left, were very loose.

"The pains could be caused either by an abscess in the area of the root-tips or by an abscess in the gingival pocket of the lower left lateral incisor.

"After opening of the root canal and removal of an abundance of tartar the pains soon decreased in intensity and disappeared completely over night.

"During the following days--besides the treatment of the root of the lower left lateral incisor--tartar was thoroughly. The gingivitis healed and the teeth became steadier and again fit for use. The treatment of the root took a normal course. The tooth was filled with iodoform-paste (ailkhoff) and temporarily closed...

"In the upper jaw much more extensive work was necessary. There existed on either side bridges which were connected by an arch behind the left incisors. Three fourths of the upper left lateral incisor was broken off. The arch connecting the two bridges caused annoyance because food particles got caught in it easily. The gingiva had receded considerably from the edges of the existing gold crowns, so that the necks of the teeth were exposed. Caries had started at some of these points.

"The old bridges had to be removed and replaced. As the upper right central incisor was already absent and replaced by part of the bridge and as, in addition, the lateral incisor was 3/4 broken off, the gaps would have impeded speech. Hitler refused a temporary replacement through a removable dental plate for the period of manufacture (of the new replacements). It was then possible to remove both bridges in their entirety. They were taken out at each sitting and temporarily fastened again afterward. The root of the upper left lateral incisor, which had to be completely removed for the fitting-on of the new crown, received a temporary pivot-tooth.

Report of Dr. Hugo Johannes Blaschke on the teeth of Hitler.

Dr. Ryder Saguenay on the Canadian CBC television show “As It Happens”.

On September 17, 1974, on the Canadian CBC television show “As It Happens” Dr. Ryder Saguenay, oral surgeon and professor at the University of California at Los Angeles, said, “Adolf Hitler ordered a special plane to leave from Berlin carrying all the medical and dental records, and especially the X-rays of all the top Nazis to an unknown destination.”

In one of his statements, Dr. Ryder Saguenay said that “The dental records used to identify Hitler's corpse were drawn from memory by Dr. Hugo Blaschke’s dental assistant, who was pressured by the Russians to identify the corpse’s teeth and jaws, and this assistant was later killed by the Russians.”

Dr. Hugo Blaschke, Hitler’s dentist told his military interrogators in 1945, “This plane never arrived at Salzburg, and from the Obersalzberg it could never be ascertained what had become of it.”

Hitler’s personal physician, Dr. Theodor Morell confirmed the story of Dr. Hugo Blaschke.

More on this on the following pages.

d-Searching for Dr. Hugo Blaschke‘s assistants:

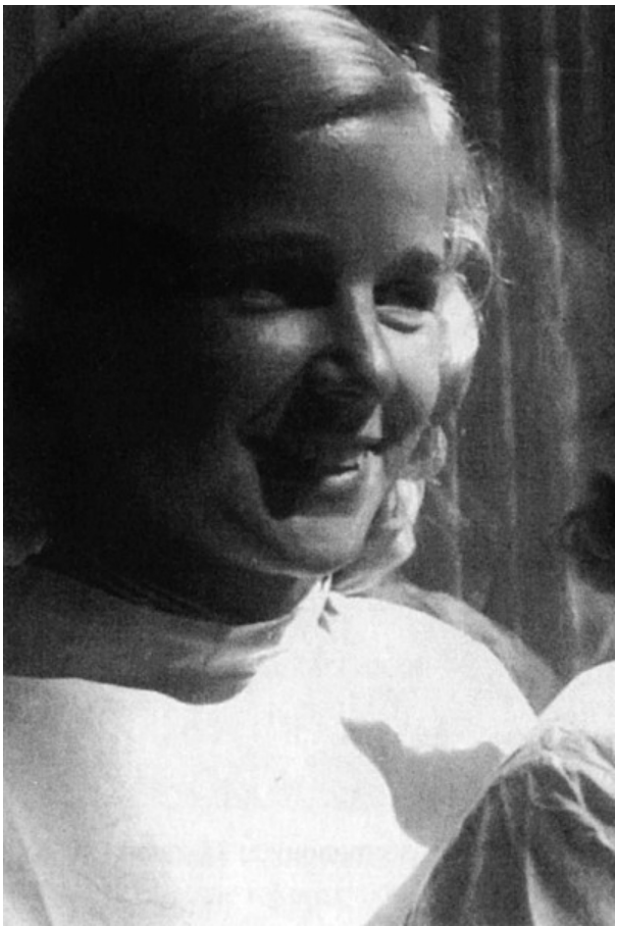

Upon learning that Dr. Hugo Blaschke was in the custody of the Americans, the Russians began to search for his assistants, who apparently did some minor work on Hitler’s teeth.

And they found two: Kate (Kaethe) Hausermann and Fritz Echtmann.

e-The Russians ordered Kaethe Hausermann to identify the teeth and jaws of the corpse, and to sketch Hitler’s dental work (Teeth) from memory, and which they did. But her sketches were very different from the notes and sketches of Dr. Blaschke, the dentist she worked for.

Dr. Theodor Morell, Hitler’s physician.

f-Falsely claiming that they have found Hitler's dental records.

Upon the completion of Kaethe Hausermann's sketches of the assumed Hitler's teeth and dental work, the Russians falsely claimed that they have found Hitler's dental records in Dr. Hugo Blaschke's clinic, despite the fact that no dental records were ever found, and their knowledge of General Mueller's destruction of Hitler's medical and dental records.

Part of the Russian claim was based upon a telegram they received from General Donovan, then head of the OSS, dated July 28, 1945, which contained Dr. Hugo Blaschke's notes and description of Adolf Hitler's teeth.

The big problem with the teeth/jaws identification.

Both Americans and Russians faced un fait accompli ; no solid forensic evidence (s).

● 1-The Russians got the body (and the teeth) and captured two technical assistants who worked at Dr. H. Blaschke's clinic but did not have the dental records of Hitler.

The Americans got Dr. H. Blaschke, but no dental records were ever found, because they were already destroyed.

● 2-Dr. Hugo Blaschke on the American side reconstructed Hitler's dental records from memory, and on the Russian side, Dr. Hugo Blaschke's assistants also reconstructed Hitler's dental records from memory.

The Americans and the Russians had no postmortem and ante-mortem data for dental comparison.

The 1945 Russian autopsy of the burned body (Assumingly Hitler's body) lacked ante-mortem dental evidence and scientific-forensic comparison data related to an absolute and irrefutable postmortem identification of Adolf Hitler.

Some have claimed that the United States files on the 1945 interrogations of Dr. Hugo Blaschke, which can be found in the Captured Records Branch of the United States National Archives and Records Service in Washington, D.C., and the five authenticated X Ray plates of Hitler's head and jaws taken right after the assassination attempt of Hitler in 1944, proved beyond the shadow of a doubt that the skull, the jaws and the teeth believed to be those of Hitler are Not the remains of Adolf Hitler.

This could be factual to a certain degree, but according to Dr. Hugo Blaschke, the dental records of Adolf Hitler have disappeared from the face of the Earth before the end of World War Two.

He is convinced that General Mueller got hold of the dental records, as well as other medical records pertaining to Adolf Hitler.

In his interrogations by the Americans, Dr. Blaschke stated that on April 20 or 21, 1945, in the Chancellery in Berlin, he was ordered to pack and leave with "minimum baggage" in less than one hour.

He told his interrogators, "I was helped in packing the little portable dental station which I wanted to take with me by my dental helper Mrs. Kaethe Heusermann and my assistant Dr. Rohkamm…my baggage was then supposed to be sent from Tempelfof field to Salzburg in a transport plane carrying baggage exclusively.

This plane never arrived at Salzburg, and from the Obersalzberg it could never be ascertained what had become of it."

Hitler's personal physician, Dr. Theodor Morell confirmed the story of Dr. Hugo Blaschke during his interrogations by the Americans. In a top-secret addendum to OI FIR (Final Interrogation Report) 31 and 32, which was still available in 1945 and 1946, and which disappeared in late 1946, Dr. Blaschke told his military interrogators, "I can't for sure identify the teeth of Hitler from other medical reports. I am sure the Russians don't have the teeth and jaws of Hitler.
First, they don't match my recollection (Note: Here the lines are not clear) of… and second, it would be impossible for my assistants to identify and match what the Russians claim to have, simply because they did not work on Hitler's teeth…"

Dr. Robert Dorian's report:
According to Dr. Robert Dorian, an authority in the field, and Director of Forensic Dentistry for the Ministry of the Solicitor General of Quebec, in Montreal, Canada, who examined the notes of Blaschke and his assistants, and meticulously compared the photos of Hitler corpse's teeth and jaw with numerous close-up open-mouthed photos of Hitler's taken throughout his life, concluded that there are enormous differences between the photos of the corpse's teeth/jaws and previous open-mouthed photos of Hitler.

Dr. R. Dorian confirmed that Adolf Hitler had a root canal and a porcelain tooth.
The photos of the corpse's teeth/jaws found in the Russian files did not show up a root canal and a porcelain tooth. He also noticed that the corpse had a lower bridge work very different from the bridge work Hitler had before his alleged suicide. Thus, he concluded that the jaws and teeth of the corpse did not match Adolf Hitler's previous photos he carefully examined. This statement was confirmed by Dr. Hugo Blaschke when he told his military interrogators that he did not install (Himself) the two lowers bridges.

Dr. Blaschke added that he performed a root canal, while the Russian photo of the corpse did not reveal any root canal.

Dr. Erwin Giesing's report:

In November 1971, Dr. Erwin Giesing who treated Adolf Hitler's shattered eardrums caused by the bomb plot, stated publicly that Adolf Hitler's teeth X-ray pictures were totally and entirely different from the X ray plates allegedly taken by the Russians during the autopsy of Hitler's corpse in Moscow.

And he concluded that the medical reports, the X ray plates and the findings of the corpse's autopsy were a fake! In other words, Dr. Giesing denounced the Soviet odontology report of Hitler's teeth.

So, what do we have here?

1-Teeth which did not belong to Hitler.

2-Not the skull of Hitler, but the skull of a young Russian woman.

3-No credible and scientific investigation of the alleged suicide of Hitler.

4-The body of Hitler was never found by the Allies.

5-No photos of the dead body of Hitler.

5-No eyewitnesses which saw Hitler killing himself.

In brief, nothing to indicate that Adolf Hitler committed suicide in the bunker.

So, now we can proceed with our account of the escape of Hitler from Berlin to Argentina.

II--Synopsis of Hitler's escape

The most likely scenario on when and how Hitler escaped from Berlin.

The most likely scenario on when and how Hitler escaped from Berlin is hereby provided, and based partially upon:

1-Claims by pilot Hanna Reitsch, even though she never admitted her participation publicly.

2-My interview with Leni Riefenstahl.

3-General Mueller's account; more precisely, selected segments from his account, testimonies and interrogations.

4-An account allegedly given by Eva Braun's brother-in-law, General Hermann Fegelein to Rodolfo Freude.

5-The files of Rodolfo Freude.

Hitler's Escape from Berlin
The most likely and logical scenario on when and how Hitler escaped from Berlin.

Day and hour of the escape:

On April 28, 1945 around midnight, Hitler, Eva Braun and her brother-in law General Fegelein left the bunker from the secret passage/tunnel connecting the bunker to U-Bahn (Berlin's underground railway system). From his room in the bunker, Hitler had a direct access to a secret passage leading to the outside of the bunker. The passage which served as an exit tunnel could be reached through a doorway hidden behind a panel of solid concrete, near a bookcase inside the study of Adolf Hitler, designed by Albert Speer.

Phase 1: Outside the tunnel/U-Bahn.
To Hohenzollerndamm in Wilmersdorf.

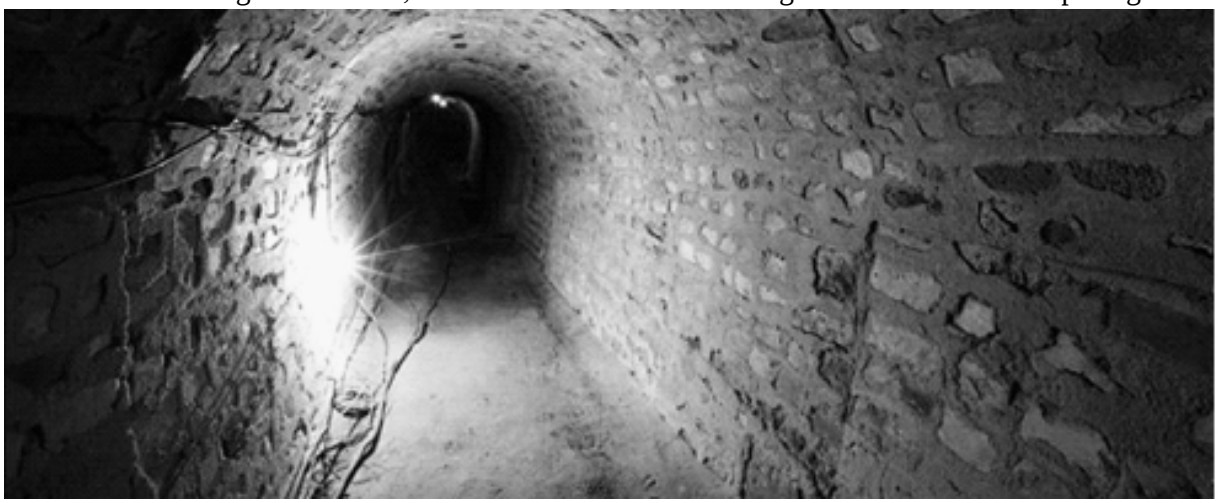

1-Two SS officers, approximately a dozen of SS guards, a transport car (a military Mercedes), with at least two tanks were already placed at their disposal for security, and transportation purposes outside the tunnel at a close point of the U-Bahn.
Adolf Hitler, Eva Braun, and General Fegelein were later joined by a small group of armored personnel (12 soldiers), and 2 Panzers, and headed toward a wide boulevard at Hohenzollerndamm located in Wilmersdorf section of southwest Berlin, which was previously chosen by Martin Bormann and General Fegelein.
2-At Hohenzollerndamm, a Ju 52 flown by Peter Baumgart landed per a direct order from Martin Bormann.

Phase 2: From Hohenzollerndamm to a Nazi base in the Baltic Sea.

●1-Hitler, Eva Braun, and General Fegelein boarded the Ju 52 en route to a Nazi base in the Baltic Sea.
General Dr. Han Kammler who was expected to join them, missed the rendez vous, for he arrived too late at the base.

Berlin’s underground tunnel, from “Bunker: Die Letzten Tage.” Below: The secret passage.

Later on, he flew a Vril (The same Vril which took off from Poland) non-stop to Argentina to an undisclosed destination. Kammler's non-stop trip was confirmed by:

a-Nazi scientist Dr. Richard Miethe who after the war worked as a scientist at Avro Car in Canada, and later on was recruited by an intelligence agency in the United States.

b-Dr. W. Otto Schumann, professor at Munich Technical University who after the war was recruited by Dr. von Braun via Operation Paperclip, and worked for NASA.

c-German pilot Kurt Tank, who after the war relocated to Argentina, and produced for Juan Peron two highly advanced jet aircrafts, which reached a speed of 1,000 kilometers per hour, and later the IA 58 Pucara and the IA 63 Pampa.

d-Lt. Colonel Reimar Horten, co-inventor of the Horten 229 (Wing-jet) which flew in a formation of nine crafts over Washington State on June 24, 1947 and was spotted and reported by Kenneth Arnold, who reportedly said "they flew like a saucer would."

Similar formation hovered for three minutes over a Canadian military airbase in North Bay, Ontario, and flew over Washington, DC in April 1952. Based upon the Horten's 229 blueprints, the United States developed its stealth bomber. A replica of Horten 229 was reproduced by engineers from Northrop Grumman in late 2008, and teamed up with the San Diego Air and Space Museum, and National Geographic Channel.

● 2-Hanna Reitsch was waiting for the arrival of Hitler, Eva Braun, and General Fegelein at the Baltic Sea's base as instructed by Admiral Doenitz.

●3-Reitsch attempted to fly Orsic's Vril en route (Direct, non-stop flight) to Spain. But she failed to control the craft. Hitler ordered her to land immediately as reported by Dr. W. Otto Schumann and Leni Riefenstahl. Another Vril was used as a decoy but it crashed in the Baltic Sea.

Lt. Colonel Reimar Horten and his brother Lt. Colonel Walter Reimar.

Phase 3: From the Nazi base in the Baltic Sea to Tonder in Denmark.

An experienced Luftwaffe pilot stationed at the base, flew them out of the base to Tonder in Denmark. This trip was deemed necessary, for they needed a long-range airplane for their flight to Spain.

Phase 4: From Tonder to Spain.

From Tonder they flew to the Reus military Base, not far away from Barcelona in Spain.

Phase 5: From Reus to Fuerteventura.

From Reus Base they flew to Fuerteventura in the Canary Islands, where 3 U-Boats were awaiting the arrival of Hitler et al. Adolf Hitler and Eva Braun spent a whole day at Fuerteventura, while Fegelein left the area without delay on board a U-boat (Possibly U-530, or a U-880 but not certain).

General Fegelein had to leave earlier for he had to prepare the arrival of Hitler and Eva Braun, arrange for clandestine transportation, and provide adequate security/protection for his master and his wife.

Phase 6: From Fuerteventura to Argentina.

From Fuerteventura, Adolf Hitler and Eva Braun went onboard U-boat U977 en route to Argentina. A second U-boat U-530 was used as a decoy.
Some insiders have claimed that "a third U-Boat was added to the voyage, and 6 additional U-Boats reached the shores of Argentina."
Martin Bormann was a meticulous and an extraordinary planner. Each phase of Hitler's escape was designed and coordinated by Bormann. As the major architect of Hitler's escape, Martin Bormann had two things on his mind: safety and camouflage. The safety of his master could be achieved by providing adequate means of transportation.
Don't ever believe that Hitler and his party simply boarded a U-Boat, and boom, sailed into the direction of Argentina.
The journey of Hitler was much more sophisticated; it was extremely synchronized, well-planned, and perfectly accomplished.
For Martin Bormann, the deployment of long range U-Boats was the only way and means of transportation, which could carry Hitler to the shores of Argentina. Thus, three months before the escape of Hitler began, Bormann had already dispatched three U-Boats to the Canary Islands. And as soon as Hitler reached the Islands, three additional U-Boats joined in. Bormann needed a solid and effective convoy, in case the Allies could discover the plot and send their U-Boats and destroyers to intercept or to attack Adolf Hitler's convoy. Henceforth, one or two U-Boats would not be sufficient to guarantee the safety of Adolf Hitler.
By the time Adolf Hitler, Eva Braun and General Fegelein reached Fuerteventura in the Canary Islands, 6 long range U-Boats were awaiting their arrival. One of the most characteristic features of the escape's maneuvers is the fact that none of the U-Boats had a serial number, and this of course was intentional for three reasons:
Reason one: Bormann was determined not to leave any trace or any evidence which could link Hitler's escape to the deployed U-Boats. By erasing their serial numbers, no one could identify any of the U-Boats.
Reason two: Unnumbered U-boats would create a massive confusion, in case any attempt is made to identify and locate the U-Boats. The identification and locating the U-Boats would become virtually impossible. And as a result, none of the U-Boats skippers will ever be identified, and later on interrogated or questioned.

Reason three: Bormann promised Peron that the 9 U-Boats (Which later would arrive to Argentina) will be given as a gift to Argentina. We are absolutely sure that de facto the U-Boats were given to the Argentinean navy and hidden from the Allies for almost 12 months from the time they reached Argentina's coast, and 1 U-Boat Peron sold to Chile.

In addition, three separate long-range U-Boats were en route to Argentina, three days before Adolf Hitler et al left Fuerteventura. Thus, we have here a "solid and effective" (As described by Bormann to General Mueller) 9 U-Boats convoy capable of facing and countering any Allies' attack in the Atlantic Ocean (to a certain degree of course).

Only one U-Boat captain knew that Hitler was onboard; none of the remaining eight captains had a clue.

This was deemed necessary for an extra layer of safety. In case rumors begin to circulate about Hitler's escape in a U-Boat, and the remaining eight captains were arrested and interrogated by the Allies (Possibly only by American interrogators), none of the U-Boats captains would be able to provide any information about Hitler's escape.

To this day, we are not sure who were –the real– captains of the U-Boats, even though four of them were questioned for three long days and three long nights by the Americans and occasionally by the Argentineans.

Martin Bormann's safety's strategy/tactics encompassed the following

- 1-Let a convoy of three subs sail first and serve as scouts. They will leave Fuerteventura three days earlier and will later decrease their speed to allow the six remaining U-Boats to rejoin them.
- 2-A convoy of six subs will join them; one of the U-Boats is carrying Hitler, Eva Braun, and General Fegelein.
- 3-The nine U-Boats will arrive at two different but close locations on the Argentinean coast, in order to add more confusion and incertitude about the exact landings of the U-Boats.
- 4-A certain number of U-Boats will surrender to the Argentinean authorities at Mar Del Plata, thus camouflaging the original/first landing of the U-Boats, and cutting all ties with the U-Boat which transported Hitler et al.

And it worked like a charm!

Local Argentinean police reports on German U-Boats sightings and landing at 2 different locations, the personal notes of Admiral Hector Lima, then, chief of staff of Argentina's navy, and the accounts of Rodolfo Freude who served as the director of the Division de Informaciones of President Peron, proved beyond the shadow of a doubt, that numerous German U-Boats reached various locations of Argentina's coast before and during the landing of Hitler and Eva Braun; a period which extended from early July 1945 to the end of July 1945.

Note about the U-530 which reached Mar del Plata.

The U-530 at Mar del Plata in 1945.

The U-530 arrived in Argentina on July 10, 1945. None of the crew of the submarine, including the captain had any identification; no ID and no pertinent manifesto. And the sub's logs were missing.

Captain Heinz Schaeffer, Captain of the “U-977”.

In 1972, Leni Riefenstahl said to me, “Walter Reinmar told me that Heinz Schaeffer, the Captain of the U-977 which was stationed in the Baltic Sea took Adolf Hitler and Eva Braun to Argentina.” She added, “It took them almost 2 months to reach Argentina.

Note: On a separate occasion, Leni said, it took them more than 2 months.

They manage to escape with the help of a very powerful British Lord and the American military high command. From Argentina, they went to a military base in the Antarctic.”

Note: I don’t believe that Adolf Hitler went right away to the Nazi military colony in Antarctica.

After the war, Schaeffer was recruited by the Americans.

Worth mentioning here that Captain Heinz Schaeffer was questioned by the Argentinian and American authorities and was released short after. According to Rodolfo Freude and Argentinian secret police files, Schaeffer was recruited by the CIA, and became a double agent working for both the CIA and SIDE.

The legendary U Boat 977.

The U 977 when it reached Mar Del Plata in Argentina after approximately 65-69 days at sea; a world record for a submarine! Some have claimed that it took the U-Boat 2 months to reach Argentina.

III--Adolf Hitler and Eva Braun in Argentina

General Fegelein reached the shores of Argentina:
On the 23rd of July, 1945, General Hermann Fegelein reached the shores of Argentina. Very early in the morning, he headed to Mar del Plata.
At Mar, Rodolfo Freude provided Fegelein with an aerial transport to an estate located on the Argentinean coast not very far from Mar del Plata, reportedly owned by Nazis, who were expecting his arrival. It was reported that at the shore of this very estate, Hitler et al landed with huge metallic boxes and trunks loaded with money and treasures.

Hitler and Eva Braun landed in Argentina:
On the 28th of July 1945, around 2:00 AM, Adolf Hitler and Eva Braun landed on the Argentinean coast, at a location designated by General Hermann Fegelein.
General Fegelein met with Adolf Hitler and Eva Braun, and right away transported them to their final destination: Bariloche.
Adolf Hitler, his wife Eva and General Hermann Fegelein rendez vous became a fait accompli.

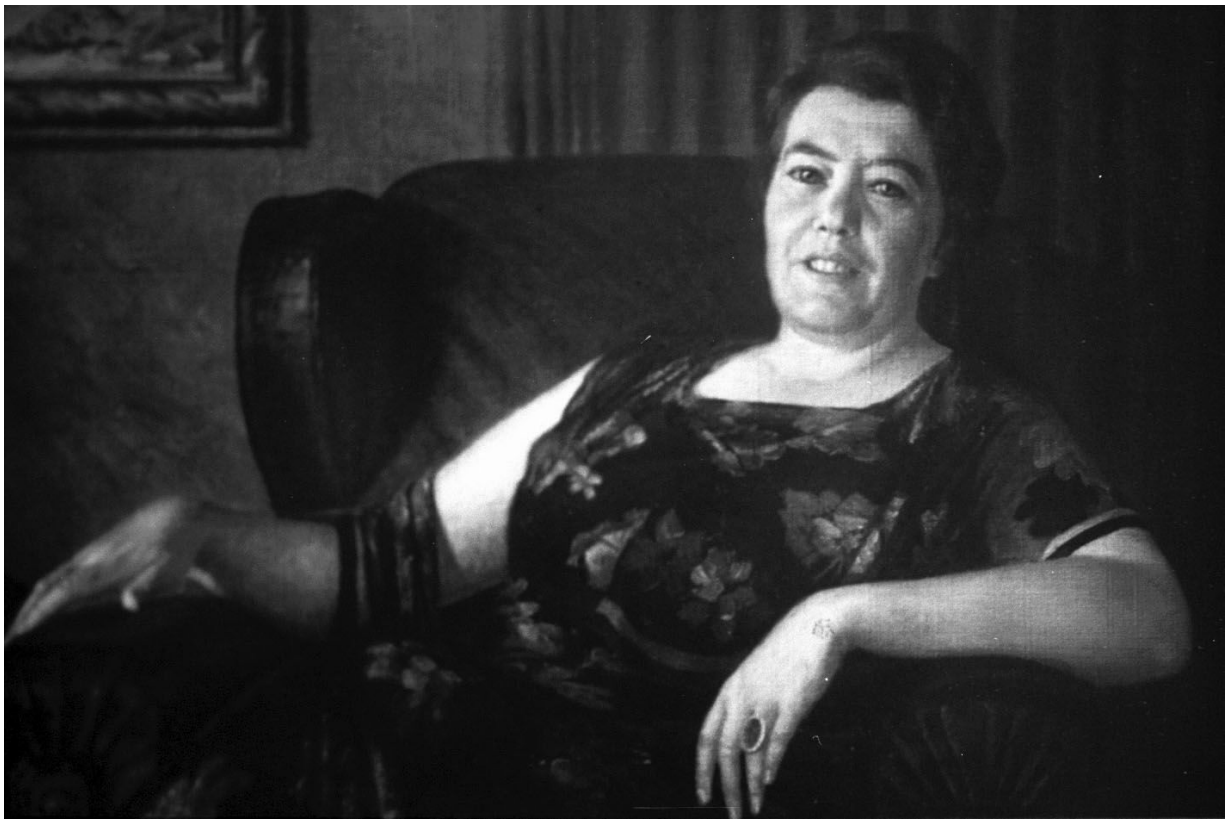

Waiting ashore, in the background:

- Rodolfo Freude.
- Two agents from Argentina's SIDE, to prevent any interference by the local police.
- Approximately twenty five SS.
- An envoy of Mrs. Ida Eichhorn and her husband Walter Eichhorn, owners of Eden Hotel in La Falda in Cordoba, Argentina. Mrs. Ida Eichhorn was a close friend to Adolf Hitler, and who according to John Edgar Hoover, then, Director of the FBI, she is "A reputable member of Argentine's society, and proprietor of the largest spa hotel in La Falda, Argentina."-From Hoover's letter dated November 13, 1945 addressed to the American Embassy in Buenos Aires, Argentina.

- An envoy of Count Luxburg.

Mrs. Ida Eichhorn

Worth mentioning here, that for their “services”:

- President Juan Peron received the following sums:
- 15 million US Dollars (First installment).
- 8 million US Dollars (Second installment).
- 25 million US Dollars (Third installment) deposited in Peron’s bank account in Banco di Santo Spirito, Italy.
- Eva Peron received 3 million US Dollars.
- Two agents from SIDE were paid 10 thousand US Dollars (Each one) in cash to keep their mouth shut.

Note: It was based upon information contained in the Irgun and Mossad’s files that former members of the Israeli Irgun and secret operatives from Mossad in Argentina, Peru, Venezuela, Chile, and Israel got their orders to kidnap Hitler during one of his rare visits to a small village located nearby Chilean borders.
Apparently one of the Argentinian/Chilean men who allegedly used to deliver fruits and vegetables to the household of Hitler tipped off Israeli agents about Hitler’s whereabouts.

Captain WERMUTH has stated that the U-530 left her German home base on 19 February 1945, preyed on shipping along the Norwegian coast until 13 March, and then took up patrol work in the South Atlantic. None of the crew has identification papers, the combat-log is missing, all armament was destroyed or rendered useless, the bow gun and two anti-aircraft guns are missing, and the only ammunition left aboard is in such condition as to be useless. There was plenty of food aboard but very little fuel. The crew was in good condition and very little information of value could be gotten from any of them. The ship's log and instruments were intact and the submarine was fitted with a particularly powerful radio which was in operating condition. The crew of 54 men was 16 men over the normal crew of 38 men for a submarine of that class.

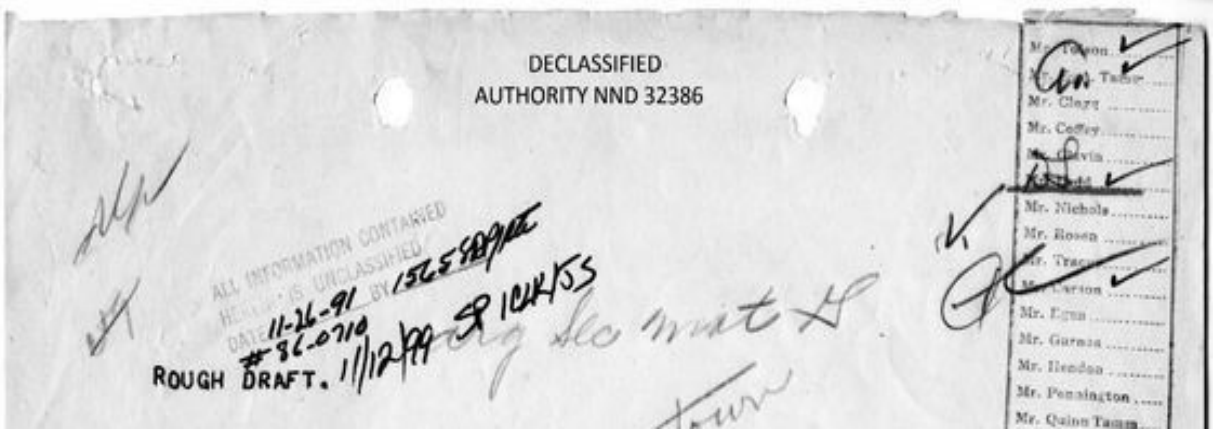

Newsmen have also reported (C-4) the following rumors:

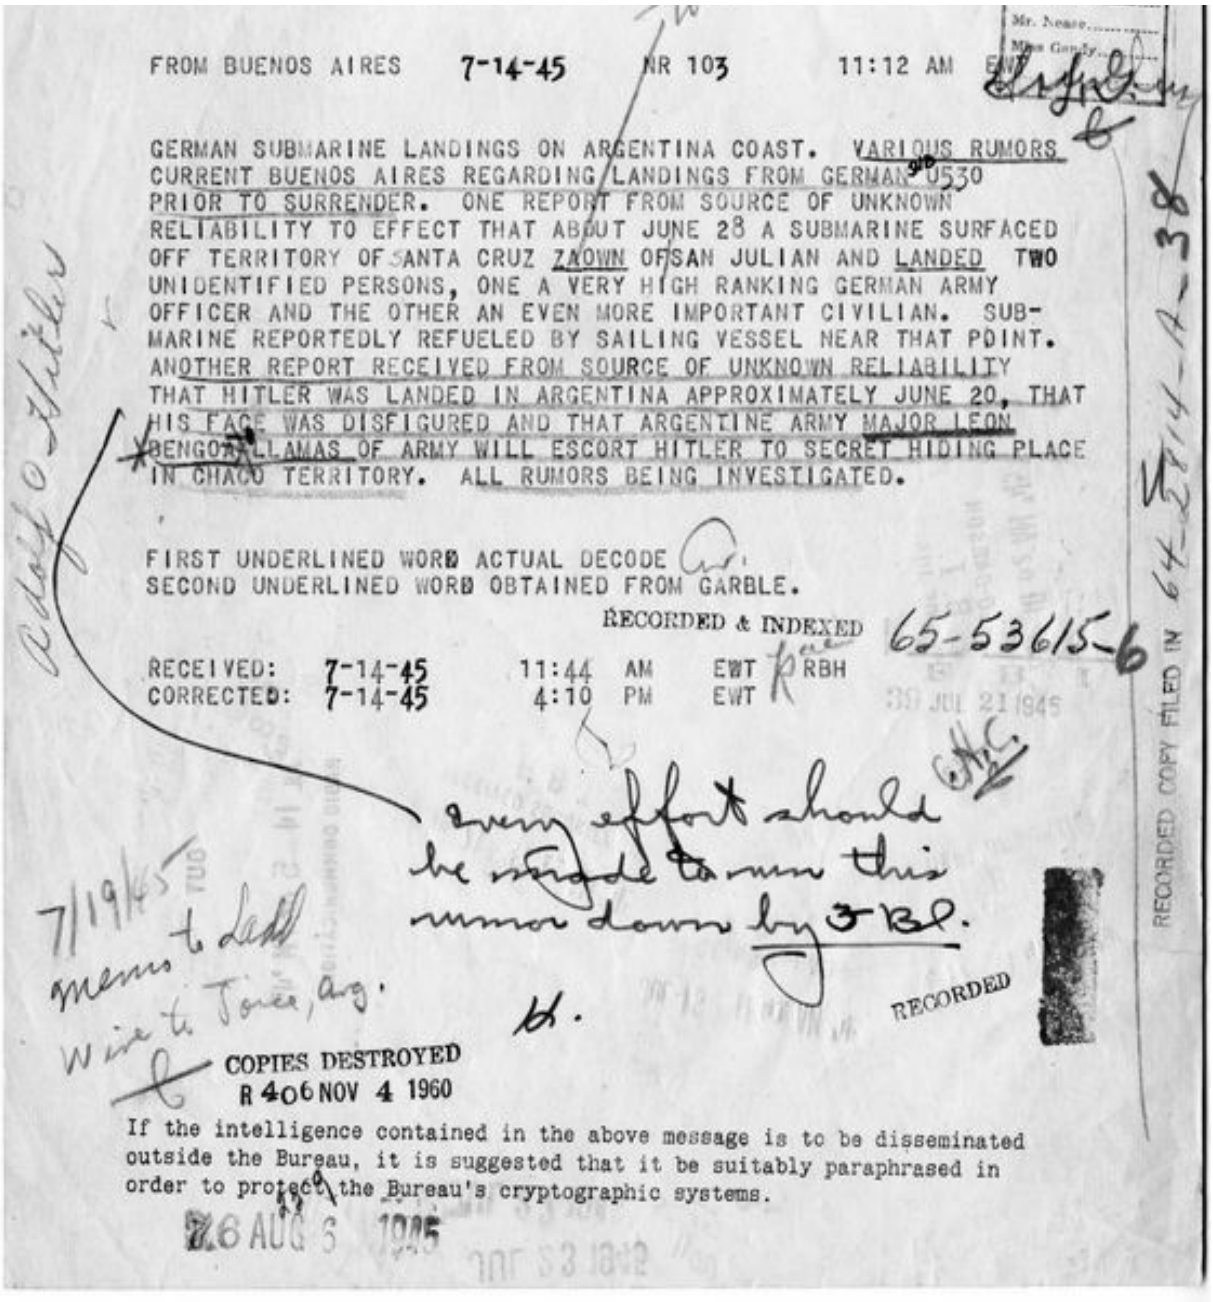

A submarine was sighted by an Argentine Navy transport about the middle of June and was subsequently hunted by Argentine warships. Two men landed near San Julián (Territory of Santa Cruz) about 1 July 1945, coming in a rubber boat and being met by a sailing boat. The submarine refueled from drums hidden under water along the coast at a place marked with three large stones near a tamarisk grove. Another submarine is on the way to Argentina to surrender. The Assistant Chief of the Department of Investigations informed the Federal Police that a submarine was going to surrender some time before the actual surrender took place. Eva BRAUN and Adolf HITLER were landed in the south of Argentina.

Above: A US naval intelligence report, dated 18 July 1945, written by the American Naval Attaché in Buenos Aires who informed Washington that there was reason to believe that a German submarine, the U-530 had landed Adolf Hitler and Eva Braun in the south of Argentina before the U-Boat surrendered to the Argentinian authorities at Mar del Plata.

Excerpt from the report:
“The assistant chief of the department of investigations informed the federal police that a submarine was going to surrender some time before the actual surrender took place. Eva Braun and Adolf Hitler were landed in the south of Argentina.”

Security Matter - G

The Bureau is in receipt of a report from the Strategic Services Unit of the War Department dated October 23, 1945 concerning the possibility of a "Hitler Hideout" in Argentina. This report is as follows:

"One Mrs. Eichhorn, reported to be a reputable member of Argentine society and the proprietor of the largest spa hotel in La Falda, Argentina, recently made the following observations:

"a. that even before the Nazi Party was founded she made available to Goebbels her entire bank account which, at the time, amounted approximately to thirty thousand marks, which money was to be used for propaganda purposes;

"b. that she and her family have been enthusiastic supporters of Adolf Hitler since the Nazi Party was founded;

"c. that this voluntary support of the Nazi Party was never forgotten by Hitler and that during the years after he came into power her friendship with Hitler became so close that she and members of her family lived with Hitler in the same hotel on the occasion of their annual visit to Germany;

"d. that if Hitler should at any time get into difficulty wherein it was necessary for him to find a safe retreat, he would find such safe retreat at her hotel (La Falda) where they had already made the necessary preparations."

Above: An FBI document dated November 13, 1945, issued and signed by Edgar J Hoover, director of the FBI. In the report, Hoover stated that there is a warm friendship between Adolf Hitler and Ida Eichhorn, and that Hitler could possibly find a “safe retreat at her hotel (La Falda) in Argentina.

IV--Q & A

-In Argentina, did Hitler continue to lead the Nazi movement, or what was left from it? Was he working on the emergence of a Fourth Reich?
-At the very beginning, and in his emotionally disturbed state, Hitler thought so. But in reality, it was Martin Bormann who was in total control.
-Did Hitler die in Argentina?
-Yes. In 1965.
-At what age Hitler died?
-At the age of 76.
-Were in Argentina, his body was buried?
-Hitler's body was cremated, and his ashes were scattered in an undisclosed area.
-Did the Argentineans who lived in the Area of Bariloche or nearby know anything about the whereabouts of Hitler or his hideaway in Bariloche and/or somewhere else?
-Outsiders? No. Even the maids, servants and cooks of Adolf Hitler who served him on a daily basis did not know about his true identity.
-Who knew then about Hitler's true identity?
-Basically and exclusively, his Nazi entourage, the SS officers and military men who were in charge of his personal security, noted Nazi guests and visitors, General Hermann Fegelein, brother-in-law of Eva Braun, Martin Bormann, General Franco of Spain, Juan Peron, President of Argentina, and Rodolfo Freude.
-At Bariloche, who had a direct access to Hitler?
-His household people (Cooks, maids, bodyguards, etc.) and very trusted Nazis like (To name a few):
From the files of Mossad (Israel), Rodolfo Freude, and Argentina's Secretaría de Inteligencia de Estado.

- Luftwaffe's legend Hans Ulrich Rudel
- Horst Wagner
- Josef Schwammberger
- Frederich Lantschner, the former Governor of Tyrol

- Waffen SS Captain Erich Priebke
- SS General Ludolf von Alvensleben
- Gerhard Bohne
- Eckard R. Krahmer
- Hans Hefelmann
- Hans Fischbock
- Walter Kutschmann
- Eduard Roschmann
- Walter Rauff
- Gerhard Lausegger
- Albert Ganzenmuller

Nota Bene: More than 12,000 Nazis escaped to South America via Deutsche Hilfsverein. And approximately 700 SS moved to Bariloche, where Hitler spent his last days.
On numerous occasions, the FBI and the Wiesenthal Center asked the government of Argentina to release the files containing the names of the Nazis who escaped to Argentina. In July 2003, only two out of fifty nine recorded files were opened.

-How about conspiracy theorists who have claimed that top echelons in the United States military, US intelligence, and the Nazis have agreed on a deal or some sort of an arrangement which helped Hitler get out of Germany and guaranteed Hitler's safety, a few days before the Red Army entered Berlin? True or false?

-True, to a certain degree.

The deal was much more complicated and complex than any insider or an alert observant could imagine.

And its ramifications had major influence and direct impact on future deals to be signed between Hitler and an "American Triumvir".

The most important USA-Hitler/NAZI new World Order deal was signed in 1956 in Argentina.

-Was the deal part of the re-emergence of a Fourth Reich? Did Hitler plan on the rebirth of his Aryan race?

-No! The Americans were interested in secret Nazi technology pertaining to Space, anti-gravity aircrafts and flying machines (Some have erroneously called UFOs), some sort of bombs more destructive than the Atomic Bomb, and so on. While Hitler's major interest rotated around his own safety, an autonomous Nazi organism free of American and Russian control, demanded an absolute guarantee from the United States that America will not interfere in Hitler's present and future plan to safeguard said "peaceful" organism, which will not cause any threat to the United States.

-Did the United States agree?
-Yes!
-Was the CIA part of the deal?
-No!
-Was the FBI informed? Did Hoover know about the deal?
-No!
-Did Great Britain, France or the Soviet Union know about the Hitler-Triumvir deal?
-No.
-Did the United States Congress know about the deal?
-No!

Below: The Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) report on "Hitler Hideout", dated 9-21-45. File 105-410. Title: Report on Hitler's Hideout.

was one of four men who met HITLER and his party when they landed from two submarines in Argentina approximately two and one-half weeks after the fall of Berlin. [redacted] continued that the first sub came close to shore about 11:00 p.m. after it had been signaled that it was safe to land and a doctor and several men disembarked. Approximately two hours later the second sub came ashore and HITLER, two women, another doctor, and several more men, making the whole party arriving by submarines approximately 50, were aboard. By pre-arranged plan with six top Argentine officials, pack horses were waiting for the group and by daylight all supplies were loaded on the horses and an all-day trip inland toward the foothills of the southern Andes was started. At dusk the party arrived at the ranch where HITLER and his party, according to [redacted], are now in hiding. [redacted] most specifically explained that the subs landed along the tip of the Valdez Peninsula along the southern tip of Argentina in the gulf of San Matias. [redacted] told [redacted] that there are several tiny villages in this area where members of HITLER's party would eventually stay with German families. He named the towns as San Antonio, Videma, Neuquen, Muster, Carmena, and Rason.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE DIRECTOR

Re: Possible Flight of Adolph Hitler to Argentina

Many political observers have expressed the opinion that Adolph Hitler may seek refuge in Argentina after the collapse of Germany.

Political ramifications lend credence to this possibility when it is recalled that the duly appointed Argentine Consul Hellmuth, ostensibly assigned to a Consular post in Spain, had plans which included clandestine meetings with Hitler and Himmler for the arranging of importing arms and technicians into Argentina. Hellmuth, intercepted by the British at Trinidad, never completed his mission.

Argentina remains a mysterious maze of questionable characters, [redacted] is presently residing in Buenos Aires. [redacted] former Austrian munitious king and ex-husband of [redacted] recently converted his bicycle factories into an Argentine plant for the manufacturing of munitions. Arnulfo Arias, pro-Axis ousted President of Panama, conducts a long range political campaign from Buenos Aires. Frederich Karl von Zedlitz, [redacted] still claims to be in Argentina as the postwar planner for the German cartel Metallgesellschaft.

A large wealthy German colony in Argentina affords tremendous possiblities for the providing of a refuge for Hitler and his henchmen. One of the members, Count Luxburg, has been mentioned as operating a ranch which would serve in providing a haven.

By the very nature of any plans formulated for the abandoning of Germany in its collapse, it is virtually impossible to substantiate any allegations with regard to Argentina's serving the Nazis after defeat; however some significance may be attached to the fact that Argentina remains silent despite all the accusations that she will serve as a terminus for Hitler after a non-stop flight of 7,376 miles from Berlin to Buenos Aires in an especially constructed plane or as a passenger in a long-range submarine.

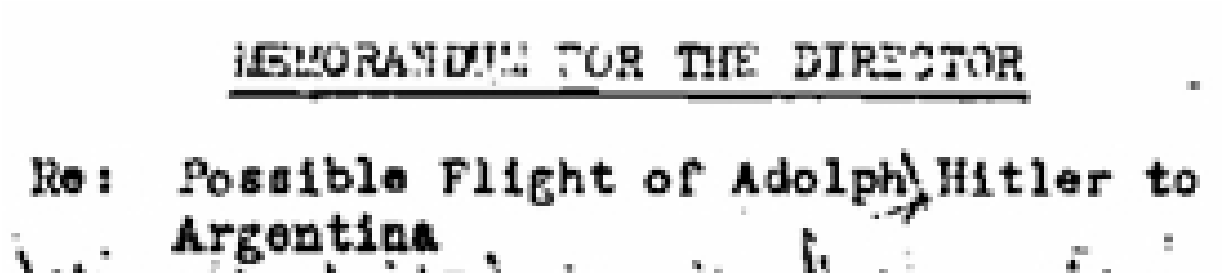

RECORDED & INDEXED [redacted]

This matter continues to be the subject of a coordinated investigation by the Bureau representatives throughout the world. Information developed to date has, of course, been furnished to other interested governmental agencies.

Respectfully, attached to the fact that Argentina remains silent despite all the accusations that she will serve as a terminus for Hitler after a non-stop flight of 7,376 miles from Berlin to Buenos Aires in an especially constructed plane or as a passenger in a long-range submarine.

Argentina remains silent despite all the accusations that she will serve as a terminus for Hitler after a non-stop flight of 7,376 miles from Berlin to Buenos Aires in an especially constructed plane or as a passenger in a long range submarine.

Nota Bene:
This passage from the FBI's memo is EXTREMELY important and revealing, for the "non-stop flight of 7,376 miles from Berlin to Buenos Aires in an especially constructed plane" was mentioned by Leni Riefenstahl when I interviewed her in 1972 in Munchen.
Leni told me, "But from what I heard, during his last stand, Hitler received a message from a mysterious woman to get out of Berlin. The message contained a reference made to a secret airplane capable of flying 6,000 kilometers non-stop. People at the bunker did not take the message very seriously.
A second message was delivered to Magda Goebbels. I think it came from Maria Orsic. Magda would not leave her husband.
I am absolutely certain that Hitler, Bormann and Kammler escaped aboard what the Americans call a UFO…in a secret location on the Baltic Sea…the Luftwaffe and the SS were experimenting with a new kind of airplanes…Its flight pattern was strange…"

This extraordinary "especially constructed plane" capable of a "non-stop flight of 7,376 miles" was also mentioned by Hitler's personal nurse Erna Flegal.
Flegal stated that an urgent message from Maria Orsic was delivered to Mrs. Goebbles, but unfortunately nobody took it seriously. Rochus Misch, who worked as a telephone operator in Hitler's bunker also reported that a message from Orsic was sent to Mrs. Goebbles.
Magda told Erna Flegal about Maria's message, and added that Maria had a way of getting her out of Berlin with her daughters, by some sort of a new type of airplane she had at her disposal.
And then I began to hear about Orsic's mysterious airplane… two SS officers were talking about it, but I did not hear everything.

Bormann knew what they were talking about, and I remember very well what he said to them, something like “It (Maria’s airplane, more precisely as I think, one of Maria’s early prototypes) is not very far from here…we can fly to Austria, but I was not interested in what Bormann was talking about, because I kept thinking about the children and Dr. Helmut Kunz, who injected the children with poison…”

Dr. Winfried Otto Schumann, Professor at the Munich Technical University, who was later recruited by the United States and worked for NASA, told us that Hitler escaped on a supersonic-anti gravity “Vril” he built himself using a mind-bending “Metal-Alloy Technology” unknown to scientists. This craft was called “RFC-2”.

The RFC-2 (One of the 2 long range airplanes intended to be used by Hitler to escape from the Baltic Sea to Argentina) was spotted and reported on Sunday 18, March 1945, by Lt. Col. Walter Fellenz, serial number 0-23055 from the United States Army, 42nd Infantry Division, 1st Battalion. The sighting was confirmed by Brigadier General Henning Linden. The report of Fellenz was confirmed by Brigadier General Henning Linden, and Colonel Buldoc.

Brigadier General Henning Linden confirmed Fellenz’s sighting in 1945. After the war, General Linden's aide, Lt. Cowling, said that what Lt. Col. Walter Fellenz saw was in fact a German RFC-2.

Sir Roy Fedden, the Chief of the Technical Mission to Germany for the Ministry of Aircraft Production was absolutely convinced that Germany’s wonder-weapons (Referring to the RFC-2) could have altered the results and consequences of the war, if the Third Reich succeeded in prolonging it.

Sir Roy Fedden

Lt. Col. Walter Fellenz

Brigadier General Henning Linden

Professor W. O. Schumann

In 1945, he stated verbatim, “I have seen enough of their designs and production plans to realise that if the Germans had managed to prolong the war some months longer, we would have been confronted with a set of entirely new and deadly developments in air warfare.” This story was buried by the United States government, because Dr. Winfried Otto Schumann was recruited by Dr. von Braun for “Operation Paperclip”, initiated by The White House.

The RFC-2 was flown by Hanna Reitsch.

Dr. Heinrich Richard Miethe, Dr. Herbert A Wagner, Dr. Eugen Sanger, Hanna Reitsch, Lt. Colonel Grigori Tokaty, Brigadier General L. C. Craigie, William Donovan, Dr. Arthur Rudolph, Dr. Herman Oberth, Lt. Colonel Walter Horten, SS General Hans Kammler, General Jakob Sporrenberg, and a fleet of German, British and American scientists acknowledged that the RFC-2 was flown by Hanna Reitsch, and Hitler was on board. In the United States, Dr. von Braun continued to work on the RFC-2 and four related types.

NAZI ENVOY SAYS HITLER STILL ALIVE

PARIS, Oct. 27. (AP)—The newspaper Francesoir today quoted Otto Abetz, Germany's wartime Ambassador to France, as saying in an interview that Adolf Hitler "is certainly not dead."

The newspaper said Abetz added that Hitler "was not a coward—I believe one day he will return."

Abetz's arrest was announced yesterday by French zone headquarters. The former Ambassador was captured as he sought to slip from the French to the United States zone of occupation.

The Bureau is in receipt of a report from the Strategic Services Unit of the War Department dated October 23, 1945 concerning the possibility of a "Hitler Hideout" in Argentina. This report is as follows:

"One Mrs. Eichhorn, reported to be a reputable member of Argentine society and the proprietor of the largest spa hotel in La Falda, Argentina, recently made the following observations:

"a. that even before the Nazi Party was founded she made available to Goebbels her entire bank account which, at the time, amounted approximately to thirty thousand marks, which money was to be used for propaganda purposes;

"b. that she and her family have been enthusiastic supporters of Adolf Hitler since the Nazi Party was founded;

"c. that this voluntary support of the Nazi Party was never forgotten by Hitler and that during the years after he came into power her friendship with Hitler became so close that she and members of her family lived with Hitler in the same hotel on the occasion of their annual visit to Germany;

"d. that if Hitler should at any time get into difficulty wherein it was necessary for him to find a safe retreat, he would find such safe retreat at her hotel (La Falda) where they had already made the necessary preparations."

Dear Sir:

Reference is made to the letter from the Bureau to the Buenos Aires office, a copy of which was furnished to this office, dated October 26, 1945. Referenced letter suggested that [redacted] be questioned for any facts supporting assertions made in a clipping of the "Magazine Digest". Although no copy of the clipping was furnished to this office, it was presumed that the clipping referred to [redacted] report to the "Chicago Times", expressing the possibility that Hitler and Eva Braun were in Argentina. This matter was reported to the Bureau and the Buenos Aires office by radiogram and cable respectively on July 19, 1945 under the title "Report of Hitler and Eva Braun in Argentina".

[redacted] is a friend of [redacted] and has reinterviewed [redacted] with a view toward ascertaining the latter's source. [redacted] advised that the information reported by him was received from a relative in Argentina. He continued to defend the likelihood that Hitler is in Argentina.

It is a matter of considerable comment in Montevideo that an American publication, the "Chicago Times", should have a local representative of such low caliber as [redacted]. His reputation is extremely poor and he is generally considered to be a journalist of the most sensational and unreliable nature. In view of this, no further inquiries are being made in Montevideo concerning this matter.

Very truly yours,

V--Hitler’s residences in Argentina

The villa known to the locals as Residencia Inalco, which occupied a large lot on Bajia Istana near the town of Villa La Angostura on the shores of Lake Nahuel Huapi, and located 80 km north from Bariloche was one the last known refuges of Hitler and his wife Eva in Argentina.

At that time, the area was isolated and quite inaccessible to the public, in addition, Hitler’s Residencia was surrounded by a pine forest heavily guarded and a military barrack occupied by ex SS officers and could be reached only by lake using a hydroplane of a boat. The lot also included a large boat-house and fruits and vegetables garden.

The villa was designed by Alejandro Bustillo in 1943 and following Martin Bormann’s specific instructions which corresponded to the plan and interior design of the Berghof, Hitler’s mansion in the Bavarian Alps.

After the death of Hitler, the villa was occupied by Garcia Merou, a well-known Nazi sympathizer who facilitated the escape of hundreds of SS officers to Argentina, while others claim that the villa was reclaimed by the relatives of Jorge Antonio, who was a close friend of Argentinian President Juan Perón. In 1970, Residencia Inalco was sold to José Rafael Trozzo, who also bought other properties in the area owned by former SS officers, such as Reinhard Kopps who used the fake name of Juan Mahler.

Residencia Inalco was neither the last refuge of Hitler nor his permanent residence, for he had additional residences and hiding places such as:

a-Hacienda San Ramon located outside Bariloche,

b-A large mansion in Mendoza,

c-An isolated ranch in Chile,

SUBJECT: ANOTHER NAZI CRIMINAL IN ARGENTINA?

REF: 95 BUENOS AIRES 6939

1. AN ARGENTINE JOURNALIST CLAIMS TO HAVE FOUND, IN NEARLY PERFECT CONDITION, AN URUGUAYAN PASSPORT IN THE NAME OF RICARDO BAUER, AN ALIAS ALLEGEDLY USED BY MARTIN BORMANN, THE INFAMOUS NAZI MASS-MURDERER AND RIGHT-HAND MAN OF ADOLF HITLER. THE DISCOVERY WAS MADE IN THE CITY OF SAN CARLOS DE BARILOCHE, WHERE FORMER NAZI OFFICER ERICH PRIEBKE LIVED FOR MANY YEARS BEFORE BEING EXTRADITED TO ITALY LAST YEAR (REF). PRIEBKE IS NOW ON TRIAL IN ITALY FOR HIS ALLEGED WAR CRIMES.
2. ACCORDING TO PRESS REPORTS, THE JOURNALIST OBTAINED THE BAUER PASSPORT FROM A RESIDENT OF

IN THIS DOCUMENT

BARILOCHE OF GERMAN DESCENT. SO FAR DECLINING TO REVEAL HIS IDENTITY, THE MAN CLAIMS BORMANN LIVED IN CHILE UNTIL THE RETURN OF ARGENTINE PRESIDENT JUAN PERON TO POWER IN 1973; BORMANN THEN MOVED TO ARGENTINA, WHERE HE RESIDED UNTIL HIS DEATH IN 1975 FROM HEPATITIS, ACCORDING TO THIS ACCOUNT.

3. MANY ARE HEAVILY DISCOUNTING THE POSSIBILITY THAT THE PASSPORT, ISSUED IN GENOA IN 1946, ACTUALLY BELONGED TO BORMANN. LOCAL RESIDENTS IN BARILOCHE, WHICH IS THE HOME OF MANY GERMAN IMMIGRANTS, SAY IT WOULD HAVE BEEN IMPOSSIBLE FOR THE UNIVERSALLY DESPISED BORMANN TO HAVE LIVED IN THE SMALL COMMUNITY WITHOUT DETECTION. FAMED NAZI HUNTER SIMON WIESENTHAL HAS REPORTEDLY REAFFIRMED HIS COMPLETE BELIEF THAT BORMANN DIED IN GERMANY IN 1945, BASED ON ANALYSIS OF DENTAL RECORDS COMPARED TO SKELETAL REMAINS FOUND IN BERLIN IN 1977. THE ISRAELI EMBASSY IN BUENOS AIRES IS ALSO DISCOUNTING THE BORMANN STORY, ALTHOUGH IT HAS SENT AN OFFICIAL TO BARILOCHE TO INVESTIGATE THE MATTER FULLY.

4. COMMENT: THE ONGOING TRIAL OF PRIEBKE UNDOUBTEDLY IS MAKING NEWSPAPERS, PARTICULARLY SMALL, REGIONAL PAPERS LIKE THE ONE THAT "BROKE" THIS STORY ON BORMANN, EAGER TO CASH IN ON PUBLIC INTEREST IN NAZI HUNTING. WE ALSO SIDE WITH THE SKEPTICS IN THIS SENSATIONALIST STORY, AND WAIT TO BE CONVINCED BY BETTER EVIDENCE THAN THE FUZZY PICTURE RESEMBLING BORMANN ON THE URUGUAYAN PASSPORT THAT TURNED UP.

Bariloche is a picturesque city crowned with magnificent chains of white-capped mountains, lush pine forests, hiking trails, ski slopes and “pistes”, wooden lodges, which resembles Alpines towns with colorful streets full of beer taverns, gingerbread houses, restaurants, chocolate shops, souvenirs and gifts shops.

Bariloche’s residents talks and gossip.

Bariloche which was founded some 125 years ago by Chileans-Germans had become a safe haven for fugitive Nazis. Between 1945 and 1954, 12,000 Germans arrived at Argentina, and approximately 2,500 Nazis escaped to Patagonia and Bariloche.

Numerous Nazi officers lived in Bariloche for decades and were identified by local residents. But the most prominent ones were Erich Priebke, Frederich Lantschner, Reinhard Kopps, Josef Schwammberger, Walter Rauff, Hans-Ulrich Rudel.

On July 17, 1945, the Chicago Sun Times reported that Adolf Hitler was still alive and living on a ranch in Argentina. In 1945, three FBI documents and one memo suggested that Adolf Hitler was living on a ranch in the foothills of the Andes Mountains in Argentina (Bariloche).

Well, let’s see what the residents of Bariloche and the neighbors of Hitler’s ranch had to say about this.

Bariloche’s residents quite often would say, “Of course, Hitler lived here but we did not know where exactly. It was a secret. We know Hitler and his wife did not live in the center of Bariloche, this would be very obvious, we were told that they lived in the Inalco estate. And we were told that a large German compound surrounded Hitler’s house, and a small port located nearby the compound was used as a Nazi naval base. Others added, “We saw German officers in civilian clothes almost everywhere, in cafes, in hotels, in streets, in shops. They spoke German.

They did not speak Spanish. We knew Erich Priebke, and people like him, he was polite and very gentle; he had a large house in Pantagonia…”

Others have said, “We saw lots of German cars heading toward areas located outside the center of the town.

We knew Nazis had meetings in those areas from people who catered food to them…this lasted until 1965. After 1965, we did not see any more activities or German cars, and we began to wonder why.

Some heard that Hitler left Bariloche to Chile, and others said that he died, really we did not know what was going on…"

Catalina Gamero's account:

Catalina Gamero who worked as a cook and a chamber-maid at Eden Hotel owned by Hitler's supporters, Walter Eichhorn and Ida Eichhorn of La Falda, just outside Cordoba, said that in 1949 the Eichhorns told her that an important guest would soon arrive to the Hotel and he does not want to eat in the dining room, so she has to take his meals upstairs to his bedroom.

As soon as Catalina Gamero saw the face of the prominent guest, she recognized him right away because she had seen his photographs before at the home of the Eichhorns, and that man was Adolf Hitler.

Gamero added that Adolf Hitler stayed in touch with Ida Eichhorn until she died in 1964. Gamero continued, at that time Hitler was living in Mendoza in Argentina.

Eden Hotel where Catalina Gamero worked as a cook and a chamber-maid.

Owners of taverns in downtown Bariloche told us that their parents said to them that "Many German officers came to Bariloche. Some did not hide their identity, but many did; they used different names, of course false German names or Spanish names.

They were polite, and they spent money. They never said a word about Hitler, and when we asked them if it was true what we have heard about Adolf Hitler, meaning that he escaped from Germany and now he lives somewhere on a large hacienda outside Bariloche…they would smile and say it is not true, but we could feel that they were hiding something… almost all of us heard that Hitler and Eva Braun lived somewhere here but nobody knew where…we were told that the secret police of Peron protected them, and we should not mention the names of Adolf Hitler and his wife…"

From the New York Times, October. 30, 1995:
"You'd have to be either crazy or blind and deaf to think that Bariloche does not have its share of Nazis," said Rosario Zaballa, 48, a store clerk who has lived here all her life. "
She added, "They don't bother anybody, but they are here." Swastikas are regularly scrawled on walls and even appear in some public artwork. Throughout the town, people tell tales of Germans who still hold secret celebrations of Hitler's birthday on April 20.

Daniel Reisfeld, a retailer who is president of Bariloche's small Jewish population of 35 families, said that while he had not encountered any anti-Semitism in the 15 years he has lived in Bariloche, he believed there were anti-Semites and Nazis living here.
"There is the same quantity, percentage-wise, of Nazis living in Bariloche as there is in any other city with a strong German population and history," Mr. Reisfeld said. "The only difference is that Bariloche is the only city with a Nazi who is waiting to be extradited and who has caught people's attention."
From ABC News, November 18, 1987:
Ambrosio Vicente Farias, 85, recalls driving visitors to the hotel (Eden Hotel) during the Eichhorn era. "They all spoke German up there. I couldn't understand anything," he said. "They say Hitler himself visited once incognito." At the hotel there are two faded sepia group photographs taken on the front steps. In both pictures, taken from different angles, one of the 60 or so faces is blurred beyond recognition. The shadow of small moustache is just discernible. "

Did Hitler ever come here? Ranz asked his guide as he and his young family ended their tour. "That's what some say," came the answer. "
The local legend about a Hitler visit is just that: legend," said Hitler expert Professor Sir Ian Kershaw of Britain's Sheffield University."

Israeli Plan/ Attempt to Kidnap Hitler from Bariloche.

The Israelis are experts in infiltrating foreign countries and kidnapping/killing terrorists. They are renowned for their expertise in those fields and particularly for their daring rescue missions on the soil of foreign countries and espionage operations, to name a few examples:
1-The 1960 kidnapping of Adolf Eichmann.
2-The 1973 Operation Spring of Youth.
3-The July 4, 1976 Operation Entebbe (Entebbe Airport in Uganda); the hostage rescue mission carried out by the IDF.
One attempt of the kind was added to their daring operations: Kidnapping Adolf Hitler who allegedly was living in Bariloche, Argentina.

In 1962, Martin Bormann learned that former members of the Israeli Irgun, and Mossad's secret agents got their orders to kidnap Hitler while visiting a small village located nearby Chilean borders.
Apparently one of the Argentineans/Chilean men who used to deliver fruits and vegetables to the household of Hitler tipped off Israeli agents about Hitler's whereabouts and the exact location of his home in Patagonia.
The Israeli agents, as well as war criminals' hunters knew very well it would be impossible to infiltrate the immense compound of Hitler, so they waited for Hitler to leave his heavily fortified and guarded compound and ambush him while visiting a former SS officer who lived near the borders of Chile. Bormann's spies found out immediately and executed the informer. The Israelis tried three more times but remained in vain.
"Operation Joshua" was the code name of the first kidnapping attempt. And the code name of the Israeli officer in charge was "Merodach".

VI--Syria and Egypt: Nazis New Safe Haven

Syrian Military Intelligence Bureau.

Lots of information on Hitler's visitors in Argentina were given to us by Rodolfo Freude, and former NAZI officers who escaped to Damascus, Syria, where they worked for the Syrian government in various capacities such as, to name a few, Alois Bruner, Walter Rauff, Gustav Franz Wagner and Aribert Heim .

Said German officers told Al-Maktab Al-Thani (Syrian Military Intelligence) that Adolf Hitler lives comfortably in Argentina and is visited on a regular basis by German officers, important politicians, American businessmen, and personalities from around the world.

Their statements were kept in the secret files of Abdul Hamid Al-Sarraj who was the head of Le Deuxieme Bureau "Syrian military intelligence".

Abdul Hamid Al-Sarraj, Chief of Military Intelligence of Syria, and Minister of Interior of the United Arab Republic (Egypt+ Syria) from 1958 to 1961.

The NAZI officers told Al-Sarraj that the communications between Hitler's HQ in Argentina and remnants of the SS in Chile, Paraguay, Ecuador and Brazil were intercepted by Mossad and British intelligence, which would jeopardize their safety and ultimately will lead to their capture by Israeli agents in South America.

In exchange for NAZI officers training of Syrian units, and providing information on Jewish agents, Al-Sarraj created a secret department in Al Mukhabarat (Office of Military intelligence) in order to relocate wanted Nazis to Syria.
In 1969, Mr. Al-Sarraj told me verbatim, "Hitler is doing fine in Argentina. He will spend the rest of his life and he will die in Argentina. The Americans don't want him, the English don't want him. The Russians backed off. And the Israelis were ordered by the Americans to not interfere. As far as Syria is concerned and possibly the Arab Nation (Al Ouma Al-Arabiya), the Germans are extremely important because we share same attitude toward the Jews, who are the source of all the troubles in the world."
He added, "We welcomed many German officers, some worked for the army and our military intelligence, some went to Egypt to work for the Egyptian army and Al Moukhabarat (Intelligence Office).
Others went to Argentina to be at the service of Hitler…"

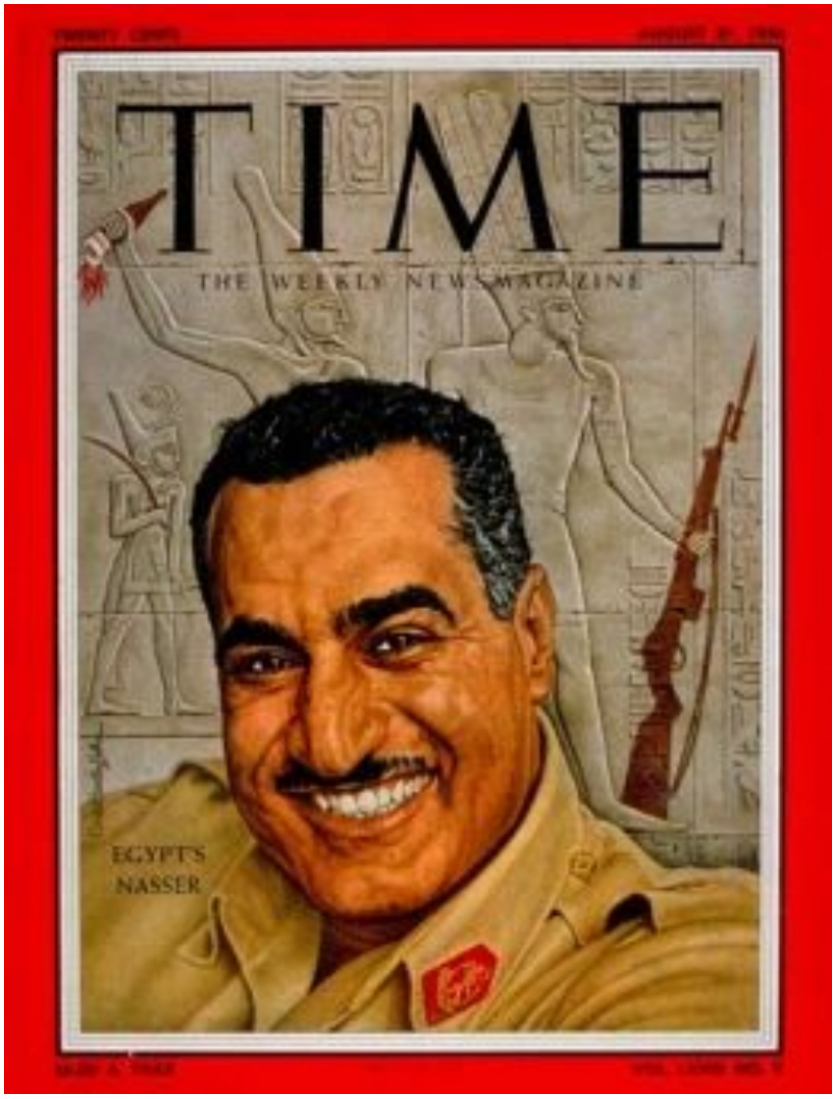

I asked him if he knew anything about the 1941"Farhud" in Iraq and he replied:
"Yes, the Farhud, yes, brave Iraqi fighters with the help of German officers taught the Jews a good lesson, they gave them what they deserve.
Note: Iraqi and Nazi officers murdered dozens of Jews in Iraq on June 1 and June 2, 1941. The murders and atrocities were initiated by Nazi officers and Dr F. Grobba from the German embassy in Baghdad

Egypt’s love affair with the Nazis

The Egyptian love affair with Hitler and Nazi Germany commenced with Egypt’s King Faruk who once said, “Hitler is the new leader of the world and friend of Al Ouma Al Arabia (Arab Nation)” and continued with Gamal Abdel Nasser. Faruk, Nasser, Iraq’s Rashid Ali, and Mufti Al Husseini rendered Egypt a safe-haven for Nazism and Nazi officers who fled from Germany, Austria and Belgium.

Gamal Abdel Nasser, a strong admirer of Hitler employed approximately 1850 Nazis (Military and civilians) in various roles and capacities as did before him the ousted King Faruk.

Gamal Abdel Nasser on the cover of Time magazine, August 27, 1956.

Nazis on the list of Egyptian military intelligence

The names of Nazi officers who fled to Egypt and worked for the Egyptian authorities including military hospitals, Mukhabarat (General Intelligence Service), army, and military intelligence were listed in “Laihat Al Khoubara’a Al Almaniyiin” (List of German experts) in the files of Zakharia Salah Nasr, director of Al Mukhabarat from 1954 to 1956. The list also contained the names of 10 Nazis who went from Cairo to Argentina and met with Hitler after the war. The list of Salah Nasr who became the director of Al Mukhabarat (Egyptian intelligence) in 1957 contained additional information pertaining to the role, duties and importance of Nazi experts, as well as a synopsis of information and data obtained from Nazis who have visited Hitler in Argentina after the war.

For instance, in one account, a former Nazi officer reports on how the CIA in Chile and MI6 intercepted messages and communications sent to Adolf Hitler from former senior Nazi officers who fled to Paraguay, Ecuador and Brazil.
Another report gives details on Mossad’s attempt to kidnap Adolf Hitler From Bariloche; worth mentioning here that part of the account refers to Mossad’s plan to kidnap two Argentinian servants who worked for Hitler in his residence in Bariloche. Another section of the Israeli report refers to the possibility of kidnapping Adolf Hitler while visiting other residences he had in Chile.

The Laihat Al Khoubara’a Al Almaniyiin” (List of German experts) of the Egyptian military intelligence listed the Nazis into four categories:

- 1-Civilian experts who worked in laboratories, military hospitals and agricultural development programs.

During its early creation, those programs were managed by Dr. Hans Eisele, a former SS Captain, and Louis Heiden a former SS officer, who later was transferred to Maktab al Ihlam/Sahafa (the Egyptian Press Office.)

1-Dr. Hans Eisele. 2-Dr. Hans Eisele at Dachau Cam Trial.

●2-Relocation of Nazi officers to Egypt.

The relocation program included recruiting Nazi officers who escaped from Germany and Nazis (Officers) who remained hidden in Germany and Europe.

Eugene Dollman and Otto Skorzeny were in charge of the relocation (Escape of Nazis more precisely) and the recruitment program. It is ironic that Skornezy worked also as a spy for the CIA and coordinated spying activities with Reinhard Gehlen, a liaison officer between the CIA and newly established West Germany military intelligence, which was created in order to spy on the Russians and capture communist spies in Germany and Europe.

Worth mentioning here that Allen Dulles, then head of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) suggested to the Egyptian authorities to seek the expertise of Gehlen and hire him as senior advisor for the Egyptian Mukhabarat. De facto, Gehlen travelled to Cairo and created Egypt’s first “Anti-Jewish Espionage Office.”

Otto Skorzeny

Stuka ace Hans Ulrich Rudel

Ironically, Gehlen was a triple agent, for he simultaneously worked for the Egyptian military intelligence, the CIA and Mossad.

The recruitment activities were carried out by Otto Skorzeny and Hans Ulrich Rudel who worked very closely with Nazi General Wilhelm Fahrmbacher.

● 3-Nazi military experts entrusted with various duties and programs ranging from terrorism's tactics, commando operations, to military training, and the development of weapons' systems and Egyptian air force.

General Wilhelm Fahrmbacher

4-Anti Jewish Espionage Unit created by SS General Heinrich Selimann, and managed by Bernhard Bender, a former Gestapo Lieutenant Colonel, and his deputy, SS Major Schmalstich.

In addition to the previously mentioned departments, no less than 500 Nazi officers, German military scientists and highly skilled Nazi planners were assigned to specialized duties, activities and services. For instance:

a-In Egypt's secret service:
SS General Oskar Dirlewanger, SS General Alois Moser, SS Major Eugen Eichberger, SS Major Walter Bollman, SS Captain Wilhelm Böckler, a former SS officer.

SS General Oskar Dirlewanger

b-In Egypt's political police:
Franz Bartel, Albert Thielemann,

The political police was established to squash any opposition to Nasser's regime and particularly to keep an eye-watch on Al Akhwan Al Muslimin (Muslim Brothers).

c-In Egypt's security police:
Joachim Däumling, a former Gestapo chief, SS Colonel Leopold Gleim who was the head of the Jewish Affairs Department in Poland, SS Major Seipal, who was the Gestapo liaison officer in Paris,

d-Egypt's press/information office:
Louis Heiden a former SS officer, Johannes von Leers, a former SS officer, Erich Bunz, Walter Birgal, a former SS officer

e-Senior advisors to Gamal Abdel Nasser:
General Wilhelm Fahrmbacher, Otto Skorzeny, SS General Oskar Dirlewanger, SS General Alois Moser.

f-A special unit from the Political Police Service was run by Joachim Damling, g-Helwan aircrafts and missiles center:

No less than 200 German scientists were assigned to Halwan center to develop new weapons. Jets, rockets and missiles

Egypt as a safe haven for Nazi war criminals.

“After the war, a member of Young Egypt named Gamal Abdul Nasser was among the officers who led the July 1952 revolution in Egypt. Their first act – following in Hitler’s footsteps – was to outlaw all other parties. Nasser’s Egypt became a safe haven for Nazi war criminals, among them the SS General in charge of the murder of Ukrainian Jewry; he became Nasser’s bodyguard and close comrade. Alois Brunner, another senior Nazi war criminal, found shelter in Damascus, where he served for many years as senior adviser to the Syrian general staff and still resides today.

Sami al-Joundi, one of the founders of the ruling Syrian Ba'ath Party, recalls: "We were racists. We admired the Nazis. We were immersed in reading Nazi literature and books... We were the first who thought of a translation of Mein Kampf . Anyone who lived in Damascus at that time was witness to the Arab inclination toward Nazism."

These leanings never completely ceased. Hitler's Mein Kampf currently ranks sixth on the best-seller list among Palestinian Arabs.

Luis Al-Haj, translator of the Arabic edition, writes glowingly in the preface about how Hitler's "ideology" and his "theories of nationalism, dictatorship and race… are advancing especially within our Arabic States."

When Palestinian police first greeted Arafat in the self-rule areas, they offered the infamous Nazi salute - the right arm raised straight and upward.

The PLO and notably Arafat himself do not make a secret of their source of inspiration. The Grand Mufti el-Husseini is venerated as a hero by the PLO. It should be noted, that the PLO's top figure in east Jerusalem today, Faisal Husseini, is the grandson to the Führer's Mufti. Arafat also considers the Grand Mufti a respected educator and leader, and in 1985 declared it an honor to follow in his footsteps. Little wonder. In 1951, a close relative of the Mufti named Rahman Abdul Rauf el-Qudwa el-Husseini matriculated to the University of Cairo. The student decided to conceal his true identity and enlisted as "Yasser Arafat."

Letter of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat to Adolf Hitler.

Here is something to sink your teeth in:

From EretzYisroerl.org

"Even Anwar Sadat, a man deemed by many in the West to be a moderate Arab leader, as a young man wrote the following words to the leader of the Third Reich, (whom he assumed was still alive and in hiding after the war):

My dear Hitler,

I congratulate you from the bottom of my heart. Even if you appear to have been defeated, in reality you are the victor. You succeeded in creating dissensions between Churchill, the old man, and his allies, the Sons of Satan. Germany will win because her existence is necessary to preserve the world balance.

Germany will be reborn in spite of the Western and Eastern powers. There will be no peace unless Germany once again becomes what she was ."
Source: Sadat's letter, Al Musawwar , No. 1510, September 18,1953, cited in D.F. Green, ed., Arab Theologians on Jews and Israel (Geneva, 1976 ed.), p. 87. Quoted also by Gideon Hausner, November 16, 1971, at New York. Also see Harkabi, Arab Attitudes, pp. 276-277.

Anis Mansour, editor of the Egyptian paper October and a Sadat confidant who accompanied the Egyptian leader to Jerusalem wrote: "The World is now aware of the fact that Hitler was right, and that the cremation ovens were the appropriate means of punishing the Jews.

From history…
Arabs-Palestinians-Muslims/Nazi Germany military cooperation.
Muslims recruited for the SS

The Handschar, the Bosnian Muslim Waffen-SS volunteers Division from Albania, Bosnia and Herzegovina on the cover of Kolnische Illustrierte Zeitung (The Cologne Illustrated Times magazine), published in Cologne, Germany illustrated magazine. December 16, 1943 issue, number 50.

Right after the end of WWII, and throughout the Cold War, numerous Nazis and former senior officers from the German Wehrmacht worked in Syria and Egypt as military advisors. Syria and Egypt were a fertile soil for a NAZI-Arab cooperation, for both Germans and Syrians shared hatred and disdain for France and England, and of course Zionism.

Josef Goebbels and Himmler thought that Islam could be used as a plateau for global anti-Semitism in the Arab and the Muslim world, despite the fact that Adolf Hitler considered the Arabs to be an inferior race.
The primordial cooperation between Muslims/Arabs and Nazis began during WWII and was marked by the historic visit of Al Mufti Al-Huseini to Hitler.
In fact, the Mufti managed to recruit over 100,000 Muslims from Bosnia and Herzegovina, Albania and other parts of Europe in order the create the first Muslim SS army, known as the Bosnian Muslim Handschar Division, which was in fact, the first Muslim division of the Waffen SS.

Al Mufti Al Huseini with Adolf Hitler.

In “A history of Israel” (New York: Knopf, 1976), Howard M. Sachar wrote, “The Mufti of Jerusalem, Haj Amin al-Husseini was later the notorious Nazi who mixed Nazi propaganda and Islam.
He was wanted for war crimes in Bosnia by Yugoslavia.
His mix of militant propagandizing Islam was an inspiration for both Yasser Arafat and Saddam Husein: He was also a close relative of Yasser Arafat and grandfather of the current Temple Mount Mufti. "Arafat's actual name was Abd al-Rahman abd al-Bauf Arafat al-Qud al-Husseini. He shortened it to obscure his kinship with the notorious Nazi and ex-Mufti of Jerusalem, Haj Muhammed Amin al-Husseini."

Since 1938, Nazis, Palestinians and Muslim Arabs began to launch a massive campaign against international Jewry.
This cooperation continued after WWII in Egypt and Syria, and especially by Palestinian leaders who created a “Front” to fight Jewish immigration to Palestine which was viewed by Palestinians, Arabs and Muslims as a deadly threat to Palestinian sovereignty and Islam.

Edwin Black wrote, “that 60,000 German Jews immigrated into Palestine between 1933 through 1936, bringing with them $100,000,000 dollars ($1.6 billion in 2009 dollars). This precipitous increase in the Jewish Palestinian population stimulated Palestinian Arab political resistance to continued Jewish immigration and was a principal cause for the 1936-1939 Arab revolt in Palestine.”

Translation of the message of Himmler:
To the Grand Mufti:
The National Socialist Movement of Greater Germany has, since its begining, inscribed upon its flag the fight against world Jewry. It has, therefore, followed with particular sympathy the struggle of the freedom-loving Arabians, especially in Palestine, against the Jewish interlopers. It is in the recognition of this enemy and of the common struggle against him that lies the firm foundation of the natural alliance that exists between National-Socialist-Greater Germany and the freedom-loving Moslems of the whole world. In this spirit I am sending you on the anniversary of the infamous Balfour Declaration my hearty greetings and wishes for the successful pursuit of your struggle until the certain final victory.

Ribbentrop Promises Mufti to Destroy Jewish National Home

Ministry of Foreign Affairs
Berlin, April 28, 1942
Your Eminence:
In response to your letter and to the accompanying communication of His Excellency, Prime Minister Raschid Ali El Gailani, and confirming the terms of our conversation, I have the honour to inform you:
The German Government appreciates fully the confidence of the Arab peoples in the Axis Powers in their aims and in their determination to conduct the fight against the common enemy until victory is achieved. The German Government has the greatest understanding for the national aspirations of the Arab countries as have been expressed by you both and the greatest sympathy for the sufferings of your peoples under British oppression.
I have therefore the honour to assure you, in complete agreement with the Italian Government, that the independence and freedom of the suffering Arab countries presently subjected to British oppression, is also one of the aims of the German Government.
Germany is consequently ready to give all her support to the oppressed Arab countries in their fight against British domination, for the fulfillment of their national aim to independence and sovereignty and for the destruction of the Jewish National Home in Palestine.
As previously agreed, the content of this letter should be maintained absolutely secret until we decide otherwise.
I beg your Eminence to be assured of my highest esteem and consideration.
To His Eminence

Soldiers of the 13th SS Division with a brochure about "Islam and Judaism," 1943. Source: German Federal Archive.

David Mickics wrote: “Both Hitler and Himmler had a soft spot for Islam. Hitler several times fantasized that, if the Saracens had not been stopped at the Battle of Tours, Islam would have spread through European continent—and that would have been a good thing, since “Jewish Christianity” wouldn’t have gone on to poison Europe. Christianity doted on weakness and suffering, while Islam extolled strength, Hitler believed. Himmler in a January 1944 speech called Islam “a practical and attractive religion for soldiers,” with its promise of paradise and beautiful women for brave martyrs after their death. “This is the kind of language a soldier understands,” Himmler gushed. Surely, the Nazi leaders thought, Muslims would see that the Germans were their blood brothers: loyal, iron-willed, and most important, convinced that Jews were the evil that most plagued the world. “Do you recognize him, the fat, curly-haired Jew who deceives and rules the whole world and who steals the land of the Arabs?” demanded one of the Nazi pamphlets dropped over North Africa (a million copies of it were printed). “The Jew,” the pamphlet explained, was the evil King Dajjal from Islamic tradition, who in the world’s final days was supposed to lead 70,000 Jews from Isfahan in apocalyptic battle against Isa—often identified with Jesus, but according to the Reich Propaganda Ministry none other than Hitler himself. Germany produced reams of leaflets like this one, often quoting the Quran on the subject of Jewish treachery.”

In the press.

From the New York Time, by Nicholas Kullich, June 10, 2015:

“More than 50 Germans were known to have gone to Syria, while at least 70 more went to Egypt.

Many fugitives, like Heim, converted to Islam and adopted Muslim names, making them more difficult to track. As the decades roll by, there are fewer and fewer Nazi war criminals left alive to track down. Which made the recent reports suggesting that Alois Brunner, the top lieutenant to Adolf Eichmann, may have died as recently as a few years ago in his late 90s all the more surprising. Even more startling for many, though, was the fact that he wasn’t hiding in Argentina or Brazil but in Damascus, Syria, where he had lived from the 1950s under the name Georg Fischer. Apparently, he may have even advised the Syrian government, according to Efraim Zuroff, director of the Simon Wiesenthal Center’s Israel office (though without the benefit of an eye and three fingers he lost opening letter bombs over the years). It turns out Mr. Brunner wasn’t an anomaly. Many of the most notorious Nazi fugitives — members of the SS and the Gestapo — fled to South America after the war, but hundreds fanned out through the Middle East, primarily to Egypt and Syria. Eichmann was captured by the Mossad in Buenos Aires and brought back to Israel for trial and execution. But his deputy, Mr. Brunner, was among those who carved out new lives in the Middle East, where governments sometimes recruited them to build up military and intelligence programs. A few years ago, as The Times’s Berlin bureau chief, I worked with a colleague on an article about the most-wanted Nazi in the world, Dr. Aribert Heim. Investigators and Nazi hunters were searching for him in Chile, but we discovered that Heim had absconded to Egypt, converted to Islam and quietly lived out his days in a working-class neighborhood of Cairo. Like Brunner, he was part of a wave of German soldiers and scientists who made their way to North Africa and the Middle East.

Leaders in Egypt and Syria especially viewed the Germans as more sympathetic to their aspirations than Britain and France, which still had significant interests in the region.

Lt. Gen. Artur Schmitt

In a French documentary last year, “The Nazi Exiles: The Promise of the Orient,” the French-German filmmaker Géraldine Schwarz traced the paths of German soldiers of fortune, fugitives and propagandists, including Lt. Gen. Artur Schmitt, who fought with Rommel in North Africa. The Arab League recruited Schmitt to help form a more effective fighting force. Meanwhile, a Syrian agent traveled to Rome to seek out Walter Rauff, who helped develop the vans used as mobile gas chambers, to lead a search for military and intelligence advisers. Within months dozens of Nazis made their way to Damascus, including Franz Stangl, who had commanded the Sobibor death camp.”

From AP, 2009:’Nazi hunters urged Egypt on Friday to come clean about how much it knew about a fugitive dubbed "Dr. Death," who reportedly lived here for decades until he died in 1992. But Egypt has long kept a strict silence about former Nazis reported to have taken refuge on its soil. The discovery of Aribert Heim's secret life throws light on how the Arab world took in members of the Nazi regime after World War II, said Efraim Zuroff, head Nazi hunter at the Simon Wiesenthal Center. The region's role as a haven has gone little examined while researchers focused on the larger, better known influx of Nazis to Latin America.
A number of Nazis are believed to have been welcomed in the 1950s by the Egyptian regime of then-President Gamal Abdel-Nasser, who was locked in an intense rivalry with Israel that erupted into wars in 1956 and 1967. Nasser enlisted some Nazis to train Egypt's military or produce anti-Israel propaganda — and Israel feared they were involved in building a rocket program.”

From AP/ NBC News, 2009: “Rafael Medoff, director of the David S. Wyman Institute for Holocaust Studies in Washington, said Cairo should start accounting for Nazis it harbored. "In the 1950s, Egypt opened its doors wide to fugitive Nazi war criminals," he said in an e-mail interview with the AP. "The time has come for Egypt to give a full accounting of its policy of sheltering Nazi war criminals — and if any of those Nazis are still alive, they should be surrendered for prosecution." The total number of Third Reich figures who fled to Egypt is not known, and the Egyptian government has never acknowledged any were present. Egypt would not be the only state to try to draw on the expertise of former Nazis — the United States took in a number of German rocket scientists to work in its space program, particularly Wernher von Braun, who headed NASA's Marshall Space Flight Center.

The prospect of Egypt using Nazis to develop a rocket program "was a major concern for Israel," Zuroff said. In the early 1960s, Israel sent a spy posing as a former Nazi, Wolfgang Lotz, who reported back on German scientists working in Egyptian armaments programs, according to Lotz's 1972 memoir. But most Nazis taken in by Nasser's regime appear to have been involved in training the Egyptian military and police or in producing propaganda to foment anti-Israeli attitudes."

Nazis training the Egyptian army.
"In most cases, the recruitment of people accused of war crimes was kept discreet. Yet many of the Germans in 1950s Cairo, known as the "Alemanni," lived openly as they helped modernize and train the Egyptian army.
Their ample salaries arrived half in Egyptian pounds at local banks and half in francs sent to Swiss bank accounts. They rented luxury apartments, drove Mercedes-Benzes on their weekend trips to the Red Sea and had memberships at country clubs.
In some cases, they were merely following the jobs. With military activity suspended in postwar West Germany, a career officer had few options but to find a new profession or seek his fortune abroad.

In her film, Ms. Schwarz tracked down the villa in Cairo where Dr. Wilhelm Voss, a leader of the German defense economy and former SS standartenführer, lived with his entourage. The Waffen-SS member and German Special Forces commando Gerhard Mertins trained Egyptian paratroopers but also represented German businesses like Mercedes and Siemens. Often enough the government in Bonn was happy to see its former soldiers at work in the Egyptian capital, as long as their Nazi pasts did not cause embarrassment.

Gerhard Mertins

“Contact with the German military advisers” led to “a fundamentally positive attitude toward the Federal Republic, which has repeatedly made itself felt agreeably in negotiations,” a staff member at the German Embassy in Cairo wrote in 1957.

Some, like the propagandist Johann von Leers, remained committed Nazis and anti-Semites, and were well aware that Egyptian leaders hoped to avenge the humiliating defeat by Israel. Dr. Hans Eisele, twice convicted for crimes as a concentration camp physician, fled to Cairo as investigators once again closed in on him.

When the West German government demanded that the Egyptians extradite him, they bluntly refused. The Israelis were concerned enough about the Cairo Germans — in particular their missile-making expertise — to dispatch an undercover agent to Cairo.

A letter bomb nearly blinded the German secretary working for one of the rocket scientists. Another device addressed to Dr. Eisele exploded prematurely in the hand of his Egyptian postman. But by and large they escaped retribution."

VII--On high level officials and some of America’s business tycoons’ interest in and intention of saving Hitler.

Powerful entities and people (Businessmen and officials from Germany, Great Britain, Ireland and the United States) protected Hitler from 1945 to 1965. Who are they? How did they operate? And what was their agenda? I am absolutely sure that an “elite” of some of the most powerful and influential businessmen in the United States, Ireland, Great Britain and Argentina played a vital and major role in protecting Adolf Hitler, before, during and after his escape to Argentina.

George Bush's grandfather, the late US senator Prescott Bush, was a director and shareholder of companies that profited from their involvement with the financial backers of Nazi Germany.

The Guardian has obtained confirmation from newly discovered files in the US National Archives that a firm of which Prescott Bush was a director was involved with the financial architects of Nazism.

His business dealings, which continued until his company's assets were seized in 1942 under the Trading with the Enemy Act, has led more than 60 years later to a civil action for damages being brought in Germany

From the Guardian

The Guardian: Prescott Bush Grandfather of President George Bush helped Adolf Hitler Rise to power.

Bush's Partnership with the Nazis, Hitler's War efforts and exploiting Nazi slave labour from the concentration camps, including Auschwitz.

The Guardian wrote (Excerpts): His (Prescott Bush) business dealings, which continued until his company's assets were seized in 1942 under the Trading with the Enemy Act, has led more than 60 years later to a civil action for damages being brought in Germany against the Bush family by two former slave labourers at Auschwitz and to a hum of pre-election controversy. The evidence has also prompted one former US Nazi war crimes prosecutor to argue that the late senator's action should have been grounds for prosecution for giving aid and comfort to the enemy.

New documents, many of which were only declassified last year, show that even after America had entered the war and when there was already significant information about the Nazis' plans and policies, he worked for and profited from companies closely involved with the very German businesses that financed Hitler's rise to power.

It has also been suggested that the money he made from these dealings helped to establish the Bush family fortune and set up its political dynasty.

Documents reveal that the firm he worked for, Brown Brothers Harriman (BBH), acted as a US base for the German industrialist, Fritz Thyssen, who helped finance Hitler in the 1930s before falling out with him at the end of the decade.

The Guardian has seen evidence that shows Bush was the director of the New York-based Union Banking Corporation (UBC) that represented Thyssen's US interests and he continued to work for the bank after America entered the war.

During the war, the company made use of Nazi slave labour from the concentration camps, including Auschwitz. The ownership of CSSC changed hands several times in the 1930s, but documents from the US National Archive declassified last year link Bush to CSSC, although it is not clear if he and UBC were still involved in the company when Thyssen's American assets were seized in 1942. By November, the Silesian-American Company, another of Prescott Bush's ventures, had also been seized.

The third set of documents, also at the National Archives, is contained in the files on IG Farben, who was prosecuted for war crimes. A report issued by the Office of Alien Property Custodian in 1942 stated of the companies that "since 1939, these (steel and mining) properties have been in possession of and have been operated by the German government and have undoubtedly been of considerable assistance to that country's war effort."

Thyssen Has $3,000,000 Cash in New York Vaults

Union Banking Corp. May Hide Nest Egg for High Nazis He Once Backed

By M. Jay Racusin

In the tides of economic warfare now surging over the world, the New York Herald Tribune has discovered that Fritz Thyssen, the German industrialist who was Adolf Hitler's original patron on a prodigal scale a decade ago, has $3,000,000 in American cash salted away in the bank vaults of downtown New York.

In the American colony of Thyssen enterprises perhaps the most interesting is the Union Banking Corporation, 39 Broadway, nominal guardian of the $3,000,000 cache, all in United States currency—a sort of nest egg for Herr Thyssen or perhaps for some of his high-placed Nazi friends when the present troublous days are over.

Among other Thyssen interests in New York are half a dozen corporations engaged in the shipping, export and import trades, centering chiefly about the coal and steel industries and operating under the wing of the Union Banking Corporation. These organizations did a thriving business in rolling up dollars for Herr Thyssen in years past, but have been brought virtually to a standstill during the last year by the war.

Money Held By Investment Firm Formed By German Industrialist In 1924

NEW YORK, Aug. 1 —(INS)— Existence of a $3,000,000 fund established here by Fritz Thyssen, German industrialist and original backer of Adolf Hitler, was disclosed today in a news story in The New York Journal American.

The story added:

Whether the money is for Thyssen personally, or, perhaps for some of his high-placed Nazi friends in the event of an "emergency" compelling them to leave Germany, no one knew.

However, it will do neither Thyssen nor any of his Nazi friends any good now, as it has been "frozen" along with the $4,500,000,000 Axis assets now held in this country.

The money exists in funds of the Union Banking Corp., an investment company incorporated and licensed under New York State laws in Aug., 1924.

Money for its $400,000 capital stock came from Thyssen's bank Voor Handel en Scheepvaart in Rotterdam.

SEVERAL AMERICANS MEMBERS OF BOARD

Among members of its board of directors are E. R. Harriman, Ray Morris and Prescott S. Bush, partners in the firm of Brown Brothers Harriman and Company, of which W. Averell Harriman is now American minister plenipotentiary to England.

Also a director is H. D. Pennington, Brown Brothers Harriman and Co. manager.

On Jan. 14, 1941, Knight Woolley, another partner in the Harriman company, wrote to State Banking Superintendent William R. White in behalf of Harriman, Morris, Bush and Pennington:

"Should the United States enter the war, they feel they might be under some embarrassment because of their connection with the bank, even tho we have no financial interest in the Union Banking Corp., nor do we participate in its earnings."

He asked White for "a frank expression from you as to the action" the Harriman directors should take. Their own impulse, he indicated, was to resign en masse from Thyssen's bank.

White, however, replied on May 13:

"While the department would not feel free to object if your partners, Mr. Harriman, Mr. Morris and Mr. Bush, and your firm's manager, Mr. Pennington, should desire to resign as directors of the corporation, nevertheless the department would be gratified if these gentlemen could find it possible to remain on the board during this period of uncertainty."

FORMED TO LOOK AFTER U. S. INTERESTS

He plainly indicated that he considered it best, if Thyssen or other Nazi money was tied up in the Union Banking Corp. to keep the corporation under Harriman's, Morris's, Bush's and Pennington's control, thus effectively checkmating whatever Thyssen's plan might be.

All of the shares of the Union Banking Corp. are registered in the name of E. R. Harriman, who is chairman of the board, except the qualifying shares held by other directors.

Woolley related the circumstances leading to the selection of the Harriman partners on the board of directors. He said:

"Our partner, W. A. Harriman, was in Europe in 1925 and at that time he became acquainted with Fritz Thyssen.

"To the best of my knowledge, Thyssen formed the Bank Voor Handel en Scheepvaart, and presumably controlled that institution.

"At one of his meetings with Mr. Harriman he told him he was forming a bank in New York to look after his interests in the United States, and he asked Mr. Harriman to serve on the board.

"Mr. Harriman agreed that certain of his associates would serve in this capacity, and as a result various members of the Harriman organization, now Brown Brothers, Harriman and Co., have been on the board ever since."

Woolley told The New York Journal-American his partners had acted "merely as a matter of business courtesy" in becoming directors of the Union Banking Corp. He emphasized they had accepted the posts before the present world situation.

PRESIDENT IS NOW NATURALIZED CITIZEN

"Frankly," he said, "I haven't any idea if that money is Dutch or German. The fact that it might be a nest egg for a German official never even occurred to me."

President of the Union Banking Corp. is Cornelis Lievense, Holland-born, who came to the United States by way of Montreal in May, 1926, two years after the bank was set up.

He is now a naturalized American citizen.

He is president also of the Domestic Fuel Corp., Seamless Steel Equipment Corp., and Holland-American Trading Corp., all of which share the Union Banking Corp.'s offices.

The assets of all three of these firms also have been "frozen" by the U. S. government, Lievense admitted.

Thyssen himself, according to best obtainable advices, is now back in Germany. For a time he wandered about Switzerland, France and other European countries.

His present status is said to be that of, perhaps, a willing prisoner not in confinement but under surveillance, perhaps a hostage for his wealth thruout the world.

VIII--HITLER'S VISITORS IN ARGENTINA

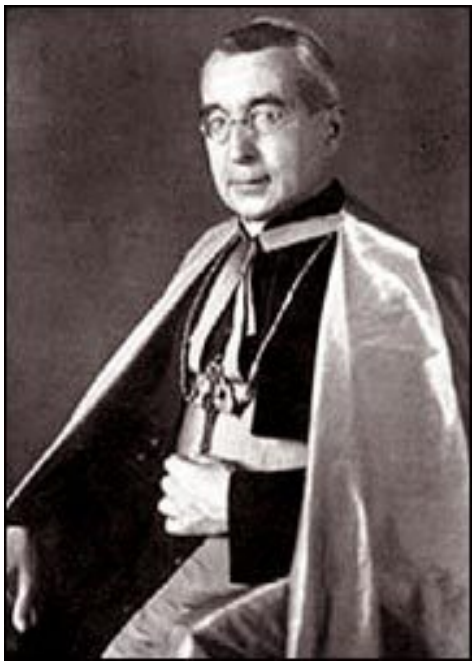

Numerous Nazi leaders, businessmen, SS officers, and war criminals visited Adolf Hitler in Argentina between 1945 and 1965. Some are revealed in this section of the book.

Their names were found in the files of the Secretaría de Inteligencia de Estado (SIDE), the vaults of Rodolfo Freude who served as director of Division de Informaciones of President Peron, and in the secret files of Abdul Hamid Al-Sarraj who was the head of Le Deuxieme Bureau "Syrian military intelligence".

Rodolfo Freude of a German descent was a notorious Nazi who smuggled thousands of Nazi and SS officers to Argentina. An estimated number of 5,200 Nazis escaped to Argentina after World War Two.

During the war, President Juan Peron sold 10,150 blank Argentine passports to Nazis; this was confirmed by Kurt Schrimm, the head of Germany's central war criminal authority. Schrimm's colleague Uwe Steintz said, "No less than 800 SS war criminals escaped from Germany using passports provided by the International Red Cross and the Vatican, and many passports were issued under a false name. The mastermind of these operations was Bishop Alois Hudal." For instance, in 1952 in Argentina, Adolf Eichmann used the alias of Ricardo Klement. Additional 20,000 Germans escaped to Brazil, between 1945 and 1959 according to Brazil's national archives (Immigration records) "Arquivo Nacional".

Bishop Alois Hudal

The personal files of Bishop Alois Hudal, Rector of the Collegio Teutonico Seminary of Santa Maria dell'Anima in Rome, contained references to Nazis who visited Adolf Hitler in Argentina, and German scientists who flew to Antarctica. Our intelligence agents in Rome and Argentina compiled a huge file on Vatican's officials who helped thousands of Nazi war criminals and collaborators like Dr. Josef Mengele and Adolf Eichmann, to escape after World War Two from Germany to South America.

Nota bene: By no means this list is complete, for many of the pages from the secret files of Rodolfo Freude were either lost or destroyed by those who wanted to hide the truth and save the Americans and the British lots of troubles and embarrassment.
Add to the fact that numerous Nazis who fled to South America, Egypt and Syria have always denied that Hitler was living in Argentina after World War Two, however, a considerable number of statements issued by some of those Nazis and wanted war criminals who fled to the Near East and worked for the secret police and intelligence of Egypt and Syria documented the whereabouts of Hitler and names of Nazi officers who visited Hitler in Argentina, unfortunately, those accounts were not well-preserved in accessible files.
Occasionally, high-ranking officers in the Egyptian army and agents from the secret police of Syria would talk about the escape of Adolf Hitler to Argentina, and meetings which occurred in South America between Arab military delegations, Nazi officers in South America and Hitler in Argentina. But none of their statements or accounts were ever officially recorded, or at least made public.

Hitler’s first visitors (First persons to meet Hitler in Argentina)

On the 28th of July 1945, around 2:00 AM, Adolf Hitler and Eva Braun landed on the Argentinean coast, and were received by General Hermann Fegelein, Rodolfo Freude, two agents from Argentina’s SIDE, approximately twenty-five SS, an envoy of Mrs. Ida Eichhorn and her husband Walter Eichhorn, owners of Eden Hotel in La Falda in Cordoba, Argentina, and an envoy of Count Luxburg.
Later on, and between 1945 and 1949, Adolf Hitler and Eva Braun would meet the Eichhorns on numerous occasions.

We don’t have enough data and documentation on Hitler’s visitors between 1945 and 1947, for the personal notes of Rodolfo Freude covering those two years vanished from the face of the Earth. Some insiders have claimed that Freude himself intentionally destroyed those notes, because they made reference to two secret meetings which included Juan Peron, Eva Peron, a Vatican’s representative and a close confident to Pope Pius XII, a former senior executive from the Reichbank, and a very powerful member from the royal family of the United Kingdom.

In 1946, Erich Priebke escaped from a British prison camp in the city of Rimini, Italy.
In Rome, Bishop Alois Hudal provided him with a false passport bearing the name of Otto Pape, which allowed him to travel to Argentina, where he settled in S. Carlos di Bariloche, the new hometown of Hitler.
In Argentina, Priebke became a successful businessman. He managed to hide his true identity for many years, until the TV camera crew of Sam Donaldson caught up with him at the front gate of his business.

From France 24:
Erich Priebke, a former SS officer sentenced to life in prison for his role in a 1944 massacre in Rome, died on Friday at age 100, Italian news reports said. Nazi war criminal Erich Priebke died Friday in Rome aged 100 after serving nearly 15 years under house arrest for a World War II massacre in Italy for which he never expressed remorse. Priebke was sentenced to life in prison in 1998 for his role in a bloodbath at Rome's Ardeatine caves in March 1944 that left 335 people dead, including 75 Jews. Because of his age and ill-health, he was allowed to serve out his life sentence at the home of his lawyer Paolo Giachini, who told AFP the former SS captain had died aged 100.

Erich Priebke arrested in Italy in 2015.

Priebke managed like so many Nazis to escape to Argentina at the end of World War II, evading the 1948 trial in Rome of other perpetrators. There he resumed his former profession of hotelier, living under his own name and becoming a respected member of the local German community.

He retained his German passport, even travelling to Italy, Germany and the United States. He lived in Argentina for more than 40 years before being extradited to Italy in 1995, and every year on April 20, he and former comrades gathered to celebrate Hitler's birthday.

In April 2011, the Italian magazine Oggi sparked a scandal with photographs showing the former Nazi officer dining at a restaurant with friends, riding a motorbike and shopping at a supermarket.

Reinhard Kopps, Hitler’s neighbor in Bariloche.

Reinhard Kopps

Reinhard Kopps caught by Sam Donaldson in Argentina.

Reinhard Kopps was the principal assistant to bishop Hudal and editor of Der Weg in Buenos Aires, a Nazi publication in Argentina.
In Rome, Bishop Alois Hudal provided him with a false passport bearing the name of Juan Maler, which allowed him to travel to Argentina, and settle in Bariloche until his death.
From Mariano Cordero, Bariloche correspondent:
"Ex-nazi officer dies reported for crimes of war"-Mariano Cordero Bariloche, correspondent.
Reinhard Kopps, an ex SS officer whose report allowed the extradition and sentece of Erich Priebke, died yesterday in Bariloche at 86. Kopps was known in the Patagonia with the false name Juan Maler, which he used to get into Argentina and escape the international justice.
In the last decade, Kopps had been reported for multiple crimes committed in nazi concentration camps.
But nobody could ever gather sufficient evidences for his extradition and judgement.
The Simon Wiesenthal Center accused him of having organized ethnic crimes in Albania where thousands of jewish were deported and killed. He was also reported for alleged activities as an ideologist of neo nazi groups in all over the world. Kopps wrote several books: "The Great Rebellion", "Every Man for Himself", "Against God and Nature", all written in german. His name became known around the world when he reported the SS Captain Erich Priebke for his participation in the massacre of the Ardeatines graves.

For the majority of Bariloche's neighbors Kopps wasn't related with a past of atrocities till that moment. He was just Juan Maler, the owner of the Hotel Campana (within Belgrano), and an efficient properties administrator. But the american ABC channel finished with the low shape of Kopps. A reporter obtained information about the ex SS officer and came for him. The ex nazi denied any crime but gave to the reporter an important name: Erich Priebke. Interviewed by the same reporter at the outside of the german school "Primo Capraro", Priebke (Director of the Institute) confirmed his participation in the masacre were 335 people were killed on March 24th, 1944. From that moment, a large judicial process began and finished with the extradition and sentence of Priebke. For great part of the german community and other local european communities Maler-Kopps became the number one public enemy.
Yesterday Kopps's relatives announced his death with the name Juan Reinhard Maler, a combination of two of the identities that the SS officer used during his life. "

From the Los Angeles Times:
"As Hier tells it, an agent of the Wiesenthal Center working in Germany had heard that a man named Reinhard Kops was living in Argentina under an assumed name. Kops, Hier said, had helped spirit Nazi fugitives out of Europe and into Argentina at the end of World War II. The center couldn't do anything with the tip, because it appeared that Kops couldn't be linked to war crimes.
But word of his whereabouts made its way to ABC reporter Sam Donaldson, who showed up in Bariloche with a camera crew and confronted Kops on the street. Under rapid-fire querying from Donaldson, Kops finally admitted his identity but then asked the journalists why they were bothering with a nobody like him when he could lead them to Priebke."

Heinrich Hoffman, Adolf Hitler’s friend, and official photographer.

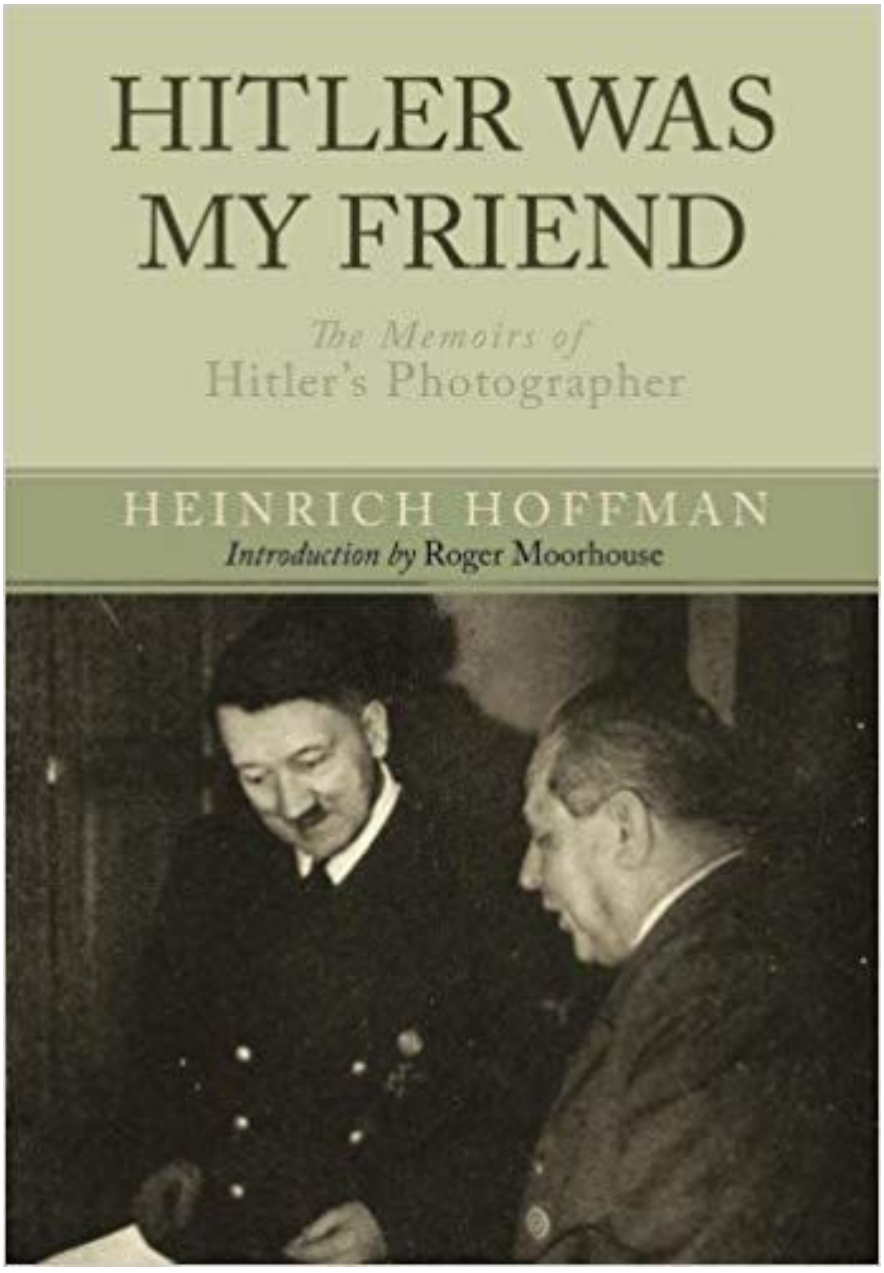

Heinrich Hoffman

Hoffman was behind the theatrical photos of Adolf Hitler.
The theatrical pictures of Hitler were taken by Hoffman while Hitler was listening to his own speeches.
Hoffman is the author of “Hitler Was My Friend: The Memoirs of Hitler’s Photographer.”

From a review of the book: “As official ‘court’ photographer, Heinrich Hoffmann played a critical role in the painstaking cultivation of Hitler’s public image and the glorification of the Third Reich. However, his influence stretched far beyond the realm of propaganda.

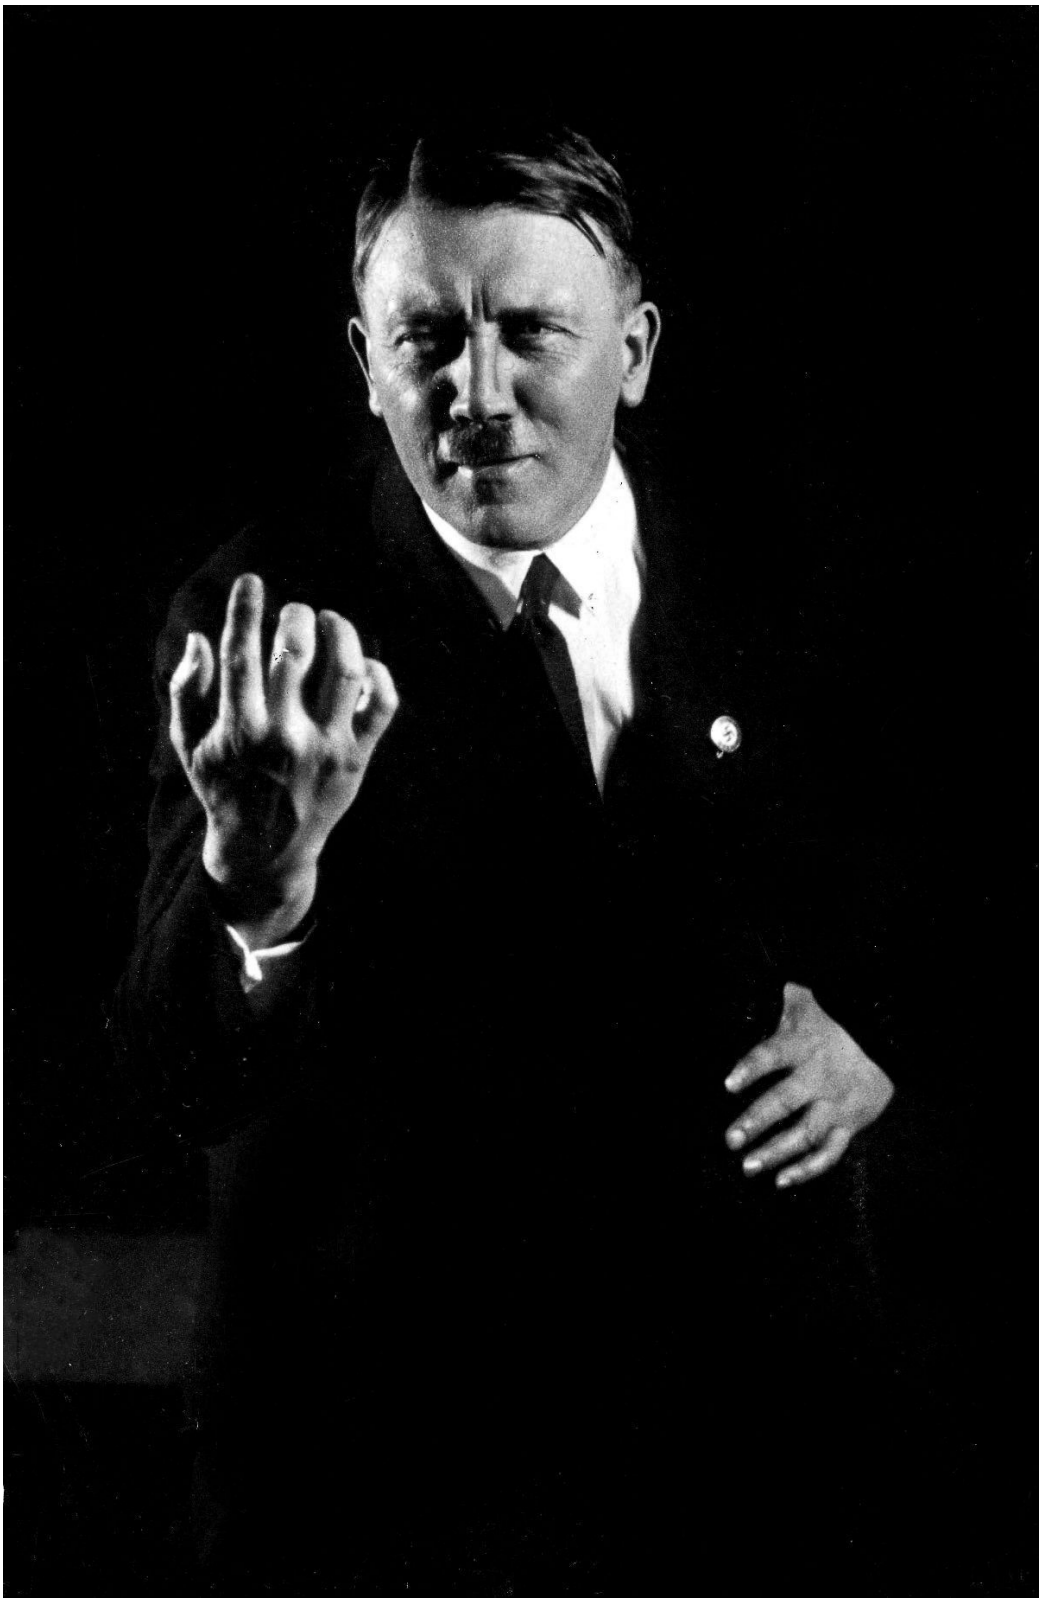

Not only was he present during many of the key moments in the history of the Third Reich – he was also a close, personal friend of the Führer with exclusive and intimate access to Hitler’s inner circle and to the man himself.

It was Hoffman who introduced Hitler to Eva Braun, his studio assistant. He took over two million photographs of Hitler and published several books including The Hitler Nobody Knows (1933). At the end of the war, Hoffman was arrested by the US military, who seized his photographic archive, and was sentenced to imprisonment for Nazi profiteering.

Cover of the book.

His memoirs are a crucial eyewitness source for the historian and general reader alike, offering an illuminating glimpse of the dictator’s personality and a remarkable, behind-the-scenes account of the Nazi regime.”

SS Dr. Aribert Ferdinand Heim

Aribert Ferdinand Heim

Also known as Dr. Death, Heim was accused of killing thousands of prisoners by injecting toxic compounds and agents in their hearts. After the war, he travelled to Cairo, Egypt, Damascus, Syria and to Argentina.

In Egypt, he converted to Islam in an official ceremony at Al Azhar and took the name of Tarek Hussein Farid.
Based upon a recommendation from Gamal Abdel Nasser, he got the job of a military physician, and for six months he worked as a physician for the Egyptian Air Force. This was confirmed to me in 1974 by Egyptian Air Force General Isam Al-Din Al Khalil, while he was my guest in Rome, Italy. Heim died in Cairo on August 10, 1992.
General Isam Al-Din Al Khalil also told me that after World War Two, Egypt harbored hundreds of Nazis, especially scientists and high-ranking officers, who later joined the Egyptian military war machine.
He added that President Gamal Abdel Nasser was able to talk to Adolf Hitler who was -then- living in Argentina, and that a secret Egyptian military delegation met with Hitler in Argentina.
In addition, a secret unit was created in Cairo to coordinate direct communications between the Egyptian Moukhabarat (Intelligence) and highly efficient Nazi officers and Nazi scientists who fled to Brazil and to Argentina.

However, this rumor was never substantiated, even though, according to statements issued by Nazi officers who fled to Damascus and Cairo that de facto, important Americans and influential businessmen from England, Scotland and the United States have met Hitler in Argentina after the war.

Axmann was the first Nazi to claim to have seen the dead body of Martin Bormann near a bridge in Berlin in 1945. Axmann lied to the American military and intelligence interrogators about the fate of Hitler and Bormann. He also testified that he heard the shot that killed Adolf Hitler. Both statements were untrue.

Although he was in the bunker, Axmann could have not heard the shot in any shape or form, simply because he was neither inside Hitler's room, nor in the corridor, outside Hitler's room, according to military interrogations. As to Bormann, he did not die in 1945, and his body was never found. IX--Why the Allies and the United States failed to capture Adolf Hitler in Argentina?

Question #1: Why didn't the Allies and especially the United States go right away after Hitler after the war since they knew that he escaped to Bariloche, Argentina?

The answer:

Reason #1: Britain was still bleeding from WWII and it military resources, capabilities, weapons and logistics were diminished considerably.

England was no longer in a position to enter a new war, add to the fact the British population had enough and ipso facto would not support such decision. France's military forces were insignificant, and the French people would have revolted against their government should France have decided to invade Argentina, thus launching another war which France had no hope of winning.

Reason #2: As to the Americans, well. they were working on a secret plan which they hoped to be able to execute once CIA agents and foreign spies' intelligence reports would reveal without any doubt the exact location of Adolf Hitler. In other words, they were waiting for the right time and the right place. And both came upon intercepting a message sent from Hitler HQ in Antarctica to Nazi agents in Chile.

We have learned from a secret intelligent report sent by the secret Argentinian military intelligence to Juan Peron that some of Hitler's HQ messages from Antarctica revealed that Hitler was planning on spending 3 months in Antarctica until the completion of a second underwater (Under-ice) naval base. The 3-month period was sufficient for the United States to plan and execute a surprise attack on Antarctica and capture of Adolf Hitler.

*** *** ***

Question #2: Why the Allies and the United States failed to capture Adolf Hitler in Argentina?

The answer:

Reason #1: They could not pin point the exact location of Hitler.

Contrary to a common belief, Adolf Hitler did not live exclusively and continuously in one single place such as Bariloche in Argentina for he had additional residences, hiding places and bases in Argentina, Chile and Antarctica.
Of course, the Allies knew about the whereabouts of Hitler, but finding Hitler at the right hiding place and at the right time was quasi-impossible.
However, on one occasion, CIA's agents in Chile intercepted a communication between Hitler and Nazi agents in Chile which revealed beyond the shadow of a doubt where Hitler was hiding at the very moment the interception occurred; and that particular communication originated from Antarctica.
This very interception of Hitler's communication led to the United States' failed invasion of Antarctica, aka Operation Highjump.
Reason #2: They were defeated by Hitler's resisting forces.
They failed to capture Hitler, even though they discovered the exact location of his hiding place and mounted a huge attack on Antarctica, because their forces were almost decimated by a mysterious countering force of an extraordinary superiority in materials, weaponry and air force.
Note: Please refer to Section: Operation Highjump.

Question #3: Why the Allies and especially United States did not want any longer to capture Adolf Hitler?
The answer:
Great Britain and the United States did not want to capture Hitler and bring him to a public trial because:
Reason #1: The mysterious Hitler's Antarctica army is invincible.
Note: Please refer to Section: Operation Highjump.
Reason #2: Both Great Britain and the United States were desperately seeking advanced and secret German technology, especially in the fields of missiles, rocketry, avionics, anti-gravity, and space exploration.
In fact, after the war, the United States recruited over 2,500 Nazi scientists under the umbrella of Operation Paperclip.
(Note: Please refer to section: Operation Paperclip).
Reason #3: Great Britain and the United States needed Nazi officers' knowledge and experience to annihilate the expansion of world communism, t0 stop the infiltration of communist spies in Europe, and to provide England and the United States with all the files, data, archives, information and secret reports on Soviet Russia, the Red Army and Russian agents and operatives in Eastern Europe and especially in the Balkan countries. De facto, the United States did not know enough about communists' infiltration in Europe and especially in Germany and France. The OSS files on Russian agents and spies were not very impressive.

Reason #4: The United States did not want to further alienate the German people in Western Germany. The U.S. needed the support and cooperation of German population, thus enabling them to be fully prepared to face the Bolshevik expansion and threat. The United States concentrated and focused its attention on the threat of communism. Adolf Hitler's capture was no longer a major concern, and Nazism was no longer on the front burner.

In a secret memo issued in April 1948 and sent to the Director of Intelligence at the Pentagon, Captain Bosquet Neill Wev stated word for word, "Investigations conducted by the military have disclosed the fact that the majority of German scientists were members of either the Nazi Party or one or more of its affiliates."

However, in mid of March 1948, Wev wrote a letter to the State Department, in which he stated the following, "Nazism no longer should be a serious consideration from a viewpoint of national security when the far greater threat of Communism is now jeopardizing the entire world."

X--Hitler’s Meeting with American Scientists.

American scientists did meet with Hitler in Argentina in 1953.
A deal was signed or agreed upon between the United States “American Triumvir” and Hitler.
-Was the deal part of the re-emergence of a Fourth Reich? Did Hitler plan on the rebirth of his Aryan race?
-No! The Americans were interested in secret Nazi technology pertaining to space, anti-gravity aircrafts and flying machines (Some have erroneously called them UFOs), some sort of bombs, more destructive than the Atomic Bomb, and so on.
While Hitler’s major interest rotated around his own safety, an autonomous Nazi organism free of American and Russian intervention, and above all, an absolute guarantee from the United States that America will not interfere in Hitler’s present and future plan to safeguard said “peaceful” organism, which will not cause any threat to the United States.
-Did the United States agree?
-Yes!
-Was the CIA part of the deal?
-No!
-Was the FBI informed? Did Hoover know about the deal?
-No.
-Did Great Britain, France or the Soviet Union know about the Hitler-Triumvir deal?
-No.
-Did the United States Congress know about the deal?
-No.
One of the subjects which was discussed and agreed upon: The renewal of the deal of a Canadian non-fly zone, which was agreed upon in 1952.

The Hitler-American Triumvir Meeting after WWII

After WWII, Dr. Edward Teller, Dr. Wernher von Braun, and Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer met with Adolf Hitler in 1953 in Argentina. (Note: The date was not verified).

The CIA (created by Truman in 1947; its predecessor the OSS “Office of Strategic Services”) and the NSA (Created by President Truman in 1952; and its predecessor the AFSA “Armed Forces Security Agency which was created on May 20, 1949) never knew about the meeting.

Adolf Hitler told the triumvir that the New World Order (Germanic New Order) will destroy the United States in a heartbeat with Germany’s terrifying wonder-weapons (Like Anti-gravity flying machines which Germany could not put to an effective use during the war) should the United States interfere in Germany’s GNO affairs.

Some insiders have claimed that either in Argentina or at the Antarctic German colony, Adolf Hitler showed them underground factories of recently developed and manufactured German flying discs and anti gravity crafts of various designs and shapes such as (To name a few):

Flying discs, triangular anti-gravity aircrafts, tube-shaped crafts, and huge motherships:

- 1-Die Mutterschiff Einsatzkommando, S1 & S2
- 2-Neuer Bestellugsstrom
- 3-Schwarzer Wind
- 4-Deutsche Tornado-Wut
- 5-Mehrlagige Kuppel
- 6-Die Schwerkraft Aufhebemaschine
- 7-Die Glocke RFZ

Argentina’s Juan Peron, who benefited from Nazi Technology, and opened his doors to Hitler until his death in 1965.

Hitler introduced the triumvir to Juan Peron, who benefited tremendously from the Nazi’s technology. The triumvir also met with Lt. Colonel Walter Horten and Lt. Colonel Reimar Horten, inventors of the Horten 229 (H-229) and the lesser known 209 H-V1. (The H-229 were the half-crescent-shaped, winged crafts spotted by Ken Arnold, and which were mistakenly called flying saucers).

And at a later time, Dr. von Braun and Dr. Edward Teller met with German scientist and Nazi pilot Kurt Tank who was very important to Juan Peron, because he modernized Argentina' Air Force.
Under the leadership of Kurt Tank, Argentina produced two highly advanced jet aircrafts, which reached a speed of 1,000 kilometers per hour, the Ta 183 Huckebein, the IA 58 Pucara and the IA 63 Pampa.

Note: The United States and Great Britain tried very hard to recruit Kurt Tank but to no avail.

Colonel Reimar Horten and his brother Walter Horten. Years later, the United States Air Force will copy the German Horten and produced its own version of the stealth wing-jet.

The Russians out of the Loop!

The Russians knew what was going on through their agents and spies in Argentina, Brazil, Peru, Portugal, Spain, Sweden and Chile. At one time, they even tried to obtain pertinent information from their “communist” priests-spies inside the Vatican. The Russians did not get the whole picture.

They tried again to recruit spies and double agents, as well as new spies from the circle of scientists who worked at Los Alamos.
A former general at the NKVD wrote an extensive report on Hitler-Triumvir's meeting and tried to sell it to Der Spiegel. The report was either intercepted or allegedly bought by one of America's most powerful families, who in the past financed major enterprises in Germany.

Talking to Hitler

Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer did not like what he heard from Hitler and what he saw in Argentina. He was planning on going public. The administration began to watch him very closely.
And Teller enjoyed the show. In 1954, Dr. Oppenheimer lost his top security clearance; it was revoked that year.
The administration discredited him, and he had to face an imminent danger, perhaps death, unless he keeps his mouth shut.

This was his life's greatest and most horrifying demise. Many observers link his demise not to his sympathy for communism, but to what he was going to disclose.
The man lost everything, but his life was sparred. He understood that spilling the beans and breaching the oath of secrecy is treason. He faded away. And all the Glory went to Teller who ironically was a Jew--- go figure!!
It was a great opportunity for Teller to get rid of his Los Alamos Boss, Dr. Oppenheimer. He hated him for he was so jealous of his success and fame.

As a matter of fact, in 1954, Teller testified against Oppenheimer in the infamous Oppenheimer's security hearing orchestrated by the administration and the United States Atomic Energy Commission.

Dr. Teller.

Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer testifying before the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy, in 1954.

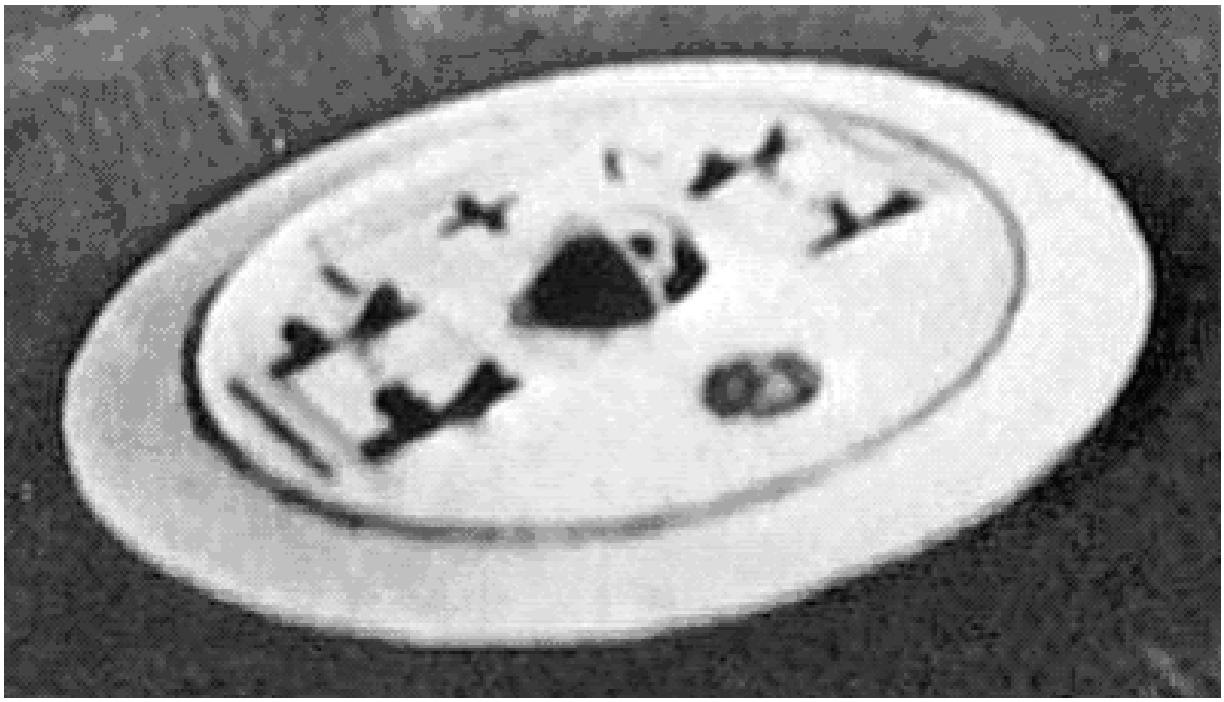

Edward Teller spread rumors that Oppenheimer was a Russian spy. He was not! The spy was Theodore Hall, a young physicist at Los Alamos.
From the PBS American Experience: “Teller testified very cleverly. And in the years since then, he's denied that he planned it all out in advance, but the record is very clear that he discussed his testimony at least a month before he arrived in Washington, with several people.
Dr. Teller testified that he felt the nation would be more secure if Oppenheimer were not in government. He didn't say he was a security risk. He said, "I would feel personally more secure."
Richard Rhodes stated publicly, “But he (Oppenheimer) was destroyed. And he died.
And that was the end of Robert Oppenheimer.
A really tragic event. The Dreyfus of America, if you will.”
What a shameful scam! Rhodes added: “Teller was an outcast, as a result of that testimony. There was a famous incident at Los Alamos soon afterward, where people refused to shake his hand. And he was shaken, and went back to his room, and was extremely upset.”
It was so obvious and so bizarre, that von Braun and Teller became “close friends” short after their meeting with Hitler.
History books do not always tell the truth, especially if they are written by the victorious and the powerful.
Intelligent and decent people don’t suddenly believe bad rumors and gossip. Idiots and vicious people do, and they rush to give ill and venomous judgments based solely on hearsay and false allegations.
The Internet and many bloggers are a perfect example.
The administration remained à bâtons rompus in touch with the Germanic New World Order and Adolf Hitler until his death in September 1965.
One observant reported that the triumvir learned “alarming and highly significant stuff” from its meeting with the Nazis after WWII, and it was “extremely vital to the national security of the United States, and the future development of extraordinary futuristic weapons programs to be carried out, coordinated and co-accomplished with German scientists.” And as history showed us, it did happen.

Working with Nazi scientists and Hitlers' engineers.

It was an absolute necessity for the United States of America to work with Nazi scientists, and cooperate with Hitler's engineers and jet designers in utmost secrecy, in order to develop and improve the United States arsenal, new weapons systems and the United States Air Force capabilities (Stealth and futuristic anti-gravity airplanes, fighters, triangular-shaped crafts, and flying discs.)

Operation Paperclip

The United States Needed Nazi Germany's Scientists.
The American administration had to keep its mouth shut!

Major General Hugh Knerr, "We needed the Germans…"

Back then, Operation Paperclip was a top-secret operation. Finally, the word got out in 1972, and by 1973-1974, Operation Paperclip was declassified.

This operation was deemed necessary, and recruiting Nazi scientists was authorized by President Harry Truman. According to Major General Hugh Knerr, then, the Deputy Commander of the United States Strategic Forces in Europe, “The Germans were way ahead of us, especially in the development of weapons systems.” And based upon what he read and discovered in numerous files of the SS and the Luftwaffe, the Allies captured in Germany, General Hugh Knerr advised President Truman to “round up” Nazi scientists and “ship” them to the United States. He also wrote two detailed reports on Germany’s rockets and “other” unidentified flying objects, which he submitted to 4-star General Carl Spaatz.

Lt. General Spatz

General Spaatz said to President Truman, “If we don’t get the German scientists, first…the Russians will…”
General Donovan, head of the OSS warned the President that recruiting Nazi scientists is illegal. President Truman was very concerned, and he ordered the OSS and other military intelligence units to check up on the political affiliation of those scientists, and stated very clearly that any German scientist who had a close tie to the SS and/or is a member of the Nazi party, will not be recruited and sent to America. Mr. Hoover, then Director of the FBI did a magnificent job in investigating the German scientists.
Dr. von Braun managed to convince the President that America needed those scientists whether they were Nazi or not.
Reluctantly, the President accepted, and many of the allegedly criminal records of German scientists vanished from the face of the Earth. And thus, two military intelligence units and later, the JIOA (Joint Intelligence Objectives Agency) began to establish the recruitment’s procedures under the direct control of Captain Bosquet Neill Wev, then, the Director of the JIOA.

“Nazism no longer should be a serious consideration.”

In a secret memo issued in April 1948 sent to the Director of Intelligence at the Pentagon, Captain Bosquet Neill Wev stated word for word, “Investigations conducted by the military have disclosed the fact that the majority of German scientists were members of either the Nazi Party or one or more of its affiliates.”
However, in mid of March 1948, Wev wrote a letter to the State Department, in which he stated the following, “Nazism no longer should be a serious consideration from a viewpoint of national security when the far greater threat of Communism is now jeopardizing the entire world.”
During 1948, Wev and other high-ranking officers facilitated additional Nazi scientists’ recruitments and “friendly” meetings and interviews with Germany leading scientists, such as Lt. Colonel Reimar Horten, the inventor of the Horten 229 (The Wing-Jets formation spotted by Ken Arnold over Mt. Rainier in Washington State).
Back then, everybody believed that recruiting Nazi scientists and exotic flying spacecrafts (RFC2), and the notorious Kraftstrahl Kanoen/Kraft Stahl Kanoen (Nazi Ray of Death Weapon) experts was the right thing to do. As a result, an elaborate new dossier on Antarctica' Nazi colony saw the light.

The White House, The Pentagon and the State Department were acting in the best interest of the United States, even though the investigations revealed that 98% of those German scientists were 100% Nazi.
In addition, our administration welcomed noted Nazi spies because of their impressive knowledge of the NKVD and Stalin's regime. The most notorious Nazi spy was Reinhard Gehlen.

Dr. von Braun, Head of Operation Paperclip with Nazi officers in 1941.

Below, you will find a self-explanatory document (Draft of Captain Wev). It is authentic , and secret.

OUTSTANDING GERMAN SCIENTISTS BEING BROUGHT TO U.S.

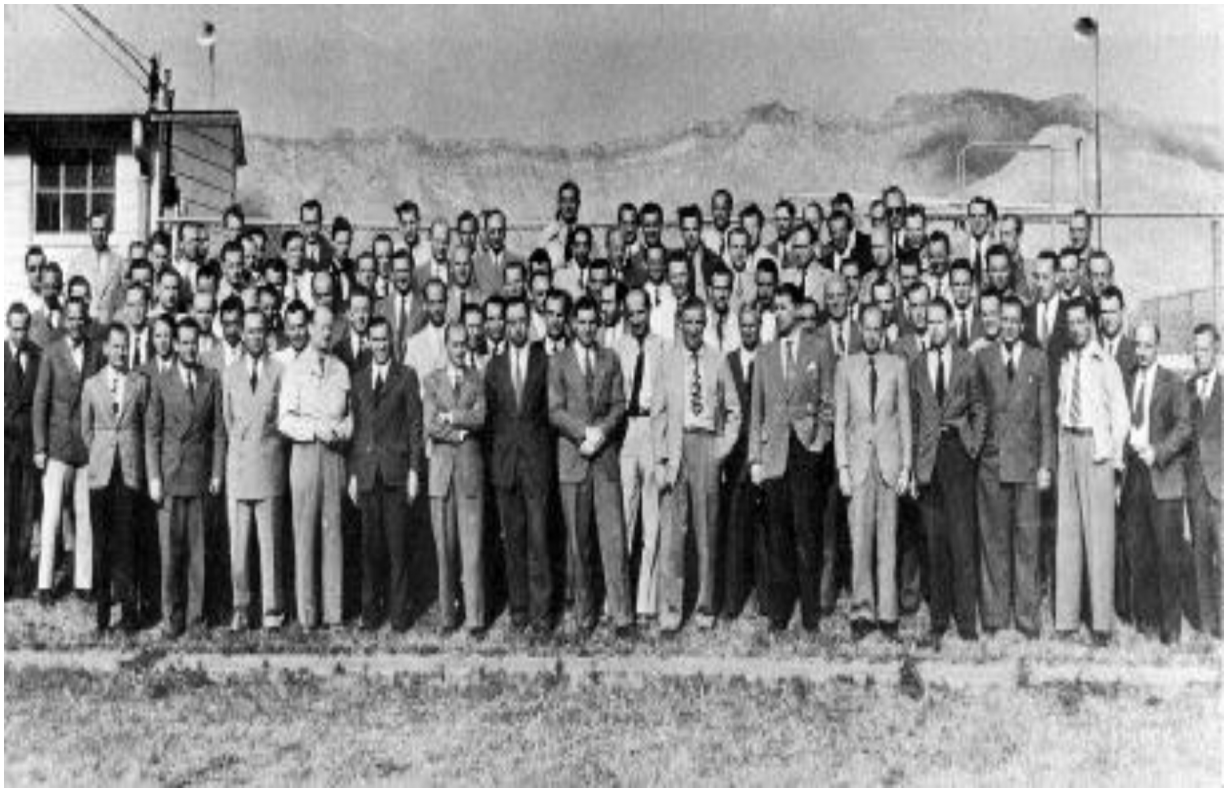

The Secretary of War has approved a project whereby certain understanding German scientists and technicians are being brought to this country to ensure that we take full advantage of those significant developments which are deemed vital to our national security.

Interrogation and examination of documents, equipments and facilities in the aggregate are but one means of exploiting German progress in science and technology. In order that this country may benefit fully from this resource a number of carefully selected scientists and technologists are being brought to the United States on a voluntary basis. These individuals have been chosen from those fields where German progress is of significant importance to us and in which these specialist have played a dominant role.

Throughout their temporary stay in the United States these German scientists and technical experts will be under the supervision of the War Department but will be utilized for appropriate military projects of the Army and Navy.

List of Hitler’s and Nazi Germany scientists who worked in Europe and at the Antarctic Base.

Below is a partial list of Hitler’s and Nazi Germany scientists from Poland, Austria, Germany and the Antarctica Base who were recruited by Dr. von Braun under the umbrella of Operation Paperclip, the United States government, the military, as well as multi-million Dollars companies in Canada and the United States.
The list is by no means complete; it includes a few hundreds instead of thousands. The list includes Nazi scientists, engineers and technicians who worked on advanced weapons systems and related projects, avionics, and propulsion systems, nuclear projects, and later on, worked on similar projects for NASA, the United States Air Force and the United States army.

Nazi German scientists from Europe and the Antarctic Base’s blueprints, sketches, illustrations, charts, maps, photos, graphs, and extremely well-documented archives, files and dossiers on various types and classes of anti-gravity flying machines, and experimental flying discs were captured by the United States and Russia after WWII.

XI--Chronology of Pertinent Events

Summary

APRIL 1945

April 20 th :

- The United States 7th army captured Nuremberg, Germany.
- Adolf Hitler celebrated his 56th birthday in the decimated Chancellery. Hitler's secretaries and several generals attended the party, to name some:

Eva Braun.

Generals/Marshalls/Admirals:
Admiral Karl-Jesco Otto Robert von Puttkammer.
General Alfred Jodel, Chief of Operations of the Armed Forces.
General Eckhard Christian.
General H. Fegelein.
General Hans Krebs.
General/Pilot Hans Baur.
General Heinrich Muller, head of the Gestapo.
General Johann Rattenhuber.
General Wilhelm Mohnke.
General Wilhelm Burgdorf.
Marshall Herman Goering.
Marshall Wilhelm Keitel, Chief of the État- major (General Staff).

Ministers/Ambassadors:
Albert Speer, Minister of Armaments.
Ambassador Walther Hewel.
Dr. Josef Goebbels, Minister of Propaganda.
Joachim von Ribbentrop, Minister of Foreign Affairs.

Personal Aides:

Heinz Linge, Hitler’s valet.
Major Otto Gunsche (Guensche)
Martin Bormann.

Physicians:
Dr. Theodor Morell, Hitler’s personal physician.

Dr. Theodor Morell

Dr. Ludwig Stumpfegger, Hitler’s personal surgeon.

Secretaries:
Christa Schroeder.
Gerda Christian.
Johanna Wolf.

Hitler’s house (Berghof) in Berchtesgaden.

- During the reception, Hitler gave short emotional speeches. Once the celebration was over, Hitler for a short moment, went outside the Bunker to review his Hitler’s Youth group and “decorate the kids” for their loyalty and bravery.

Saturday 21 st :

- Adolf Hitler’s final État- major meeting with his generals.
- Hitler ordered his adjutant, General Julius Schaub to burn all his personal and confidential papers and documents which he kept in his safe in the Bunker, and to fly to his house (Berghof) in Berchtesgaden to burn all his personal files, records and dossiers.

General Julius Schaub

Sunday 22 nd :

- General Julius Schaub destroyed Hitler's personal files, papers and documents. During his interrogation by the American Army, Schaub stated that he "obeyed the order of Adolf Hitler and flew to his house in Berchtesgaden on April 21, 1945." He added, "Hitler gave me 350,000 Marks to distribute among his (Hitler) relatives and Eva Braun relatives…" General Julius Schaub remained in prison until 1949. After his release, he managed a pharmacy in Munich. He died in 1967.

- Adolf Hitler's farewell: In the bunker, Hitler said goodbye to his generals, adjutants, assistants, aides, and secretaries. Then, he ordered them to leave their posts. Approximately 83 persons left the bunker.
- Martin Bormann, Dr. Joseph Goebbels, and General Fegelein were asked to remain in the bunker. But out of an extreme loyalty to Hitler, few stayed in the bunker.
- As reported, around 4.45 in the afternoon, Eva Braun disappeared from the bunker.
- Around 8.00 in the evening, General Fegelein left the bunker.
- As reported, around 8.20 in the evening, Adolf Hitler said goodbye to General Mueller and thanked him for his loyalty and services. Then told his valet, Heinz Linge, to give General Mueller an attaché, which according to General Mueller, contained 500.000 Swiss Francs, and a personal note from Hitler.
- Around 8.35 in the evening, and according to General Mueller, Hitler's double with a German shepherd dog arrived to the bunker.
- Around 9.25-10.00 PM, nine airplanes carrying some of the bunker's occupants (Assistants, aides and senior officers) flew from Berlin to Salzburg, Austria.
- According to Mueller, On April 22, 1945, around 8.50 PM, "Adolf Hitler left the garden of the Chancellery from the rear door, got out of the bunker and flew aboard a helicopter, type Focke Achgelis FA 223, en route to Hoerching airfield, Austria. Before his disappearance, General Mueller, General Rattenhuber and Linge, Hitler's valet, talked to Hitler for the last time. Note: Read other eyewitnesses' accounts on the time (Hour), Hitler left the bunker, as well as the account of General Mueller.

- According to Albert Speer, he tried to talk to Adolf Hitler, but he was unable to reach him. Albert Speers said that Bormann (And Goebbels in a separate statement) told me that “The Fuehrer was asleep.”

Albert Speer

Thursday 26 th :

- According to one account, Hitler, Eva Braun, and her brother-in-law General Fegelein flew from Berlin to Austria, and from Hoerching, Austria, they boarded an airplane type JU 290 en route to Spain. Another account tells a totally different story. Please refer to the section of Hitler's planned escape.

- According to General Mueller, from Hoerching Adolf Hitler boarded an airplane type JU 290A en route to Barcelona on April 26, around 8.00 PM.

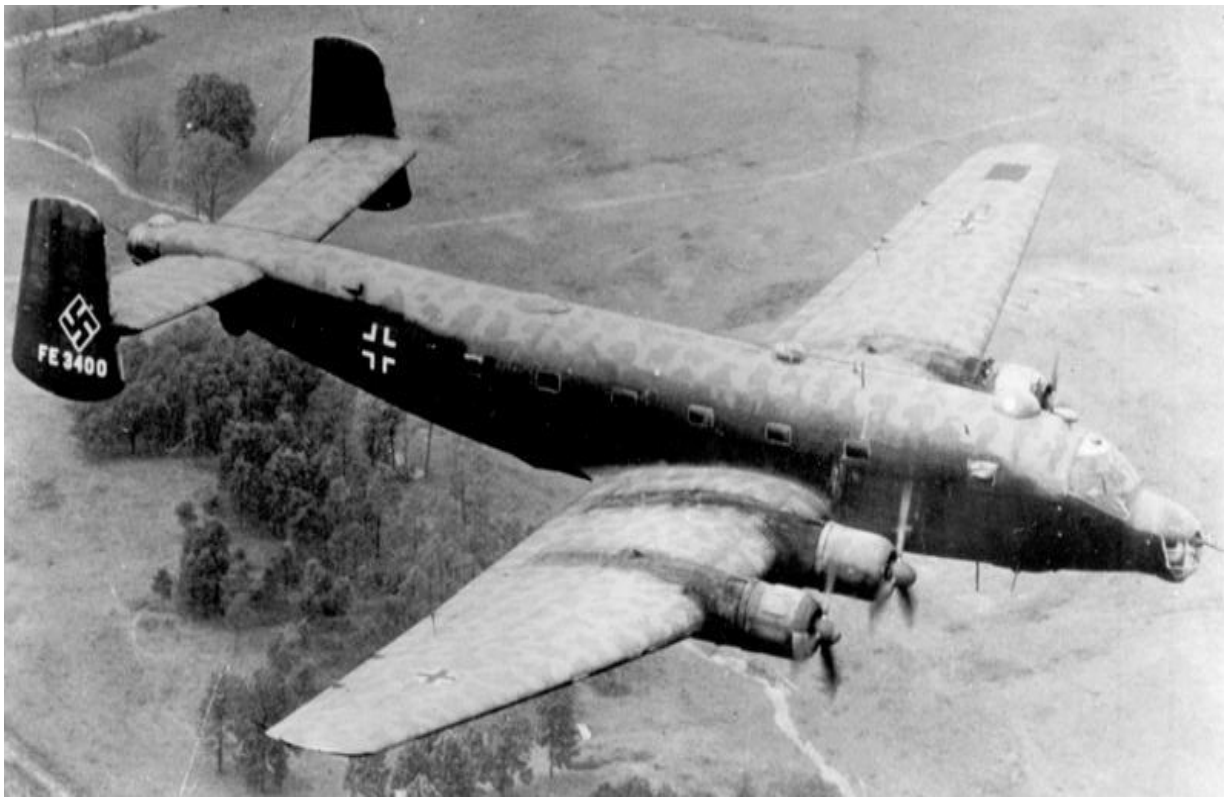

Friday, 27 th :

- According to one account, Hitler, Eva Braun, and her brother-in-law General Fegelein landed in Barcelona. Another account tells a different story.
- According to General Mueller, Hitler's airplane landed in Barcelona on April 27, 1945. He added, "I learned from Admiral Doenitz that Hitler arrived safely to Spain."

Saturday, 28 th :

- According to one military account, pilot Hanna Reitsch and Marshal Robert Ritter von Greim flew out of Berlin. Another account told us that on that day, Hanna Reitsch was already stationed in a German military naval base in the Baltic Sea, awaiting the arrival of Adolf Hitler. Dr. Otto Schumann and Leni Riefenstahl stated that Hanna Reitsch was ordered by Admiral Doenitz to wait for Hitler and Eva Braun's arrival at the base, and to take them aboard a Vril aircraft to Spain.

- History or legend has it that Adolf Hitler nominated General Rattenhuber as one of the military judges of a military tribunal to court-martial General Hermann Fegelein (Eva Braun's brother-in-law), then Himmler's SS liaison officer in Hitler's bunker. The military tribunal consisted of General Wilhelm Mohnke as president, and General Hans Krebs, General Möhnke, General Wilhelm Burgdorf and General Rattenhuber as members. This account is a pure fantasy. It never happened. The whole story was created to cover up the escape of General Hermann Fegelein.

JU 290A

Sunday, 29 th :

- Hitler's plane landed at Tonder in Denmark according to Baumgart.
- SS Lieutenant Friedrich von Angelotty-Mackensen said that he saw Hitler at Tonder's airfield on the 29th . (From his March 15, 1948 interrogation by the Americans).
- Hitler et al flew to Reus, nearby Barcelona in Spain.

May 1945

Tuesday 1 st :

- Germany officially announced the suicide of Adolf Hitler.
- Admiral Doenitz received the following and last message from Martin Bormann and Dr. Josef Goebbels: "Führer died yesterday, 1530 hours. In his will dated April 29 he appoints you as President of the Reich, Goebbels as Reich Chancellor, Bormann as Party Minister, Seyss-Inquart as Foreign Minister. By order of the Führer, the will, is being sent to you and to Field Marshal Schoerner…Acknowledge…"

- Martin Bormann left the bunker. But according to some of the bunker's occupants, Martin Bormann left the bunker with Werner Naumann on Wednesday 2nd .
- The world was told that Adolf Hitler committed suicide in his bunker.
- The Russians found the dead bodies of General Burgdorf and General Krebs in the bunker.

- Around 2.20 in the afternoon, the Russians discovered the burned bodies of Joseph Goebbels, his wife Magda, and children.

- Around 3.00 in the afternoon, the Russians discovered the body of Hitler's double, buried in the garden of the Chancellery (The bunker).
- Around 3.5-3.10 in the afternoon, the Russians (Red Army) took the first picture of the body of Hitler's double.
- After taking part in the escape from the bunker led by General Wilhelm Möhnke, Vice-Admiral Voss was captured by the Russians, and was brought back to the bunker, where he was questioned by Russian interrogators for approximately 10 minutes.

Then, he was ordered to identify the burned bodies of Josef Goebbels, Magda Goebbels his wife, and their six children, and which he did. The Russian interrogator asked: "How could you identify the bodies? How could you say this is the body of Josef Goebbels?
Vice-Admiral Voss: "From the shape of his head, the NSDAP badge, and the metal brace of his right leg." In February 1952, Vice-Admiral Voss was sentenced to 25 years in prison, but was released in December 1954. He died in 1969 in Berchtesgaden, Bavaria.

Saturday 5 th :

- Russian Colonel Klimenko sent the partly cremated bodies for autopsy.

May 26 th :

- Stalin told Harry Hopkins, the United States envoy in Moscow, “It is my opinion that Hitler is not dead. He is alive and hiding somewhere. I wish your government will understand and accept this…”

June 1945

June 9 th :

- Marshal Zhukov gave an official statement to the press, in which he stated that the Russians were unable to identify the body of Hitler.

June 10 th :

- The Russian newspaper “Pravda” published an article which contained a statement by Marshal Zhukov which clearly indicating that nothing for sure could be said about Adolf Hitler’s fate and disappearance.

July 1945

July 17 th :

- At the Postdam Conference, Stalin told James B. Byrnes, the American Secretary of State, “Hitler is alive, probably in Spain or Argentina." Such statement could be found in President Truman's Library archives.

July 23 rd :

- Aboard a U-Boat (Possibly a U-880 as claimed by some authors) General Hermann Fegelein reached the shores of Argentina. Very early in the morning, he headed to Mar del Plata.

At Mar del Plata, Freude provided Fegelein with an aerial transport to an estate located on the Argentinean coast not very far from Mar del Plata, reportedly owned by Nazis, who were expecting his arrival. It was reported that at the shore of this very estate, Hitler et al landed with huge metallic boxes and trunks loaded with money and treasures. Some authors have claimed that the German-owned estate was located at Necochea. (Note: I was unable to find any reference made to Necochea in Freude's reports. But I could be mistaken.)

July 28 th :

- Around 2:00 AM, Adolf Hitler and Eva Braun landed on the Argentinian coast, at a location designated by General Hermann Fegelein, which could be Necochea as claimed by some authors or a nearby place.
- Adolf Hitler and Eva Braun/Fegelein rendez vous became a fait accompli. And almost immediately, Hitler and his exhausted wife were flown to San Carlos de Bariloche.

Operation Highjump
Read Admiral Byrd's Expedition to Antarctica
(August 26, 1946-February 26, 1947)

Operation Highjump was the largest naval expedition and military operation in the history of Antarctica.

On August 26, 1946, and just one year after the end of WWII, the United States under the command of Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, organized an alleged scientific expedition to Antarctica, as for de facto, said “expedition” was a military invasion of the continent.
To study a river banks’ vegetation or swamps’ plants agronomists don’t need to bring a submarine.
To create a weather station, or to study a country’s climate, scientists would not use an aircraft carrier.
To study the atmosphere or rigid weather’s conditions, scientists don’t need to use warships.
This is exactly what has happened with the 1946-1947 Operation Highjump which its task force consisted of 13 ships, 33 aircrafts, and 4,700 men (4,680 were military men with no polar experience). The United States Navy first, declared that the main purpose of the operations is to establish a scientific research base for the study of meteorology, hydrography, geography and geology of the continent.

Later on, the purpose of the expedition expanded to include the preparation and training of personnel for rigid conditions, the functioning and testing of equipment in hard conditions, and finally, establishing and operating air bases. Operation Highjump was a coverup for a military operation and using the name of an illustrious scientist and explorer such as Rear Admiral Byrd fits perfectly the military scenario.
In fact, Rear Admiral Byrd was just a figure, a symbol, a camouflage, for the United States Navy was in total control of the entire operation; the Navy and only the Navy called the shots. The Real Admiral was a minor player. And none of the naval commanders and pilots (Flyers) of the operation knew what they were doing. Pilot Conrad Shinn said, “We didn’t really know what we were doing. We didn’t know about precision flying or what we were looking at.”

Rear Admiral Byrd

Pine Island anchored off Antarctica during Operation Highjump.

On March 5, 1945, the Chilean newspapers El Mercurio published its interview with Read Admiral Byrd; here is an excerpt:

“Admiral Richard E. Byrd warned today that the United States should adopt measures of protection against the possibility of an invasion of the country by hostile planes coming from the polar regions.

The Rear Admiral explained that he was not trying to scare anyone, but the cruel reality is that in case of a new war, the United States could be attacked by planes flying over one or both poles.”

The Rear Admiral told International News Service that he has become very concerned with the safety and security of the United States, based upon what he has learned from his expedition and saw during the operation, that part of the world (Antarctica) could cause a serious threat to the security of the United States.

The Rear Admiral added, “I have to warn my compatriots that the time has ended when we were able to take refuge in our isolation and rely on the certainty that the distances, the oceans, and the poles were a guarantee of safety.”

What kind of threat Admiral Byrd was referring to? And who is the enemy?

Some political analysts believed that the United States mounted this operation in order to gain a strategic territory, and to prevent the Russians from capturing the continent and using it as a military base from which Russia would or could attack the United States.

Certainly, this assumption was a geo-political reflection of what the Americans thought at that time, a product of the cold war way of thinking.

Is this a déjà vu with new players on stage? Is it really preventing the Russians from capturing Antarctica?

We heard similar stories before.

From the front page of the New York Times, Saturday July 8th, 1939: "Washington, July 7-President Roosevelt moved today to prevent possible extension of Germany's claims to Antarctic areas into the Western Hemisphere by directing Real Admiral Richard E. Byrd to leave in October to territory within the sphere of influence of the Monroe Doctrine.

It is apparent that this government was prepared to take the position, if necessary, that any attempts by foreign powers to establish bases west of the 180th meridian in the Antarctic would be considered an unfriendly act. If the $340,000 appropriated by Congress for the expedition permitted, Admiral Byrd said, he would outfit three ships. His own ship would be The Bear of Oakland, which is undergoing a careful inspection at Boston.

He said he would lend it to the government after a new engine had been installed…"

But why would the U.S. assemble a mighty war fleet of aircraft carriers, a submarine, 13 warships & destroyers, 33 aircrafts & helicopters, 4,000 soldiers, 56 military vehicles and head toward an uninhabited icy continent if the sole purpose of assembling such an armada was a scientific exploration and the study of the ecology, meteorology and topography of an isolated icy continent?
It does not make sense!!

Summary of facts about Operation Highjump:

A military invasion:

● A huge amount of military hardware, materials and troops were involved; a veritable military armada; the operation was indeed an invasion of Antarctica with considerable naval and military resources, and a full military assault on a Nazi base housing Nazi officers and scientists, as well as unconventional aircrafts and weapons' systems.

● Upon arrival at Antarctica, Byrd's forces did no land right away; Read Admiral Byrd began a reconnaissance operation of the icy continent on board of an aircraft which had rocket propulsion tubes attached to its side.

●Rear Admiral Byrd's R4-D's were fitted with Trimetricon spy cameras.

Fierce battles, heavy resistance and fatalities:

●Byrd's armada encountered a heavy resistance which forced him to call off the invasion and withdraw. De facto, the forces of Rear Admiral Byrd were defeated two weeks later. Numerous eye witnesses stated that "there had been a lot of aircraft and rocket shoot-downs", and others reported that "they run into trouble and there had been many fatalities."

● Flying saucers of incredible flying maneuvers which took part in the counter-attack and defense of Antarctica were reported by numerous eye witnesses, and some were depicted in detail.

●Rear Admiral Byrd stated that he did not want to frighten anyone, but that it was "a bitter reality that in case of a new war the continental United States would be attacked by flying objects which could fly from pole to pole at incredible speeds being based on Antarctica."

Absolute secrecy:

● Minimal information and data about the operation were released to the media and to the public. The records and data of the operation became classified top secret.

●The log of Rear Admiral Byrd was kept top-secret.

●On August 26, 1946, Admiral Ramsey stated: "No foreign observers will be accepted."

Hitler’s Nazi military colony in Antarctica.

During the Second World War, Germany was sending fleets of submarines, ships, and exotic spacecrafts to their colony, the Neu Schwabenland in the Antarctic, and to other secret locations and underground bases known only to Himmler, Kammler and to an elite of their military scientists. Insiders, as well as United States and British intelligence confirmed that those underground secret bases were later used by the Germans after the war, as their new headquarters and center for their anti-gravity crafts and flying discs.

In a British prison at Spandau in West Berlin, where he died in 1987, Rudolf Hess, Hitler’s Deputy admitted to US military intelligence that Germany had a sophisticated and very advanced military base in Antarctica. Lindbergh told Carl Jung that the United States Air Force investigated the matter. Files upon files confiscated by the allies at the secret German bases in the Harz Mountains, Thuringia and Peenemünde referred to the Antarctic’s base locations.

The OSS and the CIA compiled lists and dossiers on highly advanced types and new classes of post-war German anti-gravity crafts/flying saucers which were built at those locations.

The 1951 U.S.-Russia joint expedition to Antarctica.

In 1950, one of the CIA’s secret memoranda revealed that in fact, a highly advanced type of German flying discs and Wing-Jets seen over the United States and European countries came from the Antarctic’s German new headquarters.

In 1951, the Soviet Union and the United States secretly and jointly sent two expeditions to Antarctica to spy on post-war Germany’s underground facilities and factories in Neu Schwabenland (Antarctica).

The expeditions were mentioned in a secret CIA memorandum issued by General Walter Bedell Smith, then director of the CIA, and in a secret memorandum issued by Allen Welsh Dulles, then the Deputy Director of the Agency.

In addition to the immense Neu Schwabenland's base, post-war Germany's scientists also established secret factories in remote areas in Canada; this was confirmed by:

- Dr. von Braun,
- Major Erich Hartmann,
- Rudolph Schriever,
- Dr. Hermann Oberth,
- General Dr. Walter Dornberger,
- Dr. Heinrich Richard Miethe,
- Dr. Albert Kochendoerfer,
- Dr. Bruno Wolf Bruckmann,
- Robert Seamans (Associate NASA Administrator),
- Walter Haeussemann (NASA Director of Astrionics Division),
- Major General John Barclay,
- Lt. Colonels Walter and Reimar Horten,
- General Emmett "Rosie" O'Donnell, then, head of the United States Strategic Air Force Command.

- Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, General Nathan F. Twinning who revealed explosive information on the subject but was silenced .

Some powerful people in American politics and the military covered up the whole story, to name a few:
General John Samford,
General Roger Maxwell Ramey,
General Curtis LeMay,
General Hoyt S. Vandenberg,
President Harry Truman members of National Defense Research Committee which included:
Roger Adams,
Vannevar Bush,
K. T. Compton,
James Bryant Conant,
Alphonse Raymond,
Albert Baird,
Jerome Clarke,
Frank B. Jewett,

Admiral William James Crowe

On two occasions, Admiral William James Crowe, Jr., Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, discussed the affair with President Ronald Reagan and Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher. President Ronald Reagan had limited access to the government's secret files on Hitler's Nazi military colony in Antarctica.

Admiral Crowe reassured the President that the German base in Antarctica was no threat to national security. He added that President Truman and President Eisenhower had some sort of an agreement with the "old school" and remnants of Nazi scientists in Germany, Austria, Poland and Antarctica. While serving as the U.S. ambassador to Great Britain (1994-97), the Admiral had intensive talks with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher about the Falklands war, and of course Adolf Hitler's Antarctica base. And again, he reassured the Prime Minister that the Antarctica base is no threat to Great Britain and to the United States.

The NAZIS are back.

The glowing circular-shaped objects hovering in the sky of the nation's capital, were totally unrelated to extraterrestrial UFOs.

On April 18, 1952, the United States Air Force issued a secret report on the sighting of unknown spacecrafts seen in the skies of the United States and described those unidentified spacecrafts as "dangerous".
The word "dangerous" was underlined. Said report which was kept secret for a few days was related to unknown crafts spotted near Nome in Alaska. This is a fact.
The United States Air Force issued an order to intercept the UFOs. Less than 45 minutes later, the order was lifted when the USAF received a "communication" from an intelligence agency explaining the scope and nature of the sighting. An insider alleged that the UFOs flew directly from a "No-Fly Zone" in Canada and hovered for 3 minutes over a Canadian airbase in North Bay, Ontario, Canada en route to Washington, DC.

The commander of the Canadian air base in North Bay informed the intelligence agency that 8 German UFOs flew over his base and were heading toward the nation's Capital.

Furthermore, the commander advised the intelligence agency not to intercept the German spacecrafts; this was transmitted to the USAF, the Pentagon, and The White House. The intelligence agency explained to President Harry Truman that the German flying saucers (UFOs) are not jeopardizing national security, and there is no reason to worry. In other words, they are no threat to the United States.

In addition, the agency informed President Truman that the German flying saucers will be displaying a tour de force over Washington, DC.

President Truman asked the intelligence agency "Should we prepare a statement?" And the answer was "No, Mr. President, we will handle this…"

President Truman was not fully convinced and satisfied. And as sightings became to intensify, he sought the opinion of Dr. von Braun who commented on the sightings as follows: "Mr. President, this is simply intimidation, nothing to worry about, we are working on it."

Some insiders have alleged that Dr. von Braun's answer was something like that: "Mr. President, we know who they are. Nothing to worry about, we know how to deal with it. It is simply a matter of intimidation. I know this type of spacecrafts. We know how to deal with it…"

Dr. Edward Teller's (Father of the H Bomb) brief comment was slightly different. He said: "Mr. President, it is only harassment that's all…the bastards (NAZI)…we know very well who they are, and where these "UFOs" came from…"

Simply put, executive decision makers, national security and intel top echelon knew they were German UFOs…they knew what they were capable of, and where they came from!

The Washington Post today presents the first of 12 articles that give the most complete factual story yet written about Red tyranny in eastern Europe. The author is a Pulitzer Prize winner. They are a direct result of my belief that the so-called "Iron Curtain" has many serious rifts; that we in the West have failed to tap many vital sources of news. We could and should know a great deal more about communism in the Red-ruled half of Europe.

I decided, in September 1950, to try and get a maximum of available facts. That's where the much neglected holes in the Iron Curtain came in.

On the Front Page of the Washington Post, July 28, 1952.: Saucer' Outran Jet, Pilot Reveals"

From the Washington Post:

Military secrecy veils an investigation of the mysterious, glowing aerial objects that showed up on radar screens in the Washington area Saturday night for the second consecutive week.

A jet pilot sent up by the Air Defense Command to investigate the objects reported he was unable to overtake the glowing lights moving near Andrews Air Force Base.

The CAA reported the objects traveled at "predominantly lower levels"- about 1700 feet. July 19.
Air Force spokesmen said yesterday only that an investigation was being made into the sighting of the objects on the radar screen in the CAA Air Route Traffic Control Center at Washington National Airport, and on two other radar screens. Methods of the investigations were classified as secret, a spoken said.

"We have no evidence they are flying saucers; conversely we have no evidence they are not flying saucers. We don't know what they are," a spokesman added. The same source reported an expert from the Air Technical Intelligence Center at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Dayton Ohio, was here last week investigating the objects sighted July 19.
The expert has been identified as Capt. E. J. Ruppelt. Reached by telephone at his home in Dayton yesterday, Ruppelt said he could make no comment on his activity in Washington.
Capt. Ruppelt confirmed he was in Washington last week but said he had not come here to investigate the mysterious objects.
He recalled he did make an investigation after hearing of the objects but could not say what he investigated. Another Air Force spokesman said here yesterday the Air Force is taking all steps necessary to evaluate the sightings.
"The intelligence people," this spokesman explained, "sent someone over to the control center at the time of the sightings and did whatever necessary to make the proper evaluation.

Asked whether the radar equipment might have been mis-functioning, the spokesman said, "radar, like the compass is not a perfect instrument and is subject to error."
He thought, however, the investigation would be made by persons acquainted with the problems of radar. Two other radar screens in the area picked up the objects.
An employee of the National Airport control tower said the radar scope there picked up very weak "blips" of the objects.
The tower radar's for "short range" and is not so powerful as that at the center. Radar at Andrews Air Force Base also registered the objects from about seven miles south of the base. A traffic control center spokesman said the nature of the signals on the radar screen ruled out any possibility they were from clouds or any other "weather" disturbance.

"The returns we received from the unidentified objects were similar and analogous to targets representing aircraft in flight," he said.
The objects, "flying saucer or what have you, appeared on the radar scope at the airport center at 9:08 PM. Varying from 4 to 12 in number, the objects appeared on the screen until 3:00 AM., when they disappeared. At 11:25 PM., two F-94 jet fighters fro Air Defense Command squadron, at New Castle Delaware, capable of 600 hundred mph speeds, took off to investigate the objects. Airline, civil and military pilots described the objects as looking like the lit end of a cigarette or a cluster of orange and red lights.
One jet pilot observed 4 lights in the vicinity of Andrews Air Force Base, but was not able to over-take them, and they disappeared in about two minutes. The same pilot observed a steady white light in the vicinity of Mt Vernon at 11:49 PM. The light, about 5 miles from him, faded in a minute. The lights were also observed in the Beltsville, MD., vicinity. At 1:40 AM two-other F-94 jet fighters took off and scanned the area until 2:20 AM. but did not make any sightings.

The German Bell-flying object that crashed in Pennsylvania.

On December 9 of 1965, an object in the form of a fire-ball landed or crashed if you prefer in the small town of Kecksburg in Pennsylvania.
a-The military's version: We were told by the military that it was a meteorite. Wrong! Canadian, Australian and American space scientists working for the military and NASA unanimously stated on record that the landed or crashed object was one of Nazi Germany Bell-UFO types, built during the Third Reich.
However, the German scientists who were brought to the United States under the umbrella of Project or Operation Paperclip and were still working for our government in various capacities and at different facilities and agencies stated very clearly that the object was indeed a very particular type of Bell-flying discs very similar to the original Nazi Bell anti-gravity flying discs, but it was not built during the Third Reich; it is rather a new version built somewhere else, possibly in a secret hideout or a military base under the control of other German scientists or remnants of the old group of Nazi scientists, outside post-war Germany.

b-The ufologists' version: They claimed that the crashed object in Kecksburg, Pennsylvania was an extraterrestrial flying saucer. They were wrong again, for the German scientists who were very familiar with various types of German "UFOs" recognized the crashed object as a different or a new version of one of their own Bell-UFOs anti-gravity flying discs. Case closed, no aliens here and no extraterrestrial UFOs!!

Your astral body and your parallel double, lecture 115, dirasaat 1969.

This book is one of numerous lessons and lectures given by Ulema Maximillien de Lafayette, which shall be followed by numerous Kira'at on various subjects such as:

1-Immortality of the mind,

2-How to read others' thoughts and perceive their intentions,

3-How to transport your physical body into an adjacent dimension,

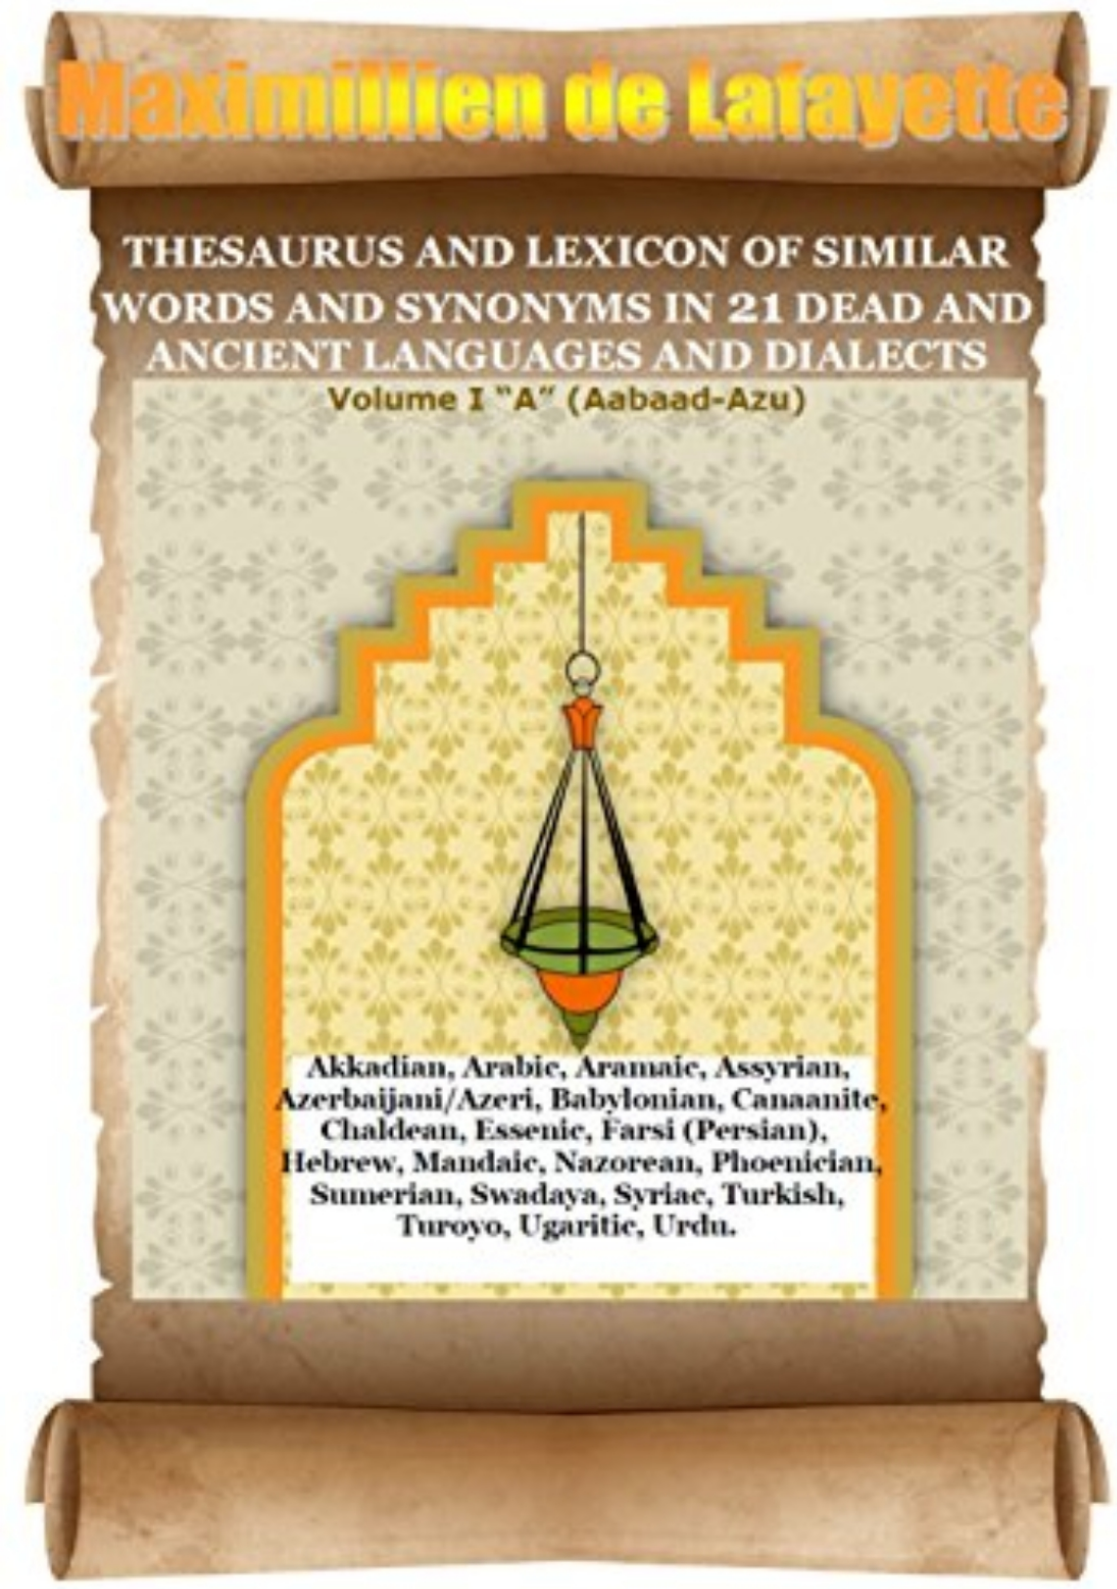

4-How to activate your Conduit,
5-The path of enlightenment,
6-Foreseeing passages from you future by rewinding time.
Etc.

Times Square Press in collaboration with Jami'ya Ulema Ramadosh will be publishing a series of 75 mini lessons and lectures, which pertain to the philosophical and spiritual teachings of the Honorable Ulema.

From the contents:

• Understanding your Parallel Double.
• How your "Double" can affect your life, success and development.
• You were conceived in the Astral World.
• Is there a difference between the Double and the Parallel Double?
• Major difference between your AB/Double (Astral Body) and the Parallel Double.
• The Double as Information Tool.
• Can we use our Double to acquire or retrieve information?
• Difference between a floating astral body and a parallel body.
• So, I can use my parallel double to spy on people!
• Difference between remote viewing and parallel body's information gathering.
• If this is the case, then the Ulema are not spiritual and honorable at all!
• Is it possible to learn this technique?
• Does our double interact with us while we are small babies?
• Communication with our Double.
• Can we communicate with our "Astral Body"?
• Materialization of your Double.
• Upon initiating the contact with your Double.
• Zooming into your Double and acquiring Ulema's supernatural faculties.
• Ulema Albakri's dematerializing and walking through a wall.

THE SUPERSYMETRIC MIND:

Activation of the Conduit and the Supersymetric Mind.

You need to reach the zone of "Oneness", to activate your "Conduit" and dig deep into your Supersymetric Mind. Many students and friends have asked me if there is an immediate way to solve the harsh financial problems they are facing; some sort of an Anunnaki Ulema relief-technique to bring them wealth, make them succeed in business, get rid of their troubles, and reach their goals.

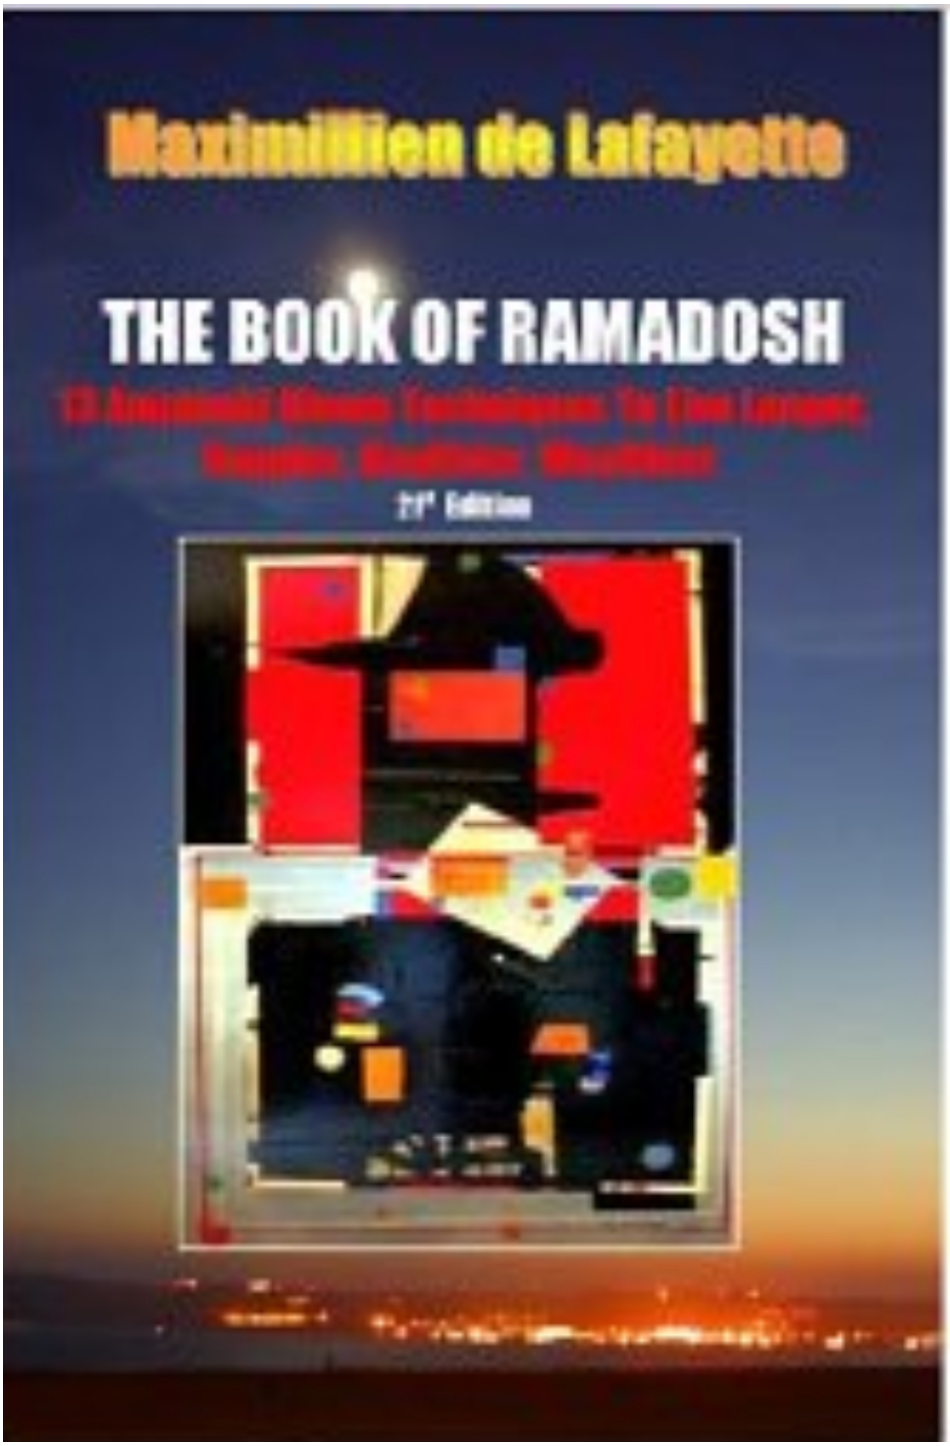

The enlightened masters told us that there is only one way, one technique, one method to reach Alsoudk (Truth) and Iftirach (Happiness), which are the most important reasons, cause and effect of our intellectual and spiritual ascension. And through this ascension, our eyes will open up, our mind will develop, our heart will expand, and our being, physically, spiritually and mentally will enter the zone of ultimate knowledge; a knowledge which is an intricate part of the state of “Oneness”, reachable only through our “Conduit” and “Supersymnetric Mind”. Yes, of course, enlightenment could be achieved differently, using alternative methods and paths, as explained by Brahmans, Lamas, Gurus, Swamis, Senseis, spiritual guides, and others. But no path and no alternative method are as sublime and flawless as the Anunnaki Ulema’s Tarika (Road or Way of Knowledge). And yes, you can walk on that road, and reach the hill of light, if you get rid of the Tabi’a, the lowest level of your mind, where the human nature is stained by weaknesses, nourished with vanity and greed, and solely breeds on attachment to materialistic values. When you confer with your “Supersymetric Mind”, and when you activate your “Conduit”, even partially, you will be able to accomplish the quasi-impossible.

This book is not the ultimate and entire mental and esoteric arsenal you need in your fight against ignorance, nor the Alpha and Omega of the enlightenment Tarika, but it could help you a lot in finding and developing extraordinary mental and supernatural powers you had within you since you were born, but you never knew that you had them, or you could have used them when you needed an immediate relief, a helping hand, and a strong shoulder to lean on.

This book will show you a few techniques that could activate part of your “Conduit”, and teach you how to converse with your “Supersymetric Mind”, which is the original blueprints of your intelligence (Hidden and known), and the amazingly vast depot of knowledge and know-how, which were given to you, but you have never used, simply because you didn’t know that such depot did exist, and you were rightfully entitled to have access to. Your mind is a magnificent tool, a superb machine, an unimaginable instrument you can use to solve lots of problems on so many levels, to strengthen your faith in yourself, and to reach for the stars. Those stars are not very far away from you, for you can reach them, for you can touch them, if you use your Conduit and “Supersymetric Mind”.

Da-Irat:

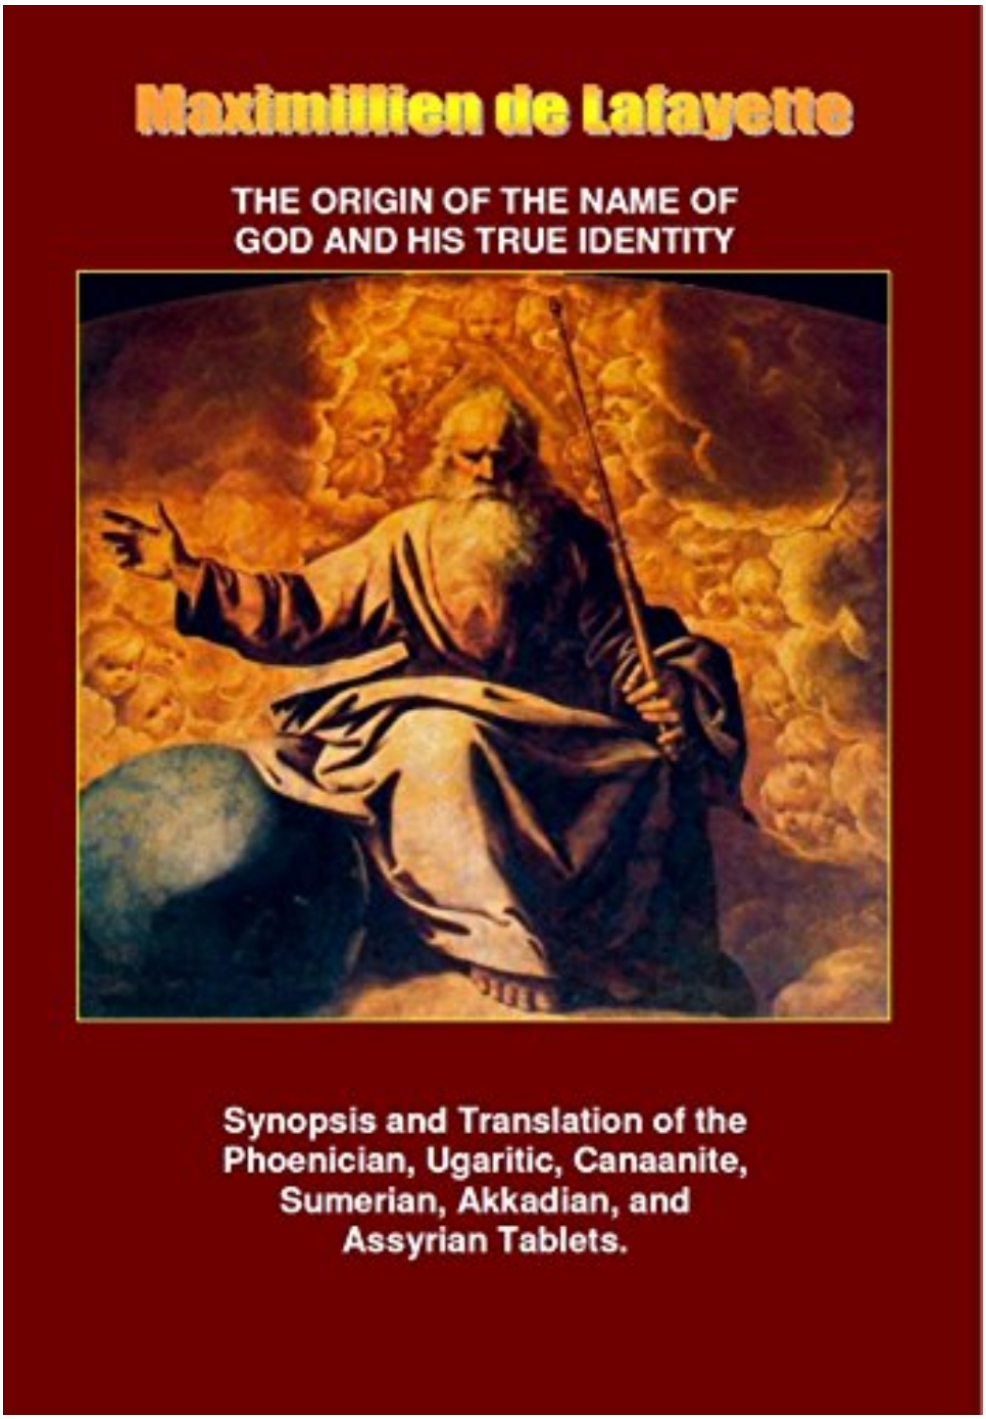

This technique eliminates stress, through one's self-energy. In other words, it is an Ulema technique used to energize one's mind and body, and to eliminate worries that are preventing a person from functioning properly everywhere, including office, school, home, hospital, social gatherings, etc.
Dudurisar: The ability to rethink and examine past events in your life, change them, and in doing so, you create for yourself a new life and new opportunities. To a certain degree, it is like revisiting your past, and changing unpleasant events, decisions, choices, and related matters that put you where you are today.
Arawadi: Technique to develop a supernatural power that allows initiated ones to halt or send away difficulties, problems and mishaps into another time and another place, thus freeing themselves from worries, anxiety and fear
Baaniradu: The healing touch technique. Touch them & heal them

Bari-du: The technique allows you to zoom into an astral body or a Double.

Explanation of Sumerian and Assyrian Tablets, Slabs and seals and Translation of Cuneiform Inscriptions (Illustrated History of the Civilizations, and Culture of the Middle East, Near East, and Asia Minor.)

A monumental work. The world's first book of its kind! Conceived and written for the use of universities' professors, teachers of art history and history of ancient civilizations, as well as for students and researchers in the field. In this most unique book, the author explains the meaning, the message and structure of hundreds upon hundreds of Mesopotamian tablets, slabs, seals, obelisks, and cuneiform inscriptions.

The origin of the name of God and his true identity. Synopsis and Translation of the Phoenician, Ugaritic, Canaanite, Sumerian, Akkadian, and Assyrian Tablets.

The name of God "Yahweh", his attributes and extraordinary (Supernatural) powers and deeds were borrowed from pagans' gods; gods the Israelites worshiped before they "created" their own god "Yahweh", who centuries later, became the God of the Christians and the Muslims. So is it fair and logical to assume that we are worshiping a "Pagans' God" or more precisely an amalgam of mythical gods? You bet! And this is exactly, the delicate, fragile and controversial topic we will be exploring, discussing and explaining in this treatise. If you are fanatically religious and you believe every word in the Bible, and all the stories rabbis, sheiks, Imams, bishops and priests tell you, then, do not read this treatise, because it could disturb you, and lead you to believe that it was written to discredit your faith and your beliefs in the Jewish Bible, the Torah, Talmud, the Christian Bible (New Testament), Jesus, the Christian Church, the Koran, and the Prophets.

And this is not the case at all. The conclusions are based upon linguistic, historical, geographical, and archaeological facts and irrefutable findings, scrolls and inscriptions written centuries before any organized religion was established on Earth, and the word "GOD" was ever pronounced by or known to mankind.
